"Following the hearing the subject was further studied by the experts of the Bureau of Plant Industry of the department, including a field examination of the conditions throughout the country, to determine the essential needs as to future plant importations. The results of these extended investigations were embodied in a tentative plant quarantine order which was sent, August 29, 1918, to plant trade journals and related societies and to individuals who had manifested an interest in this subject, either by attending the hearing or by correspondence, with the request that the proposed quarantine be given careful consideration, with a view to a conference later to discuss and determine the desirability of the proposed restrictions. This conference was held October 18, 1918, and the quarantine was amended in minor details and promulgated by the department November 18, 1918, to take effect June 1, 1919.

Criticisms and Answers.

"This quarantine aroused wide criticism and protest, much of this being based, however, on misrepresentation and particularly on the charge, which was directly contrary to the facts, that the quarantine would prevent the United States from receiving the new plant creations of Europe and other foreign countries and that America would therefore be forever deprived of all such additions to its horticulture and floriculture. These protests also found large support on the part of importers whose business was necessarily restricted as a result of the quarantine. On the other hand, this quarantine received substantial indorsement from the great body of the producing nurserymen of the country.

"In answer to various criticisms and to correct certain misrepresentations, the board has issued several explanatory memoranda and statements, the most important being a memorandum dated February 1, 1919, giving a general discussion of the quarantine and of the conditions which led to its promulgation. A further explanatory statement was issued by the Secretary of Agriculture as a result of a conference March 1 with a committee representing the New York Florists' Club, the Society of American Florists and the American Association of Nurserymen. The statement of the secretary is based on an impartial investigation which he had made of the whole subject, the report of which fully supported the quarantine. These two documents have been published in trade journals and used liberally in correspondence with respect to the quarantine.

"The chairman of the board, on invitation, has attended during the year important annual meetings of nurserymen and florists to discuss federal plant quarantines and particularly Quarantine No. 37. These meetings included the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen, at Riverside, Cal., in May; the American Association of Nurserymen, at Chicago in July, and the Society of American Florists, at Detroit in August. The discussion at these meetings directly and through the reports published in trade journals has brought a perhaps better understanding of the fundamental purposes underlying this quarantine to the great body of persons interested throughout the United States."

PESTS THAT COME IN.

Or, Why the Lid Went Down.

A record has been kept since the organization of the Federal Horticultural Board of all the interceptions of foreign plant pests and diseases on imported nursery stock and other plants and plant products. "As a result of the requirement of the federal plant quarantine act as to foreign inspection and certification," one reads in the board's report for the year ending June 30, "practically all of the foreign countries which are doing a commercial trade of any importance in such products with the United States have installed adequate inspection service and for the most part it is undoubted that these countries are probably giving as good inspection service as human skill and science can afford. The result of this service has been a tremendous improvement in the sanitary condition of the plants and plant products imported into the United States. The infestation has been reduced to probably as near a minimum as is humanly possible. Nevertheless, the records referred to indicate that in spite of this inspection and the foreign certifications accompanying importations, large numbers of injurious insects and plant diseases are still coming into the United States on imported plants. Inasmuch as one of the principal arguments of objectors to foreign plant quarantines is that proper inspection will eliminate these evils, it is opportune at this time to call attention to a summary of the conditions actually shown by the inspection records of the last seven years as to the plant imports from the principal exporting countries. With respect to insects, these records indicate that there have been received from Holland during this period 1,051 infested shipments, involving 148 kinds of insect pests; from Belgium, 1,306 infested shipments, involving sixty-four kinds of insects; from France, 347 infested shipments, involving eighty-nine kinds of insects; from England, 154 infested shipments, involving sixty-two kinds of insects; from Japan, 291 infested shipments, involving 108 kinds of insects; from Germany, twelve infested shipments, involving fifteen kinds of insect pests. Many of these intercepted insects are not known to be established anywhere in this country and numbers of them, if established, would undoubtedly become important farm, garden or forest pests.

What Inspection Did.

"During the fiscal year 1919, possibly as a result of the let-down due to war conditions, there was an exceptional increase of infestation of imported nursery stock with gipsy and brown-tail moth. In the previous years under this quarantine shipments thus infested had been so reduced that for the entire period of seven years only sixty-three infested shipments had been discovered, whereas prior to the passage of the quarantine act such instances of infestation ran up to several thousand annually. Altogether 123 species of insects were intercepted on various plants and plant products during the fiscal year just ended. In addition to gipsy-moth egg masses and brown-tail moth nests, the more important interceptions were pink bollworm-infested cotton seed from Brazil and China, European Lackey moth from Holland, fruit fly larvæ from Cuba, Oriental moth from Japan, gold-tail moth from France, seed weevils infesting cherry seed from France and a number of injurious scale insects on miscellaneous plants. Soil insects were collected on several occasions, including the European mole cricket, earwigs, Otiorchynchid larvæ, wireworms and white grubs from Holland.

"With respect to plant diseases intercepted during the fiscal year 1919, 270 distinct disease organisms were identified on imported plant material. Among these, one case of powdery scab was found on potatoes from Ecuador, confirming the supposed Andean origin of this disease, and one interception of citrus canker was made at Seattle, Wash., on citrus fruits taken from passengers' baggage.''

NEW YORK CLUB ELECTS

NEW YORK FLORISTS' CLUB.

Officers Elected.

At the monthly meeting, held December 8, with a large attendance, the following officers were elected for 1920:

President—Archibald M. Henshaw.
Vice-president—C. W. Knight.
Secretary—John Young, reëlected.
Treasurer—William C. Rickards, Jr., reëlected.

Trustees for two years—Arthur Herrington, Emil Schloss, Max Schling.

Many Fine Exhibits.

The exhibits were fine and, as arranged at the head of the large room, created quite a handsome appearance. Most interesting were five vases of roses put up by Traendly & Schenck, products of their Rowayton, Conn., greenhouses. The varieties were Jonkheer J. L. Mock, Premier, Columbia, Mrs. Aaron Ward and Ophelia, and the quality was remarkable, particularly as regards Mock, finer flowers never having been seen hereabouts. The awards committee voted the exhibit a silver medal.

W. A. Manda, Inc., South Orange, N. J., exhibited a number of plants of the new Juniperus Mandaiana, an interesting half hardy evergreen, appearing to have commercial value and shown in sizes designed for Christmas use. The variety was awarded a first-class certificate. The same exhibitor showed a group of Dracæna Rothiana, which was awarded a cultural certificate; a display of Sericographis Ghiesbreghtiana, an old plant resurrected, well flowered plants, flowers yellow and said to be borne in profusion for a period of two months, for which honorable mention was given; a display of Aspidistra lurida, which won a cultural certificate, and a display of wreaths, of spruce and other greens, which gained a vote of thanks.

Philip F. Kessler exhibited a splendid vase of Chrysanthemum Christmas Gold, a vase of Antirrhinum Ruth Brewster and a seedling antirrhinum, white blushed pink, for which he was awarded a vote of thanks.

A. Sauter, Nyack, N. Y., was given a vote of thanks for a vase of mignonette and similar awards were voted to Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, for a vase of Calendula Orange King, and to A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., for a vase of Chrysanthemum Margaret Waite.

W. D. Howard, Milford, Mass., exhibited a handsome vase of Carnation Bernice, crimson, which was scored eighty-four points, one point less than the number required for a certificate.

C. T. Guenther, Hamburg, N. Y., showed Chrysanthemum Hamburg Late Pink and Henry Schnockpeper, Glendale, L. I., a pink sport of Chrysanthemum E. A. Seidewitz; each exhibit was given a vote of thanks.

Miscellaneous Matter.

Charles H. Totty, for the flower show committee, reported progress. A joint meeting of the committee with a committee from the American Rose Society had been held that afternoon, he said, at which arrangements had been completed for the A. R. S. to hold its annual exhibition in connection with the international flower show next spring. Arthur Herrington invoked the assistance of the club's members in boosting the show and Secretary Young presented copies of the final schedule of premiums. Wallace R. Pierson made a special plea to rose growers to prepare to make the best exhibits possible at the show.

Resolutions were passed conveying the sympathy of the club to the families of Thomas Bunyard, father of Harry A. and Alfred T. Bunyard; Oscar Hauschild, brother of Otto Hauschild, and Emil Zeller, brother of Alfred Zeller.

Wm. H. Siebrecht, Jr., reported that the club's charter was in course of amendment as required by the club.

The following were elected to membership: F. B. Bourne, S. H. Skidell, Henry C. Holpp, Fred von Lum, Alphonse Rigo, Michael Durso, Joseph Heiman and Richard T. Broderick. Messrs. Bourne and Heiman, being present, were formally introduced to the gathering, as also was J. H. Bockman, elected at the last meeting.

Sam Seligman, 239 Fourth avenue, New York; Edward I. Brenner, 103 West Twenty-eighth street, New York; David Bielefeld, 11 East One Hundred First street, New York; A. I. Underhill, Babylon, N. Y., and Robert Johnston, Ardsley, N. Y., were nominated for election at the next meeting. Matthew Sampson was reported as having taken out a life membership.

An appropriation of $100 to the fund for the Brooklyn ''Say It with Flowers'' week was confirmed.

A resolution was passed directing the secretary to make application for the club's representation on the executive board of the S. A. F.

The secretary reported that he had received a letter from Patrick O'Mara to the effect that he was slowly recovering his health, and thanking the club for its gift of fruit and flowers.

The Election.

Election of officers for the ensuing year occupied considerable time. Roman J. Irwin, the only nominee for vice-president, retired in favor of C. W. Knight, of Oakdale, L. I., who, he said, deserved this recognition by the club as a reward for his services, and whose name had escaped the nominating committee. Much applause followed this graceful act. F. H. Traendly was judge of election and Andrew Scott and J. B. Nugent were tellers.

The new president and vice-president and the secretary made short addresses appreciative of their election. A telegram from Treasurer Rickards was read, expressing regret at his enforced absence in Chicago.

It was arranged to hold a ladies' night in connection with the next meeting, January 12.

Visitors included Thos. Roland, Nahant, Mass., and W. D. Howard, Milford, Mass.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

Last week showed a slight falling off in business; this decrease had its good side, since it made the demand equal to the supply. The shortage of violets necessitated the shipment of stock from the coast. They arrived in good condition and when left in the original papers, well moistened and put right on the ice, they keep in salable condition for days. Mums are about through, but some good pompons may still be had, such as Godfrey in pink and Mrs. Beu and Wilcox in the bronze type, also Christmas Gold, an unusually late variety of the yellow button type. Paper Whites are more plentiful now and not especially profitable to the growers, when those that come blind are taken into consideration. Premier, Columbia and Mme. Butterfly roses are in better color and sell out clean.

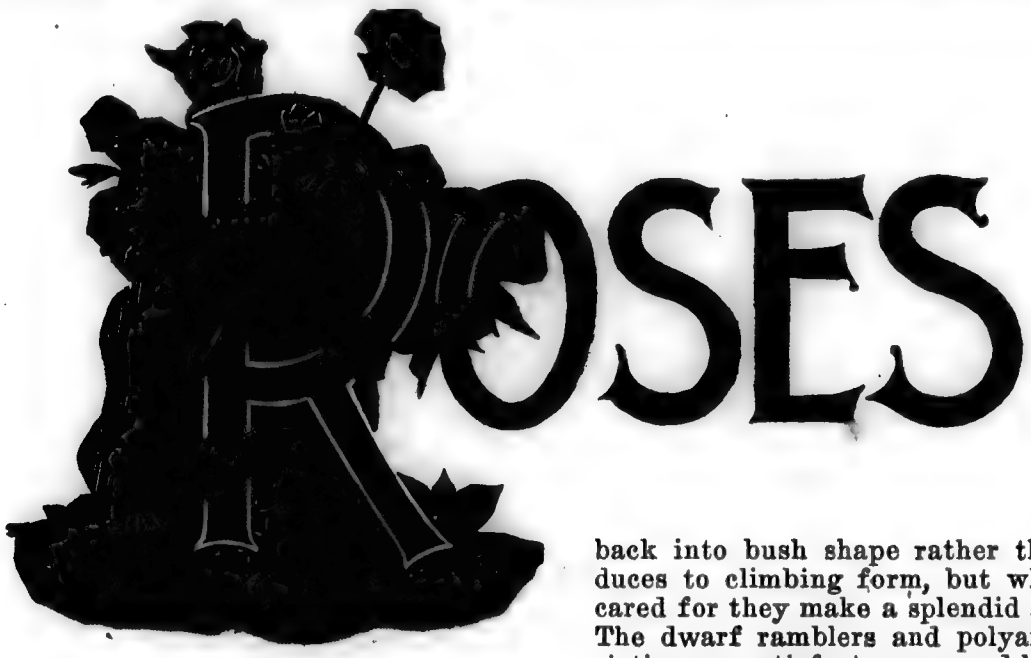
The coal shortage has caused some uneasiness, but up to December 6 no restrictions had been ordered in this district and as a result business did not feel the shrinkage that would have taken place if the public had become ultraconservative. Short business hours for the retailer with Christmas in sight and a scarcity of good help to handle the rush to be waited upon in the limited space of time would make for a condition long to be remembered.

Various Notes.

Gustav Adrian, Price Hill, has a fine stock of the white mum, Mistletoe, that will be in good condition for Christmas business. Mr. Adrian has also a large bench of Christmas Gold, from which he is cutting daily.

Herbert Greensmith & Son, landscape gardeners, West Price Hill, report good business in hardy plants and shrubs, but they have been seriously handicapped by the heavy rains.

Mrs. E. H. Fries, Fort Thomas, Ky., has a fine stock of carnations, from which a good crop is being cut at present.



Edward Forter had the house and church decorations for the Shillito wedding.

Louis H. Kyrk, wholesaler, who has been seriously ill for the last two weeks, is improving rapidly now and will soon been in normal health again. Mr. Kyrk is handling a fine grade of stevia and boxwood, which meets with ready sale.

H. E. K.

W. C. Schaefer has been sending some excellent stevia and Paper White narcissi to C. E. Critchell. The cut is from Mr. Schaefer's new place.

Among recent visitors were Julius Dilloff, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York; F. C. W. Brown, of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland; Martin Weber, Brookville, Ind.; C. P. Brunner, Springfield, O.; J. W. Rodgers, Dayton, O., and Joseph Hill, Richmond, Ind. C. H. H.

HOME-GROWN MANETTI STOCKS.

We have a quantity of Irish Manetti growing on our place. The plants are four feet or more in height. Would there be any demand for plants grown from these and what is the method of getting stock plants in shape suitable for grafting purposes? B. F. C.—Ga.

The tops of the Manetti in question, made into cuttings eight or ten inches long and placed in the ground in late winter or early spring, should make suitable stocks for grafting the following November. It is best to remove the eyes from the cuttings, except the upper two or three; this is the method practiced by the growers in Europe. A not too rich soil, preferably a sandy loam, is best suited for the purpose; a too rich soil causes too much growth.

There will be no question about the demand for Manetti at fair prices for the next few years. Drought and wartime disarrangement of help have caused the price of Manetti to mount unprecedentedly this year, but Manetti will always bring a good price.

HARDY CLIMBING ROSES.

What climbing roses are hardy in the vicinity of Chicago and New York, especially among the rambler type, as Tausendschoen? Are the Banksiæ absolutely hardy?

This may seem a simple question to you, but as our experiences have been mostly in California, where all roses are hardy, we wish to be certain in regard to the matter. I. J.—Cal.

There is a considerable difference between the climatic conditions of New York and Chicago. In the vicinity of New York and along the Atlantic seaboard a great many roses can be grown that will not do well around Chicago. This we believe to be due to dry summers, drier atmosphere and lack of moisture in Chicago as compared with the eastern states. The middle west also sometimes has severe winters, accompanied by piercing winds and little snow, which is not good for outdoor roses. But most of the rambler roses are hardy and do well around Chicago when given special attention in the form of pinching back the strongest growths during the early summer and mulching the beds well so as to protect the roots from the extreme heat. This pinching back of the shoots throws the plants back into bush shape rather than conduces to climbing form, but when well cared for they make a splendid showing. The dwarf ramblers and polyantha varieties are satisfactory around both Chicago and New York if protected with covering during the winter and given early attention in the spring, being uncovered before they have made any new growth and the dead wood cut out. But it would be folly to expect to see climbing roses around either Chicago or New York to compare with those of California or the other Pacific coast states. Once in a while we have seasons when the roses around Chicago and New York compare favorably with those of more fortunate localities, but we cannot count on this for every season.

The variety Tausendschoen will stand our winters with slight protection; much of the wood will freeze back, but when cared for will make fine bushes. The Banksiæ roses will not stand the winters north of Philadelphia.

All the types of Wichuraiana, the Dorothy Perkins type, including American Pillar, Dr. Van Fleet and Silver Moon, are perfectly hardy in the vicinity of New York city.

ROSES FOR SPRING HOLIDAYS.

When should tree roses with hybrid tea heads be started in a carnation temperature to have them in bloom for Easter and for Memorial day?

E. A. R.—Ill.

For Easter start your roses ten weeks in advance of that date. In a temperature of 60 degrees a shorter period is needed. For Memorial day keep the plants as near dormant as possible in a cold pit or cellar and move under glass early in April. As soon as the Easter stock is out of the way, give them the space that stock has occupied. C. W.

PINCHING FOR BIG CROPS.

Will you please tell me when to pinch Killarney and Ophelia roses for Christmas blooming? How many days do you calculate for the Easter pinch? When is the best time to give them feed, when you pinch them or after they make their break or when they start to set bud? L. V.—Ohio.

Pinch Killarney and Ophelia about October 22 for a Christmas crop and about seven weeks before to have a crop for Easter. Feed after the break and after they set buds. W. J. K.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

Work of the Committees.

The examining committees of the C. S. A. have submitted reports on new varieties as follows:

At Chicago, November 15, Frank Wilcox, Jr., golden bronze, pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 36; form, 19; stem and foliage, 18; fullness, 19; total, 92.

At Chicago, December 1, Sunbeam, yellow, Japanese incurved, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows on the commercial scale: Color, 18; form, 14; fullness, 8; stem, 14; foliage, 13; substance, 13; size, 8; total, 88.

Chas. W. Johnson, Sec'y.

THRIPS CHIEF TROUBLE.

We would much appreciate it if you could give us any idea of what is the trouble with our mums this season and how it might have been avoided. We are sending a few roots showing a peculiar growth which affected many of the plants. There was also a mite which infested the leaves of many of them, as you will see.

The soil was a light, sandy bottomland soil, taken from the edge of a friend's grain field and but a few feet from the river's edge. This was composted with one-half as many loads of mixed fresh and half-rotted manure (both cow and horse) about August 15, 1918. October 15 this was all cut down and piled over, and it was shoveled over again December 24. The first week in June we put about an inch of thoroughly rotted manure into the benches; this we finely pulverized and on it we put the soil, about five or six inches deep. Early in the spring we engaged our mum plants to be shipped out of 2½-inch pots June 15. June 30 we received a check from the grower, saying that he couldn't furnish them.

We then got busy and picked up, wherever we could find them, sufficient to fill our benches. Some were apparently splendid plants, others were weak and spindling and still others were hard and woody. Many were covered with livestock of various kinds and descriptions. Practically all were dipped in a strong nicotine solution as they were set. This cleared them of everything but this mite. He grows fat on nicotine and really seems to enjoy hydrocyanic acid gas.

While some of the plants did fairly well, there are some that are no larger today than when set. All were given a thorough soaking as soon as set and then left to get fairly dry and again soaked. This course was followed the entire season, with the top of the soil stirred usually about once a week. Nevertheless, they never seemed to get hold of the soil and when lifted the roots wouldn't have filled the 2¼-inch pots they were taken from originally. Fearing an acidity in the soil, we made a litmus test, but found scarcely a trace. Notwithstanding the test, we gave one bench a good application of air-slaked lime, with no results. One bench seemed to start; so we pinched the tops out about two weeks after setting and these pretty nearly refused to break at all. These were given a liquid application of nitrate of soda, but we could never see that it did any good.

Our blooms, even on these mite-infested plants, have been of good substance, form and color, but oh, so small; a 4-inch or 5-inch bloom being a whopper, while many we bunched and sold like pompons. Our assortment, picked up here and there as it was, presented a motley array in varieties and it is a toss-up which did the best, or the worst. And the fact that my pompons, of a dozen varieties, both pot and bench, did the same way and are similarly affected and infected makes it all the more puzzling, particularly as vegetable plants set in this same soil last spring did splendidly and my cinerarias now growing in it are fine. Any information, suggestions or advice you can give will be gratefully received. R. G.—Ill.

The chrysanthemum plants were badly infested with thrips, which I think was the principal cause of the trouble. The leaves also showed traces of red spider. I am of the opinion that the plants when received were too hard and woody for you to be able to make much out of them and according to the method of culture followed the plants did not receive enough moisture. During their growing season in particular, chrysanthemums growing under glass require a liberal amount of moisture both at the roots and overhead and if not given it they are bound to become stunted and infested with thrips and red spider. M. P.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Business during the last week has been somewhat irregular, with a good supply of seasonable stock at the wholesale markets. Calls from outside points have been strong and good shipping orders have been reported. All stock consigned to this market during the week was of excellent quality. Prices were high. There are still plenty of mums coming in daily and they have the call over any of the other seasonable cut flowers. All the late varieties are in and the fancy stock cleans up every day, especially the Bonnaffons and Eatons. All pompons sell well and the market has ample supply in these.

Roses are coming along nicely and the crop shortage was noticed all the week. Premier, Russell and Ophelia are of excellent quality; extra fancies bring as high as $30 per hundred. White roses have had an exceptionally big call, owing to the many weddings of late. Carnations, too, are much short of the demand and have been for the last two weeks. A good crop is expected for Christmas. The dark days last week did not help the crop. Orchids have been in fair supply, but high in price. The same may be said of lilies of the valley. No lilies to be had in this market. Few callas are coming in at present.

Excellent stevia and fine calendulas are in good supply. A fine cut of bouvardia was in last week and sold well. Sweet peas are not as many as the trade would like and the few coming in sell at sight. Paper White and yellow narcissi are in plenty. White snapdragons are equal to the demand. The sales of greens have been large, as the demand for almost anything green has been strong. Wild smilax and boxwood had large demands all the week and will have all this month.

Various Notes

The St. Louis County Growers' Association, at its regular monthly meeting December 3, discussed some interesting questions. Among them was that of the coal situation, which brought out the fact that the majority of the members present had laid in a good supply during the summer months. Discussion of Thanksgiving business and the Christmas crop brought out some interesting points. The meeting was not so well attended as was expected, but the few present spent a most enjoyable evening. At the first meeting in the new year, January 7, the attendance should be large.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners had a large attendance at the meeting held December 3 at the municipal greenhouses. President Jensen presided over the meeting. The discussion on park management, led by Ernest Strehle, superintendent of parks, was interesting throughout. This, with a discussion of park floral displays led by John Moritz, head of the municipal greenhouses, held the members until late, as both were interesting and educational. Secretary Schaff says meetings of this kind bring out the members. At the January meeting will be other discussions which should bring a good attendance for the first meeting in the new year.

The trade extended their sympathy to Henry G. Berning last week in the loss of his father, John Berning, whose death is reported in the obituary column this week.

Frank X. Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, is spending a few days in Chicago this week looking up stock for the coming holidays. Business is reported excellent at this store.

Henry Ostertag, head of Ostertag Bros., says he will take a trip to California after the holidays for the benefit of his health. His son, Charles, will be in charge in his absence. They have booked a number of good-sized decorations for this month.

Al Gumz and W. A. Rowe returned from their hunting trip early the last week and brought back 125 rabbits, so many in the trade had rabbit dinners during the week.

Vandervoort's floral department has a wonderful display of Christmas goods. Mr. Schaeffer says they expect one of the best Christmas businesses in years if advance orders count for anything.

The state fair premium committee held a meeting at the board of education December 4, which was presided over by H. C. Irish, chairman. All were in attendance and a large and attractive premium list was prepared for floriculture at next year's state fair.

As Chairman George Asmus, of the national flower show committee, will be in the city this week, Chairman Jules Bourdet says the local national flower show committee will meet with him and transact such business as is laid out for them.

The local rose growers expect to be in crop for Christmas. A. S. Cerny is cutting some fine Premier, W. J. Pilcher excellent Russell, and John Steidle good Ophelia. Otto Bruenig has a fine cut of both Premier and Ophelia and Werner Bros. good Ward, Killarney and Columbia.

Phil Goebel, Jr., of Webster Groves, as usual, is in with a fine cut of Major Bonnaffon this season and a large cut of other varieties. He says the coal situation has no terrors for him, as he is supplied for the season.

The publicity committee has been doing good work since the season opened. The large and small daily advertisements in all daily papers have been attractive and the retailers have commended them highly, as their customers have been "Saying It with Flowers" for all occasions. This committee met December 9 and those in charge submitted several prepared copies for the approval of the members of the committee.

The floral displays at the Missouri Botanical Garden and the municipal greenhouses this week consist of Christmas blooms and the attendance at both places has been large. These displays educate the public what to buy for Christmas.

The bowlers who compose the "Say It with Flowers" League had a great time December 3, when the Carnations won three games from the Daisies after giving them a 35-pin handicap and the Roses won three games from the Sweet Peas. The Roses got a 1-pin handicap. It's a great race for first place. The Roses and Carnations each have won sixteen games. The Sweet Peas are four games out of first place and the Daisies within five games of the leaders. J. J. B.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

With supply and demand about equal as far as clearances are concerned, the market is strong. While a few items in supply are on the scarce side, the movement of others in abundance is accelerated in consequence. Prices show a tendency to advance as supply shortens and buyers are speculating as to prospects when the chrysanthemum supply is ended. The outlook for the Christmas supply of cut flowers favors the growers, there being every indication of a shortage in the holiday cut. In some lines pre-war holiday prices are already in evidence.

The supply of chrysanthemums is diminishing. Standard varieties are showing good quality, and top grades bring 75 cents per bloom, with exhibition sorts at $1. Singles and pompons are in good demand at from 50 cents to $1 per bunch. There is a good deal of stock of the bench-clearance quality available, and no difficulty is experienced in its movement.

American Beauty roses are not plentiful, but there is sufficient stock to go around. Prices continue about the same as last reported, $75 to $125 per hundred for the best specials, the latter figure applying to selected stock. The supply of hybrid teas is not at all heavy, and after early morning sales are made little stock is left, and this easily clears out at the prices for the day. The short grades are not plentiful, and the demand for them keeps prices up to a point above normal. The quality is generally good.

There is a larger supply of carnations, and the demand for them has increased with an improvement in the quality of the offerings. The range of prices is $6 to $10, the latter figure being for Mrs. C. W. Ward and Benora.

Cattleyas continue scarce and high in price, and there is little prospect of a change in these conditions. Cypripediums are plentiful and move rather slowly at times, at $4 to $6 per dozen according to the variety. Spray orchids are quite scarce and arrivals are taken freely at prices hardly quotable. A little lilac has come in, but it is not yet an important item. There is still a scarcity of gardenias, and the best of the arrivals bring $9 per dozen, with a few selected flowers as high as $1 per bloom. The supply of Easter lilies does not seem to increase; apparently this staple can no longer be reckoned on as in daily supply. The situation as regards lily of the valley, too, is unchanged, the extremely small supply commanding almost prohibitive prices. A few rubrums continue to arrive and bring $6 to $10 per hundred.

Sweet peas are in fair supply and the quality is better than it has been for some time; they move well at from $2 to $5 per hundred sprays. Violets are in good supply and are taken freely when of good quality, at prices ranging from 75 cents to $1.50 per hundred. Paper Whites at 50 cents per bunch and the yellow Soleil d'Or at 50 to 75 cents per bunch move fairly well, as do also snapdragons at 50 cents to $1.50 per bunch. Calendulas, yellow daisies, pink bouvardia, wallflowers, mignonette and stevia are also available and clean up well.

Various Notes.

The recent death, in Havana, Cuba, of George M. Bradt brings to mind the famous variegated carnation which was named for his wife about twenty years ago.

The Von Tilzer song, "Say It with Flowers," was rendered before the Kiwanis Club at the Hotel McAlpin Wednesday, December 10. The publisher of a similar song, which was a feature of the entertainment at the president's reception during the Detroit convention, Meyer Cohen, died last week in Detroit.

Malmaison carnations are being featured in the window displays in Fleischman's store at Fifth avenue and Forty-second street.

The final schedule of prizes for the international flower show, to be held in the Grand Central Palace next March, is being distributed from the secretary's office, 1170 Broadway. The schedule contains the cut flower premiums, announcement of which has usually been made later.

A collection of gas in the conduit system along Broadway exploded Friday night, December 5, putting the electric lighting system in the neighborhood of Twenty-eighth street out of commission and doing much damage to Broadway buildings. As a result, the wholesale florists of the district were doing business by candle light Saturday. The building containing the offices of the S. A. F. had several of its windows shattered.

Schneider & Noe, the carnation growers of Congers, N. Y., have for some time been using a method of fastening their shipping boxes which has proved satisfactory and does away with the use of roping. They use a broad strap with encircling straps sewn on at the ends and the middle, with buckle fastenings. This "harness" looks much like two E's back to back. The "harness" is quickly attached to a box and as quickly removed, is always ready, lasts a long time and is inexpensive.

Frank R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., was featured in the rotogravure section of the Sunday World November 29 under the general caption, "'Mr. Mayor' of the Suburbs." He is being congratulated upon the excellence of the portrait, although his friends say they have never seen him in the act of cutting flowers, whereas the newspaper credits him with growing 10,000,000 roses every year.

Recent visitors to this city were as follows: R. C. Bridgham, Newton Rose Conservatories, Newtonville, Mass.; Major P. F. O'Keefe, Boston; J. G. Gammage, London, Ont., and B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass.

A lecture on "Korea and its Vegetation" will be delivered by E. H. Wilson at the meeting of the Horticultural Society of New York, Wednesday, December 17, at 8 p. m., at the American Museum of Natural History, Seventy-seventh street and Central park, west. Mr. Wilson is assistant director of the

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

ARCHIBALD M. HENSHAW.

FROM the mercantile marine to the florists' business is a wide jump, but Lieutenant-Commander Archibald M. Henshaw, head of the Henshaw Floral Co., New York, and president-elect of the New York Florists' Club, has made it twice. Born in Bristol, England, in 1877, after finishing a public school education he followed the sea for two years. Then he came to this country and spent six months with John N. May at Summit, N. J., and two years at the Taplin place at Maywood, N. J., going later to Atlanta, Ga., where he remained with the West View Floral Co. a year. The lure of the sea again asserted itself and he spent the next six years afloat, encircling the world in his travels and retiring with a first officer's certificate. The florists' business once more called him and he spent some years with Henshaw Bros., Springfield, N. J., leaving his brothers to engage with Young & Nugent, New York. Subsequently he engaged in business on his own account; later, in 1908, he joined Joseph S. Fenrich in the partnership of Henshaw & Fenrich. In 1916 he promoted the Henshaw Floral Co., to conduct a profit-sharing business on wholesale lines. Early in 1917 he volunteered in the United States Naval Reserve and spent most of his two years' service in British and French waters, rising to the rank of lieutenant-commander. J. H. P.

Arnold Arboretum, Jamaica Plain, Mass. He has spent more than twenty years in exploring and collecting the flora of the far east. Of this period eleven years have been devoted to western and central China and three more to Japan and its outlying imperial possessions and to Korea. A part of the results of this work has been the addition to the gardens of America and Europe of nearly 2,000 species, a larger number of introductions than anyone else can claim. All are invited to attend. Interesting or unusual plants or flowers may be brought to the meeting and facilities will be supplied for their display. A fund has been placed at the disposal of the exhibition committee for the purpose of awarding prizes to worthy exhibits.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

As is quite customary after a period of big business such as was seen in this city for Thanksgiving, trade has fallen off considerably. Practically everything that was in sight was picked for that event and consequently the market was not at all crowded with flowers last week; perhaps fortunately, the demand has been slower. Chrysanthemums, which have been quite plentiful this fall, are slowly diminishing in supply and only a few reach the market each day. They are the Bonnaffons and some white and pink varieties; these, being the last of the season, are not specially good. Several varieties of pompons are seen and sell readily. The daily shipments of roses arrive in fine condition and are of excellent quality. Columbia is in good supply and long-stemmed stock brings good prices. The medium grade is in the best demand. Ophelia, Ward, Sunburst, Russell, Maryland and the Killarneys are also in good demand and are bringing winter prices. Excellent Hoosier Beauties are seen, but are not in large supply; however, the outlook for Christmas is quite encouraging. The supply of carnations is good, but not overlarge. They arrive chiefly in pink and white. Prices continue good. Paper Whites and yellow narcissi are on the market, but not in heavy supply. Violets, both the Californian and those from the eastern growers, are not selling so readily as they might, although their quality is good. Cypripediums arrive in large supply and are of high quality. These sell fairly well. Sweet peas are not seen frequently in this market and lilies are also scarce. There is a good supply of stevia arriving, and the market for it is good. Smilax, Asparagus plumosus, boxwood and other greens are plentiful. There is a slim showing of good potted plants, but the growers promise good stock for the holidays. Some of the Christmas greens, such as ground pine, laurel roping and boxwood, are arriving daily and are selling well.

Florists' Association.

The Rochester Florists' Association is facing calamity unless some strong effort is put forward to save the life of this once active society. In order that a good representation of its members should be present at a meeting to decide on its continuance or otherwise, the committee arranged among themselves a dinner and put on a boxing match at the Osborn House Wednesday evening, December 3. Over 100 members attended and an especially pleasant evening was spent. Vocal, elocution and trick artists were also in attendance. The question of changing the place of meeting was taken up and is being favorably considered, since a good room, well carpeted, heated and lighted, is offered by the manager of the Osborn House at a reasonable rent. The next meeting will be held Friday, January 9, 1920.

Various Notes.

Among the visitors who called on the local tradesmen last week were Charles Felton, of the Felton Flower Shop, Buffalo, N. Y.; Manuel Oppenheim, of Olean, N. Y., and Harry H. Brandt, of Wertheimer Bros., New York.

Horace J. Head, representing George B. Hart, has just returned to the city, having had a successful business trip in the provinces of Quebec and Ontario, Canada.

The Utica-Rochester Floral Co. has recently moved to 109 North street. The store is lighter and considerably larger, and is better adapted to the firm's needs. Business is good, having been exceptional for Thanksgiving.

All the downtown stores are making preparation for the big rush which will soon be upon us. Baskets of artificial flowers and Christmas greens are seen on every hand, while strawflowers worked up into artistic creations are seen in all flower stores. Sales for these are good.

LOWELL, MASS.

The Market.

The weather has for several weeks been dark and cloudy, which has curtailed production and depressed quality. For the last few days, however, it has been bright and sunny, with a night temperature about 20 degrees above zero. Flowers are not numerous here either in quantity or in the number of varieties.

At Tewksbury.

The M. A. Patten Co., Tewksbury, Mass., has already got a large amount of carnations rooted and in soil. This firm expects to propagate considerably more than it did last year; one order alone calls for 100,000 to be delivered at various periods. Mr. Patten considers the two varieties, Aviator and Belle Washburn, especially profitable, as they are abundant croppers and have good-sized blooms. A good white is the variety Benora; in many respects it is superior to Matchless, since the former remains pure white all through the season, while the latter kind comes with pink streaks and often a good many singles. Harold Patten, for the last five years, except when he was with the army, has taken care of the propagating end of the business at this establishment.

This firm has a fine bench of Godfrey callas, of which there are over 4,000 plants in pots and which have bloomed remarkably well this fall and are still blooming. The Californian maidenhair fern is in good shape and is a profitable variety to grow. Many cypripediums were noticed to be blooming freely.

Wilbur Patten went November 25 by boat to Savannah, Ga., thence by train to Lakeland, near Tampa, Fla., at which town Mr. Patten has an orange grove, which he purchased about a year ago; he has built a residence there with the intention of making that his permanent home, as the climate agrees with him. M. A. Patten intends eventually to dispose of the range at Tewksbury, to enable the family to be together. In addition to building a range of large and up-to-date houses, workrooms, etc., with twenty acres of land, this firm has an enviable reputation as growers of choice stock. It has a large quantity of begonias of the variety Mrs. M. A. Patten, in both pans and pots. This is a fine Christmas variety.

Various Notes.

Mark Roper is cutting good carnations, which are not plentiful, however, owing to weather conditions. The sweet peas at this range are exceptionally good and will soon reach the top of his high houses. Mr. Roper has been cutting for several weeks and expects to have a good crop for the Christmas trade. This firm ships the bulk of its output to Boston commission salesmen.

John Gale is having a good crop of carnation Winkler's Morning Glow. This variety, while not a large bloom, is a good producer. He still has a great number of Bonnaffon, Seidewitz and other varieties of mums. Mr. Gale opened his new garage, cement and steel construction, for business December 8.

Miss Emma Stephens sang at B. F. Keith's theater last week and scored a great success with the new and increasingly popular song, "Say It with Flowers." James J. McManmon one evening presented her with a bouquet of flowers.

Frank P. Putnam has just finished cutting the last of his single mums and is using the space for anemones and ranunculus.

Hershon Oliver and Clayton Colby have left the employment of the Morse & Beals Co.

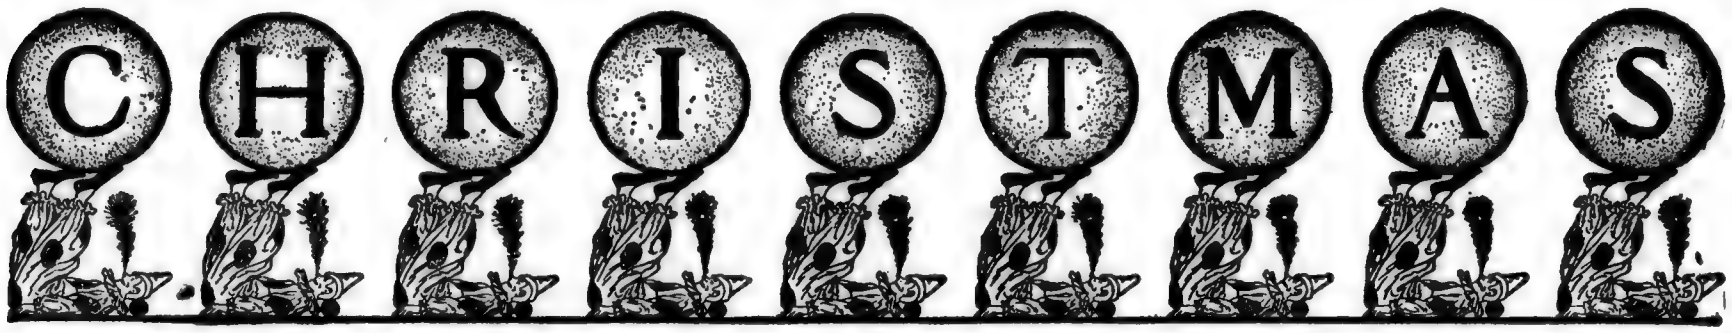
GREEN CALLA BUDS.

We are sending you under separate cover three calla lily buds. You will notice that these buds are green in color and our entire stock of callas is like this. When they are opening they seem to bind in the center and when in full bloom there is a green tinge to them. We had the same trouble last year, but thought the bulbs were chilled before they were brought into the greenhouse. he plants have a vigorous growth and are in a good clay loam, well fertilized. We shall appreciate any information you can give us regarding them.



Q. C. F. S.—Mich.

The cause of the trouble with these callas is a puzzle, since I have never met with a similar experience, but I am inclined to believe that you are not giving them enough heat or that they are affected by escaping gas or fumes of some kind. I should advise raising the temperature for them and watering more liberally at the roots.

M. P.

Sapulpa, Okla.—M. Edgar West expects to grow flowers in his greenhouse instead of lettuce as at present.

Waterloo, N. Y.—Mildred A. Tobey has gone out of business, being succeeded by her mother, Mrs. Hattie Tobey.

NEWS, NOTES AND COMMENTS

Vermilion, S. D.—C. D. Tanner has a greenhouse 20x70 feet, and is engaged in market gardening.

Painted Post, N. Y.—M. F. Darcy has started in business, having recently completed a greenhouse.

Mercer, Pa.—Joseph F. Nelson has bought the flower and market gardening business of S. P. Smith.

Rhinelander, Wis.—W. B. Creasey is engaged in buying, gathering and selling ornamental evergreen material.

Concordia, Kan.—The Concordia Greenhouses are rebuilding their range of houses and adding a palm house.

Carrollton, Ill.—George Cocroft has bought a greenhouse and is going to start in business in a neighboring town.

Springfield, Mo.—Mrs. E. E. Smith has bought David Wiseman's nursery and gardens and expects to continue the business.

Eureka, Kan.—L. Vanhaverbeke is adding a propagating house, 10x100 feet, to the Eureka Greenhouses, of which he is proprietor.

Manitowoc, Wis.—Three greenhouses containing an aggregate of 8,000 feet of glass have been completed for the M. G. Madson Seed Co.

Finleyville, Pa.—William R. McKean is beginning his fourth year of business with 5,000 feet of glass and nine acres in fruit and garden truck.

Blissfield, Mich.—Julius Sprunk has started in the business here with a house 14 x 42, devoted to pot plants. He plans to build another house 18 x 60 next summer.

Cannon Falls, Minn.—The Anderson Greenhouse is adding 10,000 feet of glass to its range, using material supplied by the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. Clyde M. Young, formerly with the Kemble Floral Co., Oelwein, Ia., is in charge.

Aberdeen, S. D.—Although the Workman building, 205 South Main street, has been sold by Mrs. J. C. Workman to Peter J. Pagones and William A. Laliotis, the business of Milady's Flower Shop and of the other tenants will not be disturbed.

Hamilton, O.—Paragraphs in the local Odd Fellows' bulletin are the means which Dr. A. C. Carney uses to spread the gospel of "Say It with Flowers." ECONOMY of fuel frequently has two merits; it not only saves its cost but it results in a better quality of output.

BOTH bouquet green and holly are in smaller supply than in many years, with prices the highest in the history of the trade.

AS a trade, florists should be anxious for the continuation of high wages. Good pay for the people means prosperity for us.

JOHN YOUNG, the trade's greatest secretary, will be 51 years of age December 17. He has served the New York Florists' Club half his lifetime.

THE Pink Part in this issue of The Review consists of forty well-filled pages. The live retailers and imitative publishers know a good thing when they see it.

ON the steamer Hatteras, from Marseilles, which arrived at New York December 3, were 329 cases of immortelles. Twenty-five were consigned to the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, 124 to the American Express Co., 160 to the Philadelphia National Bank and twenty to B. Rosens & Bro.

THE annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association will be held in Chicago Thursday afternoon, January 29, in connection with the American Carnation Society's meeting and show. The state organization is making a drive for life members in its ranks and the S. A. F. together at the combined rate of $35 before January 1, striving for the 100 members needed to put the president on the executive board of the S. A. F.

MODESTLY refuting a correspondent's statements in The Review, Charles P. Mueller, of Wichita, Kan., states that while he is on the board of education, a Rotarian, director of the board of commerce and interested in many other civic institutions, he does not aspire to the head of any of them. The only leadership Mr. Mueller claims is a trade one—that he is the largest grower of cut flowers in the state of Kansas. Mr. Mueller regards the coal situation in his state so seriously that he is installing oil burners in order to save his stock.

THERE seems to be nothing which leads more frequently to dissatisfaction than do dealings in rooted cuttings of geraniums.

THE president of the American Dahlia Society will celebrate his seventy-sixth birthday anniversary at White Marsh December 16.

THE facile pen of James McLaughlin makes the monthly bulletin of the wholesale store of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, something for reading as well as for reference.

THE BIGGEST CHRISTMAS.

After enjoying a Thanksgiving business which broke all records for that holiday and also for some holidays previously considered more important, florists are preparing for Christmas sales which will be the biggest in the trade's history. Just as the various impediments of industry this season have failed to hinder the sale of flowers, so, some believe, will the difficulties of the present situation fail to restrict holiday sales. How veracious is such prediction is yet to be seen, but the trade has not hesitated in its preparations for unprecedented business at this time. Fears are more often expressed by farsighted individuals that preparation will prove insufficient than that it will have been overdone.

Certainly this issue of The Review reflects the trade's belief in a holiday business that will surpass all previous ones. For this week's issue exceeds in size not only all previous Christmas numbers, but all previous regular or special numbers of The Review as well. There never has been so large an issue published before in the history of the florists' trade. Though the growth, like that of the trade, is everywhere, an important part of it is in the Pink Section, which this week fills forty pages, or twenty-five per cent more than it ever occupied before. It is a matter of satisfaction to its readers and advertisers that the growth of The Review keeps pace with that of the trade.

HOW DOES THIS ONE SUIT?

One of the chief compensations for the work of publishing The Review is knowledge that so many members of the trade watch this paper's progress with friendly interest. Like this:

About a dozen years ago, in renewing my subscription, I congratulated the editor on the great strides the paper was making, from the first edition, of thirty-six pages, if I remember right, to the then ninety-six pages, and I said I would soon be looking for 150 pages or even 200 pages in the not distant future. Well, the 150-page weekly is here—no doubt about that—the last few issues prove it. Now please hurry up with those other pages, for I want to see a 200-page issue before I die. I have been a subscriber from the start and I do not see how it would be possible for any florist to get along without The Review.—John Beimford, Norton, Kan., November 28, 1919.

Because of the number of readers who have shown interest in the paper's progress, The Review talks about itself more than it otherwise would and this seems an opportune time to say that further increase in the number of pages will depend on the ability to procure advertising copy further in advance of the date of publication. When a publication grows to a size of 150 pages, or more, each week it is impossible to maintain a force capable of setting the type in one or two days. Composition must go on continuously through the week.

At present the bulk of the advertising copy for each issue of The Review comes to hand Monday and Tuesday. The composing room is "buried" then and highly expensive overtime is necessary to maintain the prompt service which has been given. There are two simple ways of meeting the situation: The one adopted by trade papers in other lines is to require all advertising copy to be in far enough ahead to leave comfortable time for the typesetting (the Saturday Evening Post requires copy six weeks in advance of publication), in which case an adequate force of typesetters can be continuously employed. But this slowing up of the service can be avoided if advertisers will make it their general practice to place copy in the printers' hands Thursday, Friday or Saturday; then the way can be kept open to take care of the patron whose instructions are unavoidably delayed to Monday or even Tuesday—the first forms go on the presses Tuesday evening.

GLASS PRICES UP FARTHER?

"One of the largest producers of window glass, representing a big percentage of the entire production of window glass in this country, withdrew from the market until further notice a few days ago," states a commercial journal. "At the end of the present manufacturing season factory stocks will be small and poorly assorted. Jobbers' stocks will be in like condition. Resumption of operations in glass factories will begin early in January, 1920, and a more evenly balanced production is looked for in the next manufacturing season, as well as an increased production over the 1918-1919 period. As stocks decrease and cutting of larger sizes becomes necessary to meet the unexpected market conditions at this time of the year, consumers may expect prices to increase proportionately."

IT'S UP TO YOU.

In every large city there is one recognized Classified medium, rarely two. Everybody knows that the same ad inserted in the Classified section of two or three newspapers will produce widely varying results, a pack of answers from one and little or nothing from the others. It is enough that the people of the community understand the fact; they care nothing for the reason.

That the same conditions exist in trade paper fields is only partially appreciated. Of course there are hundreds, even thousands, who recognize the pulling power of Classified ads in The Review, but there are other hundreds, especially in the extreme east, who have not applied that knowledge. They might, as well as not, have for themselves results like these:

We have sold our stock, thanks to The Review.—W. J. Evenden's Sons, Williamsport, Pa., November 28, 1919.

Stop the ads; we are sold out of stock.—Kalisch Bros. Floral Co., St. Louis, Mo., December 3, 1919.

We are all sold out on the items advertised in The Review.—L. F. Benson, Indianapolis, Ind., November 28, 1919.

We did not stop the ad soon enough, as orders are still coming in, after we are entirely sold out.—M. Phillip Co., Wausau, Wis., December 1, 1919.

We received so many more orders than we could fill that to return the unfilled orders actually cost us as much as we paid for the Classified ad in The Review.—Carter & Son, Mount Holly, N. J., December 1, 1919.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

Lyman H. Potter.

Lyman H. Potter died suddenly at his home in Waukegan, Ill., Sunday afternoon, November 30, at the age of 66 years. Death followed a slight stroke of paralysis, which came while he was watering plants in the greenhouse the previous Monday. He had seemed to recover, but his heart was not equal to the strain.

Mr. Potter was born in New York state, but lived a large part of his life in Waukegan, where for the last twenty-five years he had conducted a greenhouse on the corner of Oakley avenue and Center street. His son, Harold, has been associated with him in the business under the name of L. H. Potter & Son.

He is survived by two sons and two daughters: Harold; Claude, of Lacon, Ill.; Mrs. Lena Potter, of Waukegan, and Mrs. Amanda Thompson, of North Chicago. The funeral took place Tuesday, December 2, followed by interment in Millburn cemetery. After the regular services, the Masons took charge, since Mr. Potter had been a member of that order for many years, belonging to the Blue Lodge, Royal Arch and Commandery.

William F. Hanna.

William F. Hanna, for many years in the trade in Cleveland, O., succumbed to cancer December 4. He had been ill for the last six years and the last two and a half years he had been at home constantly. He leaves a wife and a daughter.

Mr. Hanna was born in Cleveland in 1861 and was one of Cleveland's oldest florists. He received his schooling with Harris Janes, at the Opera House block, when 18 years of age and was in business for himself for thirty-three years at East Ninety-third and Union, where he had greenhouses and a store. He was well known among the Cleveland trade and was liked by all who knew him either in a business way or as a friend.

The funeral was held from the home, on Union avenue, Saturday afternoon, December 6. W. F. B.

John Berning.

John Berning, father of Henry G. Berning, the St. Louis wholesaler, died November 30 at the age of 81 after a lingering illness. Mr. Berning was known to all in the trade in St. Louis as Daddy Berning and all were his friends. The funeral took place December 2 and was attended by many in the trade; beautiful floral emblems filled the room. Six employees of his son's wholesale establishment acted as pallbearers. The remains were laid to rest in St. Marcus cemetery. J. J. B.

Sidney Beard.

Sidney Beard, of Beard Bros., Detroit, Mich., died at the Harper hospital, Detroit, as the result of injuries to his back and head sustained when the smokestack of his range blew over, crashing through the roof of his home, during the severe storm November 29. Mr. Beard's back was broken by the falling stack. He was taken to the hospital unconscious and did not recover.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Anyone who is short of flowers can get stock in the Chicago market; get stock, that is, unless, perchance, he calls for only the few scarce items.

The week has been one of the most remarkable in the history of the Chicago market, comparable only to the times of the heatless Mondays and the days of the big snow blockade twe years ago. It has been a matter of much surprise that, under all the circumstances, business has been extremely heavy. The demand has been principally from out of town, most of the local retailers reporting a sharp reduction in their sales as the result of the severe weather and the subsequent orders to reduce light and heat. It has been the shipping trade which has saved the market. Time after time it is demonstrated that the security of the growers who send their stock here rests on the wide distribution obtained by the enterprising wholesalers.

It was December 5 that the State Public Utilities Commission, as a means of meeting conditions growing out of the coal strike, ordered the electric light company to turn off the current of all factories and stores which did not observe the reduced hours prescribed by the commission. Several times since then the orders have been changed in the attempt to make the short hours fit the convenience of the greatest number, but florists in general have maintained practically the customary hours. The heatless Mondays taught the trade how to carry on under such a handicap. In many cases the 2-year-old equipment was brought out and in other cases new means of partial illumination was found. The wholesalers were able to take care of all business that came their way, even if some of it was done in a half light, but the retailers have greatly reduced their purchases and most of them report their business seriously affected, even though their stores are open the usual number of hours.

President George Asmus, Secretary John G. Wittbold and J. L. Raske, representing the Retail Florists' Association, had an early conference with Secretary Evans of the Public Utilities Commission. They sought to ascertain the exact status of flower stores under the commission's short hour orders. It was pointed out to them that the commission had no power to prescribe the hours of business in any such establishment, but that it had authority to order the public service companies to cut off light during certain hours of the day. The florists were told that they were at liberty to keep their places open as long as they pleased provided they did not use gas or electric light outside the limitations put on all business. They were asked to reduce heating to the minimum. The hours for the use of light in retail stores in general were fixed at from noon to 6 p. m. and practically all the stores in the city made these their business hours. The result has been that flower stores did practically no business, even if they were open without lights in the forenoon, and business practically ceased at dark.

Under such conditions a big out-of-town demand did not serve to clear the market. There has been an abundance of stock in nearly all lines. The heaviest supply has been of long roses, because nearly everyone wanted short. The result has been that short roses have brought relatively better prices than medium stems and long roses relatively lower prices than the medium grades. Not within the memory of the oldest inhabitant have chrysanthemums been so abundant in the first decade of December. There has been a good demand for fancy stock and first-class prices have been readily obtained for fancy, big blooms, because most of the supply was of the ragged character which is characteristic of the end of the season. Pompons are slowly dwindling in supply, but there are as yet more than the demand will take at steady prices.

There have not been too many of the other items of seasonable stock, but prices all along the line have been held down by the abundance of roses and mums. There are so few violets and sweet peas that their prices would go to the level reached some time ago by valley, orchids and lilies if it were not possible to buy long roses below their real worth. Carnations are moving well, but the price is held down by the same influence. Paper Whites accumulate for lack of demand, and there are too many yellow narcissi.

In general the quality of flowers is excellent. One scarcely could ask for finer roses. Most of the growers, heeding the warnings given that coal will be hard to get when present supplies are exhausted, have been reducing their temperatures, a process which seldom does any harm to the quality, no matter what it may do to the quantity produced. At the time this issue of The Review goes to press it looks as though the coal strike is in a way of being settled, but that the severe weather in November and now again prevailing has caused such great inroads on the reserve stock of fuel that business hours will be limited for some time to come. There is some apprehension as to the result on the local Christmas business.

Club Meeting.

It's always dry weather, now, when good fellows get together and it has not in the least increased the attendance at the meetings of the Chicago Florists' Club. Even for the annual election of officers, December 4, at the Hotel Randolph, only twenty-five turned out. The election proved a surprise. Both Paul Klingsporn and Otto H. Amling declined to stand for the presidency, leaving the club without nominees. Reopening the matter resulted in naming and electing the following slate:

President—T. E. Waters.
Vice-president—A. T. Pyfer.
Treasurer—Paul Weiss.
Secretary—Fred Lautenschlager.
Trustee, for three years, to succeed himself—W. J. Keimel.

The principal discussion of the evening, after the election had been disposed of, concerned the coal strike and the situation of the trade in view of the restrictions on the use of fuel and light. It appeared that no grower was known to be perilously short of coal and that the fuel administration will see that anyone who is careful to conserve fuel is kept from freezing out. As for wholesalers and retailers, they were advised to comply literally with the short-hour orders, on pain of having their light shut off and receiving undesirable publicity. C. L. Washburn is chairman of the club's coal committee and all requiring the club's assistance were referred to him.

For Your Christmas:

Amling's will have the entire cut of over 350,000 Rose Plants growing within 16 miles of our store. Specially strong on Long Roses.

Amling's will have a splendid supply of Fancy Carnations, including Laddie, not to be had in quantity elsewhere.

We earnestly urge all buyers to let Christmas wants be known at once

WHILE it is true that our Christmas supply will be much the largest in the history of this house—due to the wonderful growth of our business in the past year—so will the demand be the greatest ever known. We hope to fill late orders, but to be sure of your supply order at once.

Let us recommend that you order liberally of the following:

Long Roses
Remember Christmas calls are for the best. We are specially strong on the longest and finest grades.

Carnations
Fine quality and good quantity.

Narcissi
White and Yellow—large supply.

Poinsettias
Ours come from a grower who is recognized as second to none in America. A large supply.

Stevia
You need it in every box.

Mignonette
A favorite with Christmas shoppers.

BOXWOOD FOR CHRISTMAS

WHOLESALE FLORISTS

164 N. Wabash Ave., L. D. Phone, Central 3373 CHICAGO

There was an attractive little exhibition of Christmas accessories and novelties, staged by A. L. Randall Co. and Poehlmann Bros. Co. From far-off California came an erica, grown outdoors in the nursery of MacRorie-McLaren Co., at San Mateo. George Ball, Glen Ellyn, showed King of Plumes chrysanthemum and Hans Jepsen, of Maywood, staged disbudded blooms of Chrysanthemum Sunshine, the Goetz anemone-flowered variety. Gould Bros., of Wilmette, showed well-grown cyclamens and primulas.

Retailers Adopt "Milwaukee Plan."

The Retail Florists' Association decided, at a meeting held at the Morrison hotel, December 9, to make an attempt to organize the trade in Chicago along the lines of the "Milwaukee plan" for community advertising. This will call for a subscription by every retail florist on the basis of his purchases and by every grower on the basis of his sales.

Considering the zero weather, there was a large attendance at the meeting, a number of retailers who do not usually lend their personal support being present. President Asmus went straight to the point, introducing President J. F. Ammann to tell what the S. A. F. is trying to accomplish, Secretary H. J. Seel to tell of the methods and exeprience of the Milwaukee Florists' Advertising Club and W. C. Zimmermann to speak for the results obtained in that city. When the three guests had finished, A. Lange said the time for action had arrived and made a motion that those present be given an opportunity to sign a pledge to go into such a plan as has proved so profitable in Milwaukee. Sixteen retailers signed.

The Commercial Flower Growers' Association will take action on the matter at a meeting December 11.

President Asmus read to the retailers the paper on store management and pricing prepared for the F. T. D. by H. P. Knoble and originally published in The Review of October 4, 1917. He commended it to the consideration of all retailers who do not find their profits satisfactory.

Christmas Prospects.

Everyone in this market feels sure the Christmas demand will break all records, just as Thanksgiving did. There also is the belief that the distribution of the Christmas Number of The Review will be followed by the biggest run of early orders ever known, because inquiries received indicate that the buyers realize this may be a year in which delay is dangerous. It is figured the bulk of the orders will come in early this year and that shipping will begin heavily one day earlier than usual. Most of the shipping houses are planning to keep open Sunday, December 21. The big shipping days will be December 22 and 23.

It is the consensus that the rose will be the most abundant flower, that short roses will not be equal to the demand at pretty stiff prices, but that orders may be taken with safety for roses at from 35 cents to 75 cents. Beauties will be in small supply. Carnations are so backward this year that it is not thought possible there can be an adequate supply for Christmas. Violets and sweet peas will not be available in quantity. There will be a lot of poinsettias. Chrysanthemums, while in market, will be too nearly gone to cut much figure.

There are only small supplies of holly and bouquet green, but boxwood is more abundant than ever before, although some jobbers are well sold up.

The local supplies of pot plants are extremely small and limited in variety. Poinsettias predominate. Cyclamens are not to be had in quantity.

In a general way it is considered that the supply of stock is much less than it should be to conform to business conditions and that, the same apparently being more or less true of the whole middle west, a clean sweep is expected. It is believed that not even the coal strike and a continuance of heatless days can stop the public's buying.

The "Strike" at Wietors'.

About a month ago a representative of the section men employed by Wietor Bros., addressing N. J. Wietor, requested a readjustment of terms of employment, covering wages, a six-day week, extra pay for Sundays and holidays and for overtime. An accommodation was reached and things went on smoothly for two weeks. November 29 the original demands were renewed and, consideration being refused, ten of the section men quit in a body. The helpers stayed. The members of the Wietor family took off their coats and prepared to work in the greenhouses until such time as the vacancies could be filled. During the first week several new men were hired and four of the "strikers" asked for their places back. With things running systematically again, further applications from the former employees were declined.

Everywhere in the trade wages have been advanced more than the average wholesale price of flowers has gone up, although it is hard for some of the workers to believe it.

"The Lives of Great Men."

All the Christian world celebrates a birthday in December, making one of the biggest flower days in the year. But there are other birthdays in December which are worth noting, as they include the names of some of the trade's leaders:

Birthday	December	Year
A. L. Randall	7	1860
A. Henderson	9	1875
A. J. Zech	9	1884
Emil Buettner	14	1856
George Stollery	15	1867
Ernst Wienhoeber	21	1851
Anton Then	25	1854

As Longfellow teaches, there is a lesson, as well as a friendly interest, in the lives of those who make an impress on the sands of our trade affairs.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Joseph Kohout, wife of the president of the Commercial Flower Growers' Association, was operated on, December 5, at the Garfield Park hospital for the second time in a few months. At Thanksgiving she returned home after a slow convalescence from the previous illness, only to be hurried back to the hospital within a week for a still more serious operation, an abscess having developed back of one of her ears. While she rallied well from the operation, the doctors held out slight hope of her recovery.

As an indication of the way things are being done these days, when the Johnson-Randall Co. took over the Traverse City refrigerator factory, July 29, it had one employee, a watchman. Now there are 124 and a large addition to the building is going up. Besides making refrigerators, with an output soon to exceed 100 per day, the manufacture of baskets has been started. Mr. Miller, well known in the basket-making community at Burlington, Ia., went to Traverse City a few weeks ago and is teaching the art to the workers there with gratifying success.

W. J. Keimel, president, and Paul Weiss, secretary and treasurer, of the Richmond Greenhouse Co., were at Richmond, Ind., December 5, to look over their newly acquired property. C. J. Michelsen, who was in Cleveland December 4, joined them at Richmond.

Cleaning the glass with the regular greenhouse force usually results in burns from the muriatic acid and other accidents or injuries. So H. N. Bruns last week had the work done by a concern which makes a specialty of such cleaning.

William A. Hansen, of the E. C. Amling Co., is swinging around the circle of the company's customers in Kansas City, Louisville, Pittsburgh and intermediate cities. He will be away ten days.

That the season of 1920 will break all previous records in greenhouse building is the belief of M. C. Wright, western sales manager for the Lord & Burnham Co. Mr. Wright further believes that the next few years will see a change from the narrow, ridge-and-furrow type of house heretofore ubiquitous to the detached, wide iron-frame houses recently built in numbers in the east.

This will be Ed. Enders' thirty-second Christmas with C. A. Samuelson.

A. T. Pyfer & Co., to cool the storage box in their store, have for some months operated a one-ton McClellan refrigerating machine. It is the only one of its kind in the market. It operates on the ammonia principle, is simplicity itself and is giving good satisfaction.

John Poehlmann shortened his working hours last week, not because of the fuel restrictions, but because of trouble with his teeth which took him to the dentist daily.

B. Zalinger, who formerly ran the flower store in the rotunda of the Insurance Exchange building, now covers three states for the A. L. Randall Co.

C. L. Washburn is an advocate of high wages. He says high wages in other lines make it possible for people to buy flowers and that higher wages in this trade will gradually bring into it a better class of workers.

H. Van Gelder has declined to follow the doctor's instructions, spending a short time at the store each day in spite of an attack of lung fever, the third he has sustained in the last couple of years.

Robert Newcomb is calling on the trade, carrying the plants of Erica regerminans ovata which were shown at the Florists' Club December 4. He brought them from San Francisco and says it is proof of shipping quality that he had carried these plants continuously for three weeks before they were certificated by the club.

Hans Jepsen, who has the Walter Burhop place at Maywood, has had a most successful season with chrysanthemums.

Paul Blome & Co. are the latest addition to the Chicago list of members of the F. T. D.

December 8 Zech & Mann received eight large and wonderfully well packed cases of Erica regerminans ovata from MacRorie-McLaren Co., San Francisco. The plants were for delivery in small lots to buyers in this market.

Joseph Foerster says it is two years since his concern has wired special offers to out-of-town buyers when the market was heavily supplied. In his opinion the practice results in nothing except lowering returns to all the growers shipping to this market.

J. B. Goetz Sons, of Saginaw, have shipped large quantities of Sunshine cnrysanthemums to this market this season and have done well. It is of the

Repair that Leaky or Cracked Boiler Without Shutting Off the Heat

EVERY greenhouse man who has ever had a leaky or cracked boiler knows what a lot of time, trouble and money that means.

Yet all the fuss and worry attendant upon the old-fashioned method of repairing is now entirely unnecessary.

"X"—the wonderful Boiler Liquid—will do $200.00 worth of repair work for $10.00; and do it in about half an hour.

"X" Is a Scientific Process of Repairing Without Dismantling or Welding

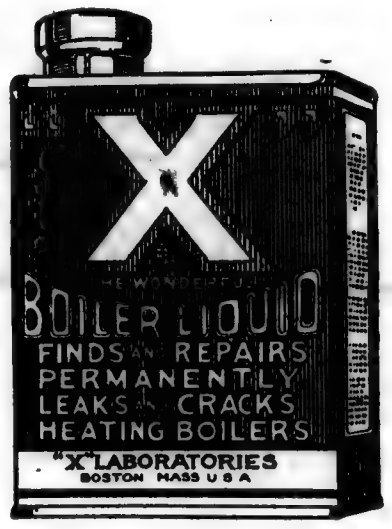
"X" is an absolute liquid. It is simply poured into the boiler and instantly combines itself with the water. In sizzling out through the leak or crack the "X" is changed by the atmospheric oxygen into a metal-like solid, making a permanent repair. This repair is gradually hardened by the heat in the boiler, so that it stands a pressure of over one-quarter of a ton.

The surplus "X" that remains in the water automatically stops all new leaks due to expansion or other causes. In this way "X" Liquid makes the boiler (and in a hot water system, the entire system) absolutely LEAKPROOF.

Makes Boilers Rustproof and Scaleproof Saves Coal

The chemical composition of "X" Liquid is such that it absorbs all free oxygen in the water. This prevents the metal from Rusting. "X" also prevents the lime and other scale-forming elements in the water from depositing layers of Scale on the walls. "X" keeps the boiler Rustproof and Scaleproof.

"X" does not evaporate or lose its strength with age. When new water is added it combines itself with this water and performs its functions again and again.



"X" contains no cement, powder or other injurious ingredients. It cannot clog the air valves; in fact it makes frequent repacking of valves unnecessary.

A Strong Guarantee!

You take no chance in using "X" Liquid It is unconditionally guaranteed to make good. If it fails you get a new can—or your money back.

But your greatest guarantee of the value of "X" is the fact that it is used, sold and recommended by 99 per cent of the manufacturers of boilers and radiators. It is used by the U. S. Government.

If your boiler cracks or leaks this Winter you don't have to worry about your greenery—if you keep a can of "X" Liquid handy. Just get a can of "X" and do the repair job yourself.

Get "X" Liquid from your steamfitter, or we will ship, charges prepaid, on receipt of price.

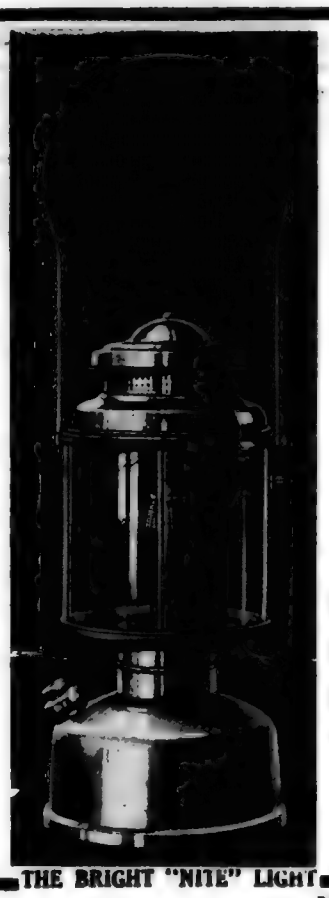
CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

The market has been kept well cleaned, but this is not due to the demand. Carnations and roses are both off crop and few are in the market. Counter trade has been rather dull and what little floral work there has been was taken care of with small effort. There are few chrysanthemums in the market and what do arrive clean up readily. A few pompons are still offered. Violets, locally grown singles and doubles, have been far short of the demand; California singles are offered with little success. Stevia is arriving in quantity and cleans up well at $2 and $2.50 per hundred. The demand for narcissi has been good and they realize $6 per hundred. Daisies, calendulas, wallflowers and other novelties clean up well. The market is well supplied with greens, of which adiantum is in most demand. Boxwood, princess pine and laurel are clearing well. Christmas novelties for baskets, wreaths and other decorations are having a heavy demand; there is a variety of these exceeding other years.



Various Notes.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., Chicago, was in the city. He was entertained at the home of Al. Barber.

E. H. Brown, of Canton, O., was in the city on business last week.

H. P. Knoble has been spending much of his time with the Friedley Co. He reports a fine lot of potted plants for the holiday trade.

THE BRIGHT "NITE" LIGHT

"Nite" Light Time is Here

THE days are getting shorter. Darkness comes early. Before your work is finished you are compelled to stop because you can no longer see.

The ordinary barn lantern gives out about thirty candle power; not much good to work by.

The "Nite" Lantern gives out 400 candle power, burns gasoline and costs about 1/4c per hour to run. Can be used very roughly without damage and will not blow out in a wind.

It is a great thing to hang in your boiler or packing room, for it lights up the whole place, enabling all to do some extra work, and it spreads cheerfulness all around.

Capacity 1 quart (burns 15 hours), price $7.00.

THE BRIGHT "NITE" LIGHT

"Nite" Light Time is Here

THE days are getting shorter. Darkness comes early. Before your work is finished you are compelled to stop because you can no longer see.

The ordinary barn lantern gives out about thirty candle power; not much good to work by.

The "Nite" Lantern gives out 400 candle power, burns gasoline and costs about 1/4c per hour to run. Can be used very roughly without damage and will not blow out in a wind.

It is a great thing to hang in your boiler or packing room, for it lights up the whole place, enabling all to do some extra work, and it spreads cheerfulness all around.

Capacity 1 quart (burns 15 hours), price $7.00.

EVERYTHING FOR THE GREENHOUSE

Mention The Review when you write.

W. H. Everett returned from a business trip to Chicago, where he bought stock for the holidays.

L. Anderson reports a fine lot of poinsettias for the holidays, both cut and potted.

John Guenther has added a new Dodge delivery car to his service.

Wm. Lisy has taken a position with the Heights Floral Gardens. W. F. B.

Erie, Pa.—The Schluraff Floral Co., in the Masonic Temple, has been holding a highly successful opening and store show. The roses were especially fine, having been obtained from one of Chicago's quality houses. As a means of increasing the interest, prizes were offered for the best school children's essays on "What I Saw at the Flower Show."

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

The Slogan Song.

The publicity being given to the Von Tilzer song, "Say It with Flowers," is quite gratifying to our committees. The song is a pronounced "hit" and, besides the presentations of it in the big theaters of our leading cities arranged for by its publishers, it is being presented in minor cities by artists outside of the "headliner" circle, who quickly take hold of anything which becomes a success in the theaters of the larger circuits. A correspondent who happened to be in the city of Lowell, Mass., last week, writes us that its rendition in a theater there came as a surprise to the florists, one of whom immediately had flowers sent in to the singer, who used them to advantage. Any assistance the florists can render in the presentation of the song is sure to result to their advantage locally. This week Buffalo has a presentation of it at Shea's theater, by Miss Emma Stevens, a well-known vocalist. New Orleans is also to have it featured for several weeks in a "Revue" at one of its leading places of entertainment. It is quite likely that it will be heard in all cities in the country

Penn The Florist

The Most Modern and Artistic Home of Flowers in New England

A VERITABLE crystal palace of flowers is the Penn salesroom, the daily scene of the greatest activity in the Boston retail flower trade. The tiled floor is in soft buff colored stone and walls of Ivory Caen stone. In the rear is the crowning scenic feature of all—"The Fountain Court." In the center plays a wonderful Italian fountain, the work of a Boston sculptor. The Court is surrounded by eight marble pillars and each top with an ornamental frieze, while above is a steel and leaded glass ceiling which lights the Court day and night, for at night there are electric fixtures sculptured and modeled by a famous Italian artist in the purest of alabaster marble above the ground glass to take the place of the sun.

the signs and proposes to make an extensive planting of flowering and evergreen shrubs around each, with, perhaps, vines trained around the framework—an excellent idea and one worthy of general adoption.

The Campaign Fund.

Our campaign fund is not nearly big enough to enable our committees to carry to completion their plans for general publicity. They find it no cinch to arrange campaign plans with simply an expectancy of funds being available to allow of such plans being put into effect. Support in their work cannot be too strong—at present it is not even reasonable. The florists have given liberal support to various drives in the last two or three years, but are sadly neglecting to support their own drive, one which promises so much benefit to them. It is true that a goodly number of our craft are coöperating to provide a working fund, but in number they represent little more than one-tenth of the trade. If the remaining nine-tenths are not wholly indifferent to the movement, they are mighty slow to respond to the appeal constantly made to them. Their attitude is almost unbelievable. It was never thought that a florist, usually classed with the best fellows on earth, would withhold assistance to a project which promised so much for him individually and was calculated to extend his opportunities for doing business. It is still hard to believe that such is the case—it is not, cannot be. It must be sheer forgetfulness. The matter of the amount of the subscription need worry nobody—it can be increased at any time. If $10 is all that can be contributed, send it. If less, it will be just as welcome. Send something, if only to show appreciation of the work accomplished. John Young, Sec'y.

MR. JOHN T. MUIR,
4647 Grand Blvd., City.

Dear Mr. Muir:

It might be of interest to you to know how much the officers of this bank appreciated the admirable taste which you displayed in the arrangement of the design and the beautiful flowers used in the floral piece furnished by you at the time of Mr. Lampert's funeral.

It was an occasion on which we felt that the best was none too good and we were very much gratified at your efforts in that direction. It was also spoken of by Mrs. Lampert afterwards as being the most wonderful assemblage of flowers that she had ever seen.

Feeling confident that you would be pleased to know of these favorable comments, I have taken the liberty of writing you this letter.

Very sincerely,

The Market.

The social season is now under way and, although it is hardly two weeks old, the market is already beginning to feel its effect. In the first part of last week the market was cleaned up. The first Bachelors' Cotillion was held Monday, December 1, and, as is generally the case, everything that could be obtained, providing it was fine stock, was used.

there are only a few days until the Christmas season will be here, so that it seems about as well to keep customers accustomed to the prices it will be necessary to charge. The public is now well aware of the fact that it will be obliged to pay more for flowers, as for everything else, this winter. Anyone who will go from store to store and hear nothing but the remark, "Business is splendid," and at the same time see for himself, can draw only one conclusion, which is that, in spite of the advanced prices, the public is buying as many flowers as it ever did.

Carnations are not in as good supply as they might be, but what are coming to the market are mostly of good quality. The same might be said of sweet peas. Violets are to be had, mostly single. There were a good many double violets used last week, but the majority of these came from out of town. Orchids are quite scarce and the price of these is almost prohibitive. There are some Paper Whites and stevia seems to be plentiful. To sum up, the market is in a most satisfactory condition.

The Bachelors' Cotillion.

The Bachelors' Cotillion held their first dance at the Lyric December 1, when forty debutantes were presented to society. This alone assures Baltimore of a gay social season. The dance was one of the largest and most successful ever held by this club. The decorations were again in charge of Black Bros. and this firm outdid itself. The Lyric, when it is to be arranged for a dance, is certainly a difficult proposition for a florist to handle. With the orchestra covered with a floor, the stage all thrown into one, not a piece of furniture in the whole building and the galleries barren and empty, it takes some thought and skill to transform it into the scene it presented on this occasion. But Black Bros. have done this often and, though it is different on each occasion, they do not mind it.

Large lattice screens draped with southern smilax hid the galleries from view and the stage was arranged as an oriental tea garden, in which many palms were used. One of the most striking features of the entire decoration was an original idea of George

Black. Along the entire tier of boxes, which were used by the chaperons, he had heavy festoons of southern smilax. As the debutantes arrived they placed their bouquets in these festoons, so that by 11 o'clock the front of these boxes around the entire dance floor was a solid bank of American Beauties, Premier, Columbia, Ophelia (these were the most conspicuous), together with orchids, violets, sweet peas and some few chrysanthemums.

Various Notes.

The scene at the Bachelors' Cotillion, where all was enjoyment and pleasure and everything went off without a hitch, was in sharp contrast with a different scene in the retail stores during the day, where everything was work, bustle and confusion; indeed, some of the florists were obliged to put in the better part of Sunday in order to get ready. And be it remembered that this special Sunday was the one that a grand jury and the police department had selected on which to enforce the "blue laws," so that it was necessary for some of the florists to get special permits. I was a little afraid there would not be enough stock to meet the demand, but a visit to those stores which furnish the major part of this great mass of flowers, found them all happy, though busy; in some cases they could not furnish what their customers wanted, but everyone was reasonable and took something else. At every store I made it a point to ask how orders compared with those of former seasons and in every case the reply was the same—orders were as heavy as two years ago, the last time a comparison could be made.

At John Cook's everything that could be obtained was used up. One bouquet made up by this firm was new to me and was one which I think will come into prominence. It was a large bunch of five dozen Mrs. John Cook, with Sweetheart roses above those that the bouquet was made of; thus the Sweetheart roses were worked in much the same as finer flowers would be worked into a funeral design. I do not mean that it had anything like the appearance of a funeral design, but it was a novel piece of work with Sweetheart roses tied to the ribbons. Another bouquet made by this firm was one of fifteen orchids and maidenhair fern. Each orchid cost $4, which gives some idea of how the increased cost of flowers was paid.

At Mary Johnston's store the orders have been ahead of what they were two years ago, but the firm was well supplied to take care of anything that might come.

Samuel Feast & Sons were thoroughly busy. Mrs. Hill told me they had expected to be short of American Beauty roses, but that they had all they required and that the roses were as fine as any she had ever handled, but the price was away up.

William J. Halliday's orders have been just as heavy as two years ago; this firm has been able to get all of the stock it required, stock of the best quality.

I have told in detail about the cotillion, but space will not permit me to tell of the many "before the cotillion dinners" the florists had to contend with. It is enough to say that a dinner was given in honor of each of the forty debutantes. The first big flower event vertising of the florists' "Say It with Flowers" is having a welcome effect and the people are finding money to buy in larger quantities.

The trade is beginning to worry over the coal situation. It is doubtful if any growers will be affected for a time, but should the situation be prolonged it will be disastrous to the business.

The present wholesale prices of roses such as Columbia, Hoosier Beauty and Sunburst are $25, $20, $15 and $10, depending on the length. J. J. H.

many of the growers are worried for fear of losing all of their Christmas stock. Christmas greens are beginning to be used extensively for decorating, even at this early date.

Flowers have been scarce, although there has been more of a variety of them. There are still a few Dolly Dimple, Eaton and Chadwick mums on the market. Sweet peas and violets, both single and double, are being used extensively in corsage work. There are a few daisies and some mignonette on the market.

In roses, Premier, Hoosier Beauty, Columbia, Aaron Ward and Double White Killarney take the lead and bring fancy prices. Orchids and Sweetheart roses are scarce. Narcissi retail at $1.50 and $2 per dozen. In plants, cherries, narcissi and cyclamens take the lead. Prices have gone up on plants also.

Various Notes.

The Flick Floral Co. had several large decorations last week. This firm reports a fine sale for violets, both single and double, also an excess of funeral work last week. Miss V. Williams, of the force of the Flick Floral Co., plans to leave between December 25 and January 1 for Los Angeles, Cal., to remain indefinitely.

The trade all donated beautiful baskets of flowers for the opening of the new Y. M. C. A. building in this city last week.

Ralph H. Tinkham had the wedding decoration and bouquets for the Abbott-Rabus wedding last week; it was one of the foremost events of the season.

The Blossom Floral Co. had the decoration for the De Silva recital at the Elks' Temple hall Friday night, December 5.

show, to be held in the Grand Central Palace, Forty-sixth street and Lexington avenue, New York city, March 15 to 20, 1920, under the auspices of the Horticultural Society of New York, the New York Florists' Club and the American Rose Society. From all indications, this show, the first one held since the war, will reflect in its size and in the high quality of its exhibits the resumption of pre-war prosperity, with the added stimulus of the national publicity campaign and the new energy being shown by the trade as a whole.

The closing date for entries is March 10. All plants and most of the cut orchids will be staged Monday, March Coal and the Market.

In common with all other lines, the flower business has felt the effects of the coal shortage in this territory. Although the coal miners in this district had been on strike for several weeks and it was generally known that it was a difficult matter to get coal from any dealer, the seriousness of the situation was not felt until the sudden cold spell that came Thanksgiving day. The thermometer kept dropping for several days and the city has been covered with sleet and snow for more than ten days, with a temperature ranging from 20 degrees above to 5 degrees above, according to government readings, and even colder outside the city. The severe weather brought such heavy demands for coal that the fuel administration was forced to take charge of the situation. Members of the administration and about 1,000 retail and wholesale merchants held a meeting Sunday, November 30, and decided to limit the hours for business for the week. Theaters, picture houses and schools were ordered closed and it was decided to open stores at 9 a. m. and close at 4 p. m. After two days' trial it was decided to open retail stores at 10 a. m. and close at 5 p. m., and open wholesale stores at 9 a. m. and close at 4 p. m. These shorter hours, the unusual situation and the stormy weather of the week just ended have combined to affect all buying. The necessity for fuel conservation and the rigid rules

Roses for Christmas

Some of our growers are bringing in a big crop of Killarney and Brilliant for Christmas. Good stock and Roses that you can sell at a moderate price. Killarneys are at their best at this time of the season.

All other varieties, such as Russell, Columbia, Hadley, Richmond, Sunburst and Ophelia, we will have in quantity large enough to take care of your order.

Beauties

The cut will not be so large as last year, but the quality the best we have ever handled. Mostly the long Beauties—very few medium—none of the shorter grades. Order your Beauties early.

The Market.

The cut flower market has eased a trifle since Thanksgiving week. There have been good days and there have been days that were quiet. The supply is hardly equal to the demand. Chrysanthemums are almost over. Bonnaffon, of low grade, Chadwick and Nonin, of good grade, nearly make up the assortment. There will probably be a few for another week, maybe even until Christmas, but for all practical purposes this week finishes them for the season. Carnations and roses increase slowly. Both are getting into winter form. The miscellaneous flowers, useful in giving variety, are in fair supply. They all sell well except stevia, which lags. Prices have remained about the same as a week ago, excepting in a few instances, where advances have been made owing to scarcity.

Good judges of the market believe that the supply will increase with the approach of the Christmas holidays, that it will not keep pace with the demand, that prices will be about the same as last year, possibly higher on a few things.

It is generally conceded that Beauties, which have formed an important part of the Christmas business, will not be nearly so plentiful as usual, owing to the high fall prices and to the cloudy October. Hadley, Richmond and red carnations wil be in small supply. There will be some Russell and Premier.

There is a great uncertainty regarding orchids. The question is whether they will be in time for Christmas.

Mr. Kift's Opportunity.

Those who attended the December meeting of the Florists' Club knew that the publicity committee were fighting with their backs to the wall. They had not the support of their own wing, the retailers. The publicity committee, composed entirely of retail florists, have done splendid work. They have planned and carried out a flower week in Philadelphia. They have mapped out a scheme by which the work can be systematically carried on throughout the year. They ask united support for their work. They are not receiving it. There is just one thing to be done. That thing earnestly done is bound to succeed. A representative of the committee should see each retailer and ask his or her hearty support. To employ an outsider to do this would be a waste of time and money. It would simply mean failure. There is one man, and just one man, who can and will make this work a success. It is Robert Kift. A retailer himself, a believer in publicity, an enthusiastic lover of his profession, Mr. Kift is preëminently fitted for the task. As an officer of the Florists' Club who has been supported with a loyalty never accorded before, Mr. Kift will take a pride in giving the club a Christmas present of priceless value, the support of the retail florists to the publicity campaign.

Given the support of sixty per cent of the retailers, the plan will succeed. For with that support seventy-five per cent of the growers will come in without being visited.

I call on you—Charles H. Grakelow—on you and on your committee, to send Robert Kift to see every retail florist in Philadelphia to secure support for the

A New Store.

Frank M. Ross has about completed rebuilding his store at 136 South Fifty-second street. It is one of two buildings that present a decidedly pleasing appearance. The door, placed at an angle on the side, adds to the effect of space given on entering and also leaves the fine show window in undisputed possession of the front. Frank P. Gaul, the manager, called attention to the lightness of the store. It is finished in white and has rear as well as front light. The workroom is in the store, but this may not be permanent. The icebox is large and well appointed. Electric lights are used throughout. The whole appearance of the store is most attractive.

On Ontario Street.

It was the first cold morning in December, when the thermometer had gone away down. John Aschmann and his son, Edward Aschmann, had just finished that personal care that all of us put at some time or other on the heating system to see that all is well before winter. The flu had knocked out last fall's visit to the Godfrey Aschmann range, so that it was with especial interest that the greenhouses were seen. The range was familiar, yet different. The houses were unchanged. The varieties grown were the same in general character, but differed in personnel. The strict regard for the value of space was as evident as of yore. John Aschmann appeared to be meeting the changing business conditions with courage. He was planning ahead carefully and said that he knew good stock and made it a rule not to send out anything that he would not like to receive. The general quality of the stock in the houses was good. Were a specialty each in the foliage and flowering classes to be named, they would be ferns and cinerarias; both are nicely done and both are numerous—sure signs of popularity.

Various Notes.

Robert B. Bragg took that beautiful rose seedling of E. Towill's back to Edward Reid's after the December meeting of the Florists' Club on the roof garden of the Adelphia. The following morning Mr. Bragg sent most of the flowers to Pennock Bros. A. B. Cartledge was pleased with them and had them put in the big show window. A few of the blooms went to Mrs. Ehret, to grace her window on Fairmount avenue.

Recent visitors included A. L. Miller, Frank H. Traendly, Eugene Dailledouze and John Miesem, of New York; Elmer Weaver, of Ronks, Pa., and H. Payne and G. C. Dalglish, of Washington, D. C.

The December meeting of the Germantown Horticultural Society was held at Greene and Cheltean avenues December 8. The following officers were elected: President, Edwin C. Jellett; vice-presidents, Stewardson Brown, I. P. Willits, Herman Burgin; secretary, George Redles; treasurer, R. F. Welsh.

Fire destroyed a horse and two wagons belonging to the Godfrey Aschmann range. No insurance.

Charles E. Fleggel, manager for Mrs. Mary Alburger, says that the present generation go to the cemeteries more on holidays and less between times than did their mothers and fathers.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons have the decorations for the first assembly ball to be given in two years. It will be held at the Bellevue-Stratford January 2, 1920.

John C. Wister gave an illustrated lecture before the Philadelphia Horticultural Society at the New Century Club December 9. Mr. Wister's theme was "The Gardens of England and France Since the War." He showed the different methods employed in the various nurseries.

Raymond Brunswick says that, judging from the way orders are coming to the M. Rice Co., the florists will have a wonderful Christmas.

Robert A. Craig thinks this will be the greatest plant Christmas his firm has had. Phil.

Verses "To the Bricklayer" in the Germantown Guide November 22 by William S. Beasley queried what would happen if the farmer should imitate other classes of labor and strike for fewer hours and more pay.

BOSTON.

The Market.

There has been a lack of snap in business for the last week and values have declined somewhat. This is the customary lull before the great holiday demand sets in. There is no glut of any kind and, while we have had much colder weather, the skies have been clear and this has been decidedly favorable for the growers. Arrivals are not heavy and will continue relatively light until a few days before the holidays. Roses have not moved so well and have dropped in price so that short-stemmed stock is now down to $4 and other grades have taken corresponding slumps. The clear, cool weather is favorable for roses and, while supplies are not large now, an extra good Christmas crop seems assured. Specially good Beauties sell at $9 to $12 per dozen. Among the hybrid teas Columbia ranks perhaps first in popularity, with Ophelia a close second. There is only a small supply of Hadley and other reds coming in. The novelties, such as Crusader, Pilgrim and Premier, sell remarkably well.

Carnations have held up better than roses, and the bulk sell at $4 to $6. Violets are not at all plentiful at $2.50 to $3. Pansies are insufficient for the demand and sweet peas, while more abundant, sell easily. Chrysanthemums are still seen in fair numbers. Seidewitz and Mistletoe are both good, and some of the old Chadwick and Maud Dean are

CHRISTMAS SPECIALS

Months ago we have asked dozens of florists as to just what the trade would most likely demand, and as a result we have manufactured right in our own factory just such special baskets. We have numbered them No. 50 and No. 66.

Number 50 is a beautifully decorated basket, ready to be sold to your customers. It is rustic in nature; consists of cones, red and green ruscus, frieze, etc. Every part of this basket brings forth to the minds of your customers CHRISTMAS TIME and CHRISTMAS CHEER. Each basket is boxed separately, which makes it easy to ship, insures perfect arrival, and makes it easy for your customer to carry home.

Price, complete, including the box, $7.20 per doz.
Colors: Red or Green

Number 66 is a very dainty little basket made out of willow, enameled red or green. When this basket is filled up and decorated by yourself with your own natural boxwood, ruscus, frieze and other Christmas materials, it makes a very pleasing effect. When it is set off by a nice ribbon on the handle it makes a very beautiful table decoration.

Price, $2.50 per doz. Colors: Red or Green

The time to order these baskets is NOW, as we feel sure that they will please you and your customers. You will save yourself a lot of disappointment in many ways if you will send your order in now.

also seen. Some nice pompons, mostly bronzes, still come in.

Of calendulas, sweet sultan, bachelor's buttons, mignonette, Paper Whites and marguerites there are moderate supplies. Stevia is more abundant and the bulk of growers have evidently dropped the dwarf for the much superior tall form. A nice lot of callas comes in and finds a ready sale on account of the lily shortage.

Bouvardia is fine and sells better than ever this season. Cattleyas are getting decidedly scarce, and fancy holiday prices seem probable. Some nice cypripediums, zygopetalums and vandas are coming in. Pot plants now include poinsettias and practically everything usually seen at Christmas, but cyclamens loom ahead of all other blooming plants in favor. They never were more numerous here nor of such superb quality.

Florists' Association.

There was a good attendance at the monthly dinner and meeting of the Boston Florists' Association at the Parker House December 2. On the tables were arranged some fine Mistletoe chrysanthemums, from Harold A. Ryan, and Bernice, W. D. Howard's new crimson carnation. The question of holding a dance ladies' night or a banquet was discussed by some of the fun-loving members, but after Mr. Gibbs, of Lynn, had frowned on these schemes and had spoken of the important work ahead of the association a lively and interesting discussion, participated in by W. H. Elliott, A. Christensen, F. E. Palmer, W. C. Stickel and others, took place.

On the suggestion of President Henry Penn, special committees from the growers, wholesalers, retailers and salesmen will at succeeding meetings present their views. In January W. H. Elliott will report for his committee of seven growers and the evening will be largely devoted to a discussion of their suggestions. In this way, by making the association a forum where all interests

Among the Growers.

Harold A. Ryan & Co. operate the large greenhouses at Mount Auburn, formerly owned by Sidney Hoffman. One large house is planted with carnations, principally Pink Delight, Matchless, Ward and Benora, with smaller lots of Beacon and Fenn. Cyclamens and begonias in large numbers were in fine shape for Christmas trade. A splendid lot of several thousand young cyclamens were coming on in flats. Chrysanthemums were mostly cut; they had proved profitable this season. Quantities of lilies, hydrangeas, Dutch bulbs, etc., were ready to fill the space they occupied. Governor Herrick was blue with flowers, while a bench of Princess of Wales was almost flowerless. Mr. Ryan likes the former for funeral work. Its stems are short and it is lacking in odor, but its free-blooming qualities commend it. A fine lot of large strelitzias in tubs were noted and quantities of bedding plants and other stock necessary for a large retail trade. Mr. Ryan is thoroughly up-to-date and his stock of all kinds shows that he is a skillful grower. Practically everything produced here is sold at retail. Situated directly opposite the main entrance to the noted Mount Auburn cemetery, this establishment is favorably located for retail trade.

the proprietor, E. S. Webster, member of the noted firm of Stone & Webster, and under the auspices of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, the greenhouses on this estate, located in the Chestnut Hill section of Brookline, were thrown open to the public, the special attraction being the collection of winter-flowering begonias. The many who took advantage of the invitation had a rich treat. The English type of winter-flowering begonias developed by Veitch's and Clibrans occupied one house, being arranged in groups of one variety with suitable foliage plants interspersed to show up their beauty. Out of a large number of sorts, Exquisite stood head and shoulders above all others in its glorious colorings, with immense flowers equal to those produced on the finest summer tuberous begonias. Optima, as a commercial variety, stands high and showed up splendidly, as did Moonbeam, Fireflame, Rosalind, Winter Cheer, Mrs. Heal, Matchless and other sorts. All these plants were grandly flowered. Another house contained large specimens of Melior, Cincinnati, Mrs. Peterson, Turnford Hall and Lorraine in pans and baskets. The carnation house had splendid batches of Doris, White Wonder (here preferred to Matchless as being a better winter bloomer), Pink Delight, Rosalia, Laddie and Enchantress Supreme. There were splendid lots of cyclamens, poinsettias, orchids (including thrifty odontoglossums), ericas, roses, gardenias, cinerarias and other plants. A fine new plant range has just been completed here and is now filled with thrifty stock. Everything here reflects the highest credit on Peter Arnott, the capable and courteous head gardener.

oy the fuel administrator is being discussed. This might prove serious. Shutdowns of factories, etc., are now of daily occurrence, as coal intended for New England is being diverted to more needy sections.

A. E. Kunderd, the gladiolus specialist of Goshen, Ind., was a caller last week. He visited some of the gladiolus growers, although he has no surplus for sale this season, and also spent some time at the Arnold Arboretum.

The New England Nurserymen's Association will hold its annual convention in Boston January 27 and 28. This is one of the most active and progressive bodies of men we have in New England, and their meetings are always full of interest from start to finish.

Among those sending in sweet peas of fine quality at present are R. P. Peterson, Saxonville; Anderson Bros., Woburn; E. S. Cummings, Woburn; J. A. Nelson, Framingham, and Andrew G. Mitchell, North Sudbury.

The Waban Rose Conservatories, which for some time disposed of much of its output of roses at retail at the Shepard stores, Boston, has dropped this department and will hereafter stick to the wholesale field.

A young lady walked into Penn's one day last week and said that she wanted to announce her engagement and wished to "Say It with Flowers." She finally decided on bunches of pansies to go to her friends and baskets to her immediate relatives. This is a pleasing innovation and one which we hope many will copy.

A strong effort is being made to continue daylight saving for Massachusetts in 1920. The Boston Chamber of Commerce is leading the movement and has called a conference of numerous organizations to meet December 11. I feel certain an overwhelming proportion of our population would favor a continuance of daylight saving, if train and other schedules can be made to suit workers, milk deliveries, etc.

The meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club for election of officers comes December 16. The principal contest is for executive committee, there being eleven candidates for five positions. There will be a talk on crude oil for heating, also short talks by several members on annuals for forcing. There will be exhibits of Christmas plants and the coming midwinter flower show and banquet will also be discussed. A large attendance is looked for.

A series of union meetings of various horticultural and agricultural bodies in Massachusetts is being arranged for the week of January 19, 1920, in Horticultural hall. The meetings drew such large attendances last year and the exhibits were so numerous and attractive that it has been determined to have a yearly get-together. The Gardeners' and Florists' Club and the Massachusetts Nurserymen's Association are among the coöperating societies.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co. have a fine lot of Christmas plants in their Dedham greenhouses. Cyclamens are extra good; so are begonias in variety, primulas, heliotropes, geraniums, solanums, ardisias and other seasonable stock. They have a large amount of landscape orders on hand and spring prospects are bright.

Frank Edgar had a superb house of cyclamens this season. He originally had 8,000 plants, and he reports these as nearly all sold, a good many going to New York. W. N. C.

The Ever-Ready Flower Pot Cover

The Ever-Ready Stands out Strongly in Meeting every Pot Cover Requirement

Of What and How Made. It includes a strong cardboard foundation the outside of which is covered with best quality Waterproof crepe paper with fiber ribbon ties at top and bottom, and all firmly put together with improved metal fastenings.

Low of Cost. It is supplied at low enough prices to allow of gratis disposal, as the improved appearance of the plant justifies advanced pricing that more than offsets its cost.

A Time and Money Saver. Compared with trimming pots specially, with papers, mattings and the like, it freely saves flower store workers' time and avoids the cost of high-priced materials.

was a week ago, a chance of the strike being setted in the near future and the sun shining brightly for the first time in seven or eight days, everybody is feeling better. The spirit of coöperation shown by everyone in the trade and by business men generally and the optimism that has prevailed through a trying week have been admirable. There has not been a complaint heard on any side regarding the restrictions placed by the fuel administration or for any other cause and, while all Christmas work has been put back, there is not one in the business but feels that everything is coming out all right and that the holidays will bring orders enough to make up for all that has been lost in the past.

There has been so much cloudy weather in the last ten days that stock has been retarded, which has not been a bad thing with the quiet business brought about by strike conditions. Roses are from $8 to $20, carnations $6, sweet peas $1.50 and narcissi $5 per hundred and California violets are $1.75 per dozen bunches.

Various Notes.

Ed A. Humfeld had been so busy trying to get his new retail store and greenhouses finished before cold weather set in that he had not time to get in a great supply of coal and, finding himself rather short when the crisis arose, he called on the local fuel administration and explained what a few hours without heat would mean to any greenhouse. The members said there would be a meeting in a short time and for Mr. Humfeld to call in about an hour. When Mr. Humfeld called he was told that he should get all the fuel he could wherever he could, that any other greenhouse owner or grower should do the same and that the stock would not be interfered with, as florists had been put on the preferred list. It was not long before Mr. Humfeld had twenty-five cords of wood and several loads of coke ordered and on the way to his greenhouses.

PITTSBURGH.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held in the basement of the Carnegie library, north side, Tuesday evening, December 2, and there was a good attendance. The Wm. F. Kasting Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., exhibited a vase of Chrysanthemum Hamburg Late Pink, which was highly commended by all the mum growers present for its lateness, color, form and sturdy habit; from remarks heard one could gather the fact that this variety will be seen in the houses of our Pittsburgh growers next year. William Malbranc, of Johnstown, Pa., showed a vase of specially good Mrs. Charles Russell roses and some large, well grown Genista canariensis in pots. Roderick Ross, of Dixmont, by request brought in a long flower spike of Aloe arborescens, together with a small specimen plant of the same flower. The greenhouses of Schenley park staged splendid Lorraine begonias and stocky, well berried Jerusalem cherries grown from seed; from among 500 plants appeared about twelve with large yellow fruit in every way identical with Solanum Capsicastrum var. Cleveland, excepting the color of the berry. John W. Jones intends to propagate from the best of these. A large print, three and a half inches in diameter, of the Japanese persimmon, Diospyros Kaki var. Hyakume, grown outdoors in Tennessee, was shown by John W. Jones; the president then became reminiscent of Australian days in the early eighties, when this fruit was first introduced from Japan by Geo. Brunning & Son, Brighton road, St. Kilda, Melbourne, Victoria. E. M.

Retailers Resume Meetings.

The first regular meeting of the Retail Florists' Association of the Pittsburgh district was held Thursday evening, December 4, with a get-together dinner at the Seventh Avenue hotel instead of the customary luncheon of prewar times.

This session also marked the resumption of the meetings which were dropped during the war on account of so many other interests and was characterized by a more representative attendance of western Pennsylvania florists than any meeting before the war. Because of the approaching holidays, no scheduled program had been arranged, the evening being devoted to general discussion and plans for the coming year's work. The old officers—Ira C. Harper, president; Gilbert P. Weaklen, vice-president, and Orville Christman, secretary—have been retained in order to spur on interest and enthusiasm.

Various Notes.

Louis B. West, who was seriously injured some eighteen months ago in an elevator accident in the Farmers' Bank building, now is giving every evidence of great improvement and is expecting soon to be again at his old post of business in the salesroom of the A. W. Smith Co.

The Diamond Flower Shop, adjoining the Harris theater, on Diamond street, which came into being about six months ago, has more than justified the expectations of its proprietors, who have recently enlarged and improved the quarters in anticipation of additional business during the coming year.

Louis M. Minsky, manager of the erstwhile Grand Flower Shop in the corridor of the Grand Arcade, has gone into another line of business.

Mrs. Thomas J. Cavanaugh, of J. M. Johnston's Braddock store, is not convalescing so rapidly as had been hoped for and will probably remain in Florida until spring instead of returning home for the holidays as she had expected. Mrs. Cavanaugh is still at Bradentown, where she went in the early autumn, but as soon as she is a little stronger she will go on to Palm Beach for the winter. She developed a serious case of bronchial trouble following an attack of influenza last September.

The John Henry Co., Lansing, Mich.

connection with the Alpha Floral Co., on Penn avenue, East Liberty—one of the Kronis brothers' enterprises—and has returned to his home in New York city. Mr. Kleinberg came to Pittsburgh some time before the war and returned last summer following his extended overseas experience.

Last week Mrs. E. A. Williams had elaborate decorations for the McKnight and Christy balls at the Pittsburgh Club and the Lyon tea at the family home on Ridge avenue, north side. Mrs. Williams furnished orchid and American Beauty designs for the funeral of H. C. Frick, on the order of the family and of corporations with which Mr. Frick had been associated.

The McCallum Co. has eliminated all Christmas greens from its stockroom this year. Earl Tipton, head of the cut flower department, left Saturday night, December 6, for a three or four days' business trip to Philadelphia.

The Pittsburgh Florists' Supply Co. is handling some exceptionally fine roses in variety, the products of out-of-town consignors. Manager Carney left Sunday morning, December 7, for a business trip through Ohio, expecting to be away the greater part of the week. Michael Frank Stafford has discontinued his flower shop on Smithfield street and has associated his interests with the wholesale firm.

G. P. Weaklen & Co. furnished a handsome wreath of 200 cattleyas, which was the tribute of the Frick family and the only floral piece appearing on the casket of Henry Clay Frick, the coke and steel magnate, during the funeral services Friday, December 5, at his Pittsburgh home, Clayton, on Penn and Homewood avenues. Mr. Weaklen assisted Superintendent David Fraser, of Clayton, in the arrangement and disposal of the flowers received for the occasion and was one of the few Pittsburghers who viewed the remains.

Randolph & McClements, feeling the need of a downtown store, are reported to have leased, for occupancy next spring, the Gregg building, on Wood street opposite McCreery's store, for a term of years.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Business generally has been good. There has not been a superabundance of anything, but rather a general cleaning up each day. Little anxiety is felt among the growers because of the coal strike, as most of them have a fair supply on hand to last them several weeks. Some handicap is feared, however, from the threatening curtailment of train service, especially as the shipments of potted stock for the Christmas holidays will begin to put in an appearance in about ten days. Providence, for the first time in several years, will have to depend almost entirely on outside growers for potted plants for the holidays this year. But, as the dealers have got their orders all placed, there seems to be no cause for alarm.

Last week carnations were quoted at $6 to $8 per hundred, with fancy ones bringing $10 per hundred. Paper Whites moved easily at $4 to $6; sweet peas at $2 and mignonette at $4, $6 and $8 per hundred. Roses were in demand at all the way from $6 to $35 per hundred,

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Business was good last week and Christmas orders now are coming in fast. The supply of California violets has shown a good increase, but the demand is greater than the supply. With Christmas coming on, there is much artificial stock to be seen on the market and all of the florists are getting in supplies to meet the demands of their customers. Sweet peas are a little more plentiful and the supply of Paper Whites has been good. There has been a large demand for carnations, which are bringing $8 per hundred. The plant trade has been satisfactory. There is a fine supply of ferns, cyclamens and other miscellaneous plants. The supply of plumosus has increased.

The Flower Dance.

At the dinner party which was held by the local florists October 27, one of the speakers called attention to the fact that it would be helpful in many ways if the members of the trade could be brought together more often on similar occasions. Arthur Shaffer and George N. Prokos, being energetic and deeply interested in the welfare of their fellow members of the trade as well as the business in general, decided to take the matter up and hold a dance, which they named the Flower Dance. They worked hard to Seventh year on the market. Two types. Makes all kinds of Festooning. Type No. 1 will wrap on any size wire, string or twine used for its center. One turn with handle gives two wraps on festooning. Center wire can be measured before Festooning is wound, which eliminates measuring of Festooning. Type No. 2: Fine wire or string is used for the center, one turn with handle gives one wrap on Festooning. Does equally as good work as Type No. 1. We furnish machines ready for work, with enough wire to make 500 yards. Three days' trial allowed. Money refunded if machine is not what you want. Prices: Type No. 1, $12.00; Type No. 2, $6.00. carry out their plan and got as many friends as possible to attend the dance, which was held Wednesday evening, December 3. The dance was a remarkable success and they both feel well paid for their time and hard work. The hall was highly decorated and every person who attended the dance wore a flower. They engaged one of the finest bands in the city and, as Mr. Prokos puts it, "the music just made the people dance." Mr. Shaffer was in charge of the refreshments and Mr. Prokos was director of the dancing.

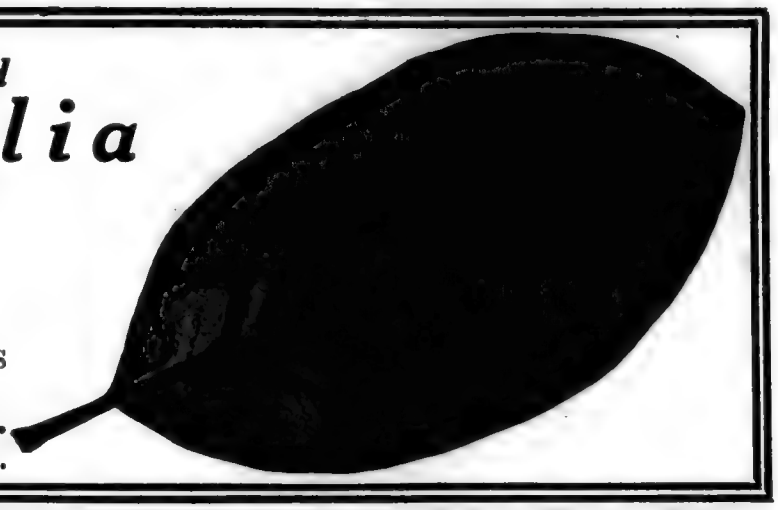
Mr. Prokos was a dancing master for eight years in Washington and Atlantic City and won prizes on many occasions. It was through his originality in dancing that he met his present wife. When the war started, he gave up dancing for more essential work; later he was employed by Z. D. Blackistone and he is now manager of Mr. Blackistone's store.

Various Notes.

Z. D. Blackistone had an attractive window display for Thanksgiving. It consisted of a table spread with a fine Thanksgiving dinner, which included glasses containing several varieties of fine wine. There was an unusually large crowd of spectators on hand and they all left with a smile on their faces, thinking of the good old times. Many people took special pains to go in and ask, "Is it real?"



Fred Leapley is taking timely steps to cope with the Christmas rush. He reports a large run on Paper Whites. He has sold ten cases already and in past years the average has been three cases during the entire season. He has also

J. H. Small & Sons have booked a number of large weddings for this month.

The delivery wagons of the Louise Flower Shop do not know what it means to be parked, as they are kept on the run from morning till night. and a grill, renewed old acquaintances in the market this week.

Frank X. Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis, was in the market December 8, looking over the prospects for good stock for Christmas.

Swan Peterson, of Decatur and Gibson City, was here December 8 on one of his frequent visits.

William T. Usinger, of the McCallum Co., spent a couple of days in Chicago this week on his way home to Pittsburgh after a trip in the northwest.

Among the weeks' visitors have been V. J. Davis and W. J. Bailey, of the Greenwood Floral Co., Fort Worth, Tex. This is a concern of recent organization. Started last year, it has three Lord & Burnham houses 41 x 150. Material has been ordered and partly shipped for another Lord & Burnham house 80 x 300, the erection of which will begin early in the new year. Business has started so well that rapid expansion of the facilities for taking care of it seems necessary.

Warren G. Matthews, of Dayton, O., spent December 5 in the market. He was buying for Christmas, but said he was moving cautiously because of the uncertainties resulting from the fuel situation.

Mr. Heffron, of the Heights Flower Shop, Cleveland Heights, O., was here last week. He buys only first quality merchandise.

W. C. Johnson, of Johnson's Greenhouses, Memphis, Tenn., arrived December 9, to look over the Christmas supply.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Olympia, Wash.—S. E. Sanford has leased the Capital City Greenhouses from Conrad Klam and is now manager of them.

Capitola, Cal.—James A. Brown, manager of the Brown Bulb Ranch, recently has returned from one of his semiannual business trips to the Atlantic coast. He was absent about seven weeks and was accompanied by Mrs. Brown. His father, who has been president of a bank in Indiana for many years, is closing up his business there with the purpose of coming to Capitola to take charge of the office of the bulb ranch.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

The weather has been bright but cold during the week just past, making it pleasant but not conducive to rapid growth; consequently, stock of all kinds is constantly getting shorter in supply. Carnations are about the best thing on the market, but the growers are holding the stock so high that they check business, especially in out-of-town shipments. Indoor-grown carnations are higher in price than they have been for a long time and the demand is fair. Roses are still scarce, but those coming from inside are of good quality. Beauties are scarce and high. Mums are about over. Wholesalers say that their advance orders for the coming holidays are much heavier than usual and there is no doubt that scarcity and high prices will prevail. Growers are still holding back in their plumosus with a view to higher prices later, but this will probably have the effect of lessening the demand considerably. Plants are scarce and likely to be higher in price.

Various Notes.

Roy F. Wilcox probably did not suffer from indigestion after his Thanksgiving dinner. At any rate he had plenty of exercise. There was every indication of a sharp frost in the afternoon, so Mr. Wilcox got busy with a staff of men and smudge pots to keep the air warm in the big lath house at Montebello. It must have meant a big outlay, but it had the desired effect and the report was that absolutely no damage was done to the firm's stock of kentias and other valuable plants. Another instance of the value of eternal vigilance.

R. H. Daschbach, coast representative of the A. L. Randall Co., of Chicago, has just returned to his headquarters here after a successful northern trip.

A visit at the establishment of Bassett & Washburn, at Sierra Madre, shows great strides being made. The propagating houses are working full blast and the small seedlings are coming up apparently by the million. As far as could be seen, not a leaf of any of the kentias of any size had been injured in the recent cold snap and everything about the place speaks of progress.

W. Armacost has been on the sick list for a few days.

Arthur Gleave, of Gleave's Flower Shop, Santa Barbara, has been in town for a few days, looking up holiday stock, and he intends going from here to San Francisco with the same end in view. Mr. Gleave said his Thanksgiving trade was a winner this year.

Alois Frey is building a residence on his San Fernando property. He has several acres of freesias promising well, the growth being about six inches high now.

E. Amling, of Chicago, is looking about for suitable land in this section with a view to a large growing plant. Several relatives of his are here or are coming to get acquainted with the hang of things before making the start. There is always room here for good people.

A rather hurried look around the Wright's Flower Shop greenhouses, at Moneta, shows everything in finest order. With the recent additions, about 50,000 rose plants are grown in all the popular kinds and a healthier lot of stock would be difficult to find. Mr. Wright's plan with roses is to have a continuous cut of medium-length flowers the year around rather than to pinch for extra long stems around the holidays, the store, of course, having to be taken care of at all times. Some benches are pinched for extra long flowers, these consisting of Premier, Columbia and Ophelia principally, and the flowers and foliage superb. Bunches of the pretty little Mrs. Aaron Ward are attractive, the flowers being much in demand for corsage work. The Beauty section is also fine. About 2,000 plants of cattleyas in all the popular kinds are grown, the Trianæs bristling with flower buds now. A number of these plants were purchased at Pasadena and many extra fine types are included. The phalænopsis plants here are surely a marvel of good culture. P. Schilleriana is grown in large cork baskets and cork blocks and the long slate-colored roots have simply covered these. The foliage is excellent—long hard leaves of great substance and a forest of strong flower spikes. Yet Mr. Wright says no particular care is given them and it seems to be just a case where the right investment and a suitable house have led to such fine results. A large number of cyclamens are grown strictly for cutting, but besides these there are several thousand fine specimens in all sizes from small stock for working up in baskets to large finished specimens and every plant shows the same high culture. There are also about 1,000 azaleas that will be ready for the Christmas and New Year's business. A house of gardenias is a little late, but is making splendid progress, the plants being benched in soil to which a liberal addition of humus has been made. Evidently this material is right for gardenias and also for ferns, since the house of various adiantums is looking fine, especially Glory of Mordrecht, or gloriosum, as it is misnamed locally. The fronds on these plants are as good as those of well grown Farleyense. The whole place, in short, is in perfect order and it is a pleasure to visit it.

The Redondo Floral Co. store is a busy place these days. Funeral work, especially, keeps the whole staff on the jump.

Still more novelties are arriving at Darling's Flower Shop and there is a wonderful display. Some of the Italian glassware is strikingly beautiful and altogether it is an exhibit worthy of the highest praise. It looks as though, with the scarcity of plants, there will be a big demand for these art objects and Mr. Darling will surely be prepared. Some excellent azaleas are also being shown this week.

Large orders for wild cherry and desert holly wreaths are being sent out from the L. A. Floral Co.

The City Nurseries, of Redlands, have a fine stock of cyclamens again this year and Mr. Collett reports a brisk demand for the plants.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

A slight lull was noticeable in both wholesale and retail business immediately after Thanksgiving, but December 1 found business again coming up to the high mark which has characterized it during the greater part of 1919. The holiday just past was the occasion for a great number of social affairs, practically all large dinners, providing a goodly amount of work for local decorators.

Of the cut flowers, roses are now taking the lead in both quality and quantity. Some fine cuts are in the market and continue to bring exceptionally good prices. Russell, Ophelia, Columbia and one or two of the red varieties are the popular sellers and are in demand for shipping, due to their present firm condition.

A recent wind storm, general over the state, did considerable damage to the chrysanthemum stock on the peninsula. The growers located in protected spots were fortunate, for the blooms growing out in the open were badly whipped by the gale, which reached a velocity of over fifty miles an hour in many places. It was estimated that at least twenty-five per cent of the crop was lost. In spite of this prank played by the weather, mums are enjoying an unusually long run. The small varieties are still plentiful and look good, while there is still a fair amount of the larger blooms to be had. Long-distance shipping of these though, has practically ceased, and most of the growers are devoting particular attention to roses and violets for the shippers. During the storm, a great many of the violet plants were burned by the wind and the blossoms shriveled, but the rain which occurred a few days afterward was of such benefit to the fields that the damage will be fairly well offset.

Shipments of poinsettias from the south continue to arrive, the quality improving steadily. Few of the potted blooms have been seen as yet, however.

NURSERY: Burlingame, Calif.

OUR SHIPPERS HAVE HAD 20 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

NURSERY: San Lorenzo, Calif.

A few of the early spring flowers, freesias and narcissi, made their first showing last week and especially notable is the first cut of daffodils, which were brought in by a San Francisco grower. He quickly disposed of the ten dozen at $1 per dozen and retailers are getting from $1.50 to $2 for a dozen blooms. The bulbs from this early crop are from the Kooyman stock and both Mr. Kooyman and the grower are well pleased with the success of the early planting.

Greens of all varieties, red berries, redwood branches and other Christmas decorating material are arriving in larger and larger quantities at the local market. In addition to the uncultivated stock, which is secured in the surrounding foothill country, shipments of English holly are coming in from the north, as well as autumn leaves.

Potted plants are getting in good shape for the holidays. Azaleas, cyclamens and begonias were seen in fairly large quantity last week, but the quality of most of the stock can stand improvement.

It is thought by a number of the florists that potted ferns, palms and stock of that character will be scarce this season. So far none of the growers have given any evidence of having more than enough barely to tide them over—in fact a number of them have advised the retailer to pay particular attention to his orders for the holidays. All are advocating early buying.

Various Notes.

L. Piccetti, of the Chas. C. Navlet Co., states that the rain of last week will undoubtedly stimulate the purchase of rose bushes and ornamental shrubbery of all sorts. A particularly dry fall has held most of the planting back, but now the ground will be in good planting condition. This firm has a good supply of rose bushes and anticipates cleaning up nicely on the stock on hand. Mr. Piccetti also commented on the number of advance orders which he is receiving, due to the fear of shortage. He says that this season's prices have made no difference so far in the amount of buying.

The stock of potted plants which E. James, of Elmhurst, is bringing in is excellent. His new begonia is handled by Pelicano, Rossi & Co. and, according to reports from that firm, the variety is growing decidedly popular.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is busy with rose shipments. The Burlingame nurseries are cutting excellent blooms and H. Avansino is keeping his staff busy with this work. Russell is particularly fine, with Ophelia running a close second in the matter of popularity.

was seen at the Bush street distributing depot of the United Flower & Supply Co. These growers will have a good supply of both cyclamen and begonia plants for the holidays. In addition to their regular shipping they are sending a large amount of red berries out of town.

The nurseries of Domoto Bros. have produced some fine azalea plants this season. Mr. Domoto expects to clean up on the stock, as it is of superior quality.

Mr. Enomoto, of Enomoto & Co., reports a great many eastern orders for California red berries. In addition to this stock he is shipping the last of the chrysanthemum crop and the usual amount of roses and violets.

Gen. A. J. Gooch has found it necessary to add several helpers to his shipping force and is busy with a general stock of greens in addition to his violets.

Large quantities of evergreens, including redwood boughs, eucalyptus branches, red berries and pepper sprays, are part of the increasing stock of the Western Evergreen Co. The force is already working on Christmas wreaths and is gradually getting a good supply of made-up pieces on hand.

Mr. Martin, of Martin & Forbes, Portland, Ore., was in San Francisco last week. He intended to spend only a few days here and then to leave for Los Angeles, but his wife, who accompanied him, met with an unfortunate accident which will necessitate their remaining here longer than was originally planned. Just as Mrs. Martin was leaving the hotel to do a little shopping, she slipped on the wet pavement, the fall breaking her arm.

Frank Lichtenberg, of Los Angeles, and Harry Short, of Napa, Cal., were local visitors last week.

The Jordan Park Floral Co. has been purchased by Brown Bros., and the place of business will be moved from 323 to 309 Clement street.

Frank Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is laid up at his home with a severe cold.

A Thanksgiving window display of special note was shown at Joseph's shop. A huge, flaring, gilt basket was filled to overflowing with seasonable fruits—brilliantly colored apples, pomegranates, persimmons, etc. The handle of the basket was entwined with small pompon chrysanthemums in bronze and gold tones and gilded grapes. A suitable background of flowers following the general color scheme provided the finishing touch to the whole.

The arrival of the Imperial Potentate of the Mystic Shrine from Philadelphia was the occasion for much festivity among local members, who left nothing undone to entertain the distinguished guest. The decorations for one of the dinners given in his honor at the Hotel St. Francis were done by the MacRorie-McLaren Co., and were greatly admired by the dinner guests. In the center of a huge, U-shaped table, occupying 1,300 square feet of space, was the Shrine emblem worked out in colors. The arrangement of the emblem was suggestive of a sunken garden, for it nestled in a fragrant forest of azalea trees, cyclamen plants, palms, etc. The star was red, the crescent white and the keystone red, white and blue, while a California Teddy bear, dressed to represent a Shriner of the Golden State, stood in the center of the mammoth star, holding fast to the rope. The work was personally superintended by Manager Fred Bertrand, who also attended the dinner in the capacity of Shrine member.

Julius Eppstein, the St. Francis hotel florist, reports everything in good shape. Two weddings which took place in the hotel during the last week provided extra work for the staff.

Patrick Orr, of Albert O. Stein's force, is back after a week at home doctoring a bad cold. M. M.

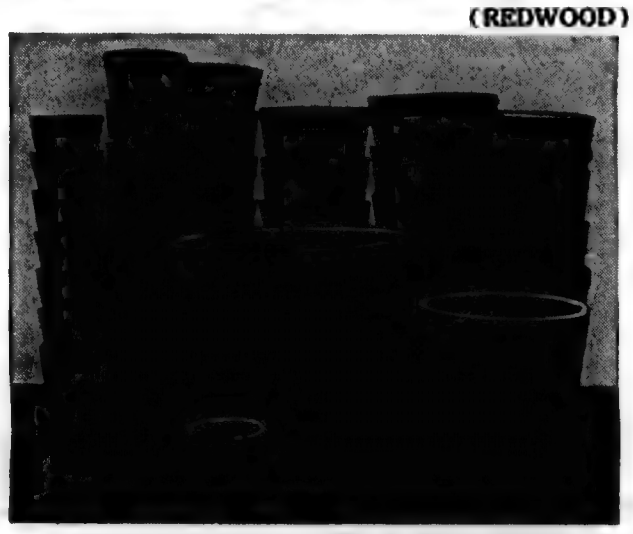
The Market.

Thanksgiving day trade left most of the greenhouses sold out of many varieties of chrysanthemums, but still there has been a good supply of Bonnaffon and Turner. Carnations are more plentiful now than at any time since the crop came in. The demand for them is not brisk, for the November flower is certainly the queen of the market at present. The supply of roses is in keeping with the demand. Ophelia especially is of good quality and continues to be the favorite with the public.

Thanksgiving business for all the trade was better than ever before. Stock of good quality was offered and there was an unusual demand for the higher-priced flowers. Turner took the lead and a great many more could have been sold had they been in the stores. Some fine Yellow Eaton was seen and brought as good a price as Turner.



Various Notes.

The city greenhouses, at Manito park, are one bower of bloom from geraniums to chrysanthemums. In winter the greenhouses are always full of blooms and in summer the sunken gardens are constantly attractive. Thousands of tourists spend a day at Manito park, which has also many local visitors. It is a great asset to the trade, as it makes more people want to buy flowers and grow them.

There is a notable increase in the demand for corsage bouquets. The war had almost put the corsage bouquet off the map, but with the boys back and the old-time parties, dinners, dances, etc., once more occurring, it has again taken a prominent place.

The Spokane Florist Co. had especially attractive windows at Thanksgiving. During the dull moments in business, one will find Harry Kipp at the fountain, learning to fish, as the firm has between 700 and 800 goldfish in stock just now.

A. J. Burt is showing some fine specimens of Primula obconica and Boston ferns.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE builders of uncompleted seed catalogues are burning the midnight oil.

BELATED arrivals indicate that there will be some surplus of giganteums to go into cold storage.

IF the Yoten Maru had remained afloat, what would have been the condition of the giganteum bulb market?

THE fall bulb catalogue of the J. M. McCullough's Sons Co., Cincinnati, reached The Review December 9.

FRED HOWLYN HUNTER, of the Hunter Seed Co., San Francisco, welcomed the arrival of Fred Hathaway Hunter at his home November 12.

SOUTHERN seedsmen report an unusually early awakening of the demand, probably due to the desire to get early vegetable crops onto the high northern markets.

SEVERAL of the seed trade from New York city were in attendance at the convention of the New York State Canners' Association at Rochester December 10 and 11.

W. F. THERKILDSON, now associated with N. W. Ayer & Son, after years as advertising manager for W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, called on Chicago seed trade acquaintances this week.

CONSIGNMENTS of seed on the Maasdyk from Rotterdam, which reached New York December 3, were 152 bags for Stumpp & Walter Co., twenty-two for Peter Henderson & Co. and seven for H. F. Darrow. Nine cases of bulbs were also on the boat.

ON the steamer Jacques Cartier, which reached New York from Havre December 3, were 4,150 bags of seed, of which 200 bags were consigned to the Crabb, Reynold, Taylor Co., 150 to the Equitable Trust Co., 200 to Lunham & Moore, 3,000 to the American Express Co. and 600 on order.

THE Papendrecht brothers, formerly connected with the bulb-growing firm of Van Zonneveld Bros. & Philippo, of Sassenheim, Holland, have gone into the bulb business on their own account, under the name of Papendrecht Bros. G. Papendrecht will be the firm's American representative, with his headquarters at 59 Adsit street, Hornell, N. Y.

FIRST VALLEY PIPS ARRIVE.

The first lily of the valley pips to reach the United States this year was a shipment of eighty cases from Rotterdam, Holland, on the steamer Maasdyk, which arrived at the port of New York December 3, consigned to McHutchison & Co., New York.

Arrival of pips from Germany will follow shortly, for the steamer Abraham Lincoln, which left Hamburg November 18 for New York, carried a consignment of eighty-eight cases for H. N. Bruns, Chicago, and 200 more for the same consignee followed on a vessel which sailed November 28.

Predictions are that the supply of valley pips will soon be back at the pre-war level. The supply from Germany, which has been cut off for four years, is again available and in addition the stocks which Holland and Denmark have been offering will continue. It is said that German growers of valley have maintained their plantings and were aided by the demand for these flowers when shipments of other blooms from Italy and southern France were cut off by hostilities. Florists in many German cities continued to do business all through the war and since they could no longer secure flowers from the Mediterranean coast, they were forced to fall back on native production, of which valley, of course, was the principal item. Encouraged by this demand, the growers of valley pips, it is said, continued the plantings at the former size. How severely they have been affected by the war's drainage of male labor from the fields is not stated. However, women were largely employed in the production of valley pips and perhaps were able to make up for the lack of men when the latter went to the front.

C. J. SPEELMAN & SONS, 38 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY

In addition to the German-grown valley will be also supplies this season from Denmark and Holland, which have furnished what pips have been received the last two seasons. To what extent these sources of supply will be maintained is not certain, but they will contribute somewhat.

The price of valley is not expected to descend at all rapidly. Pips will be high-priced, compared to before the war. German growers are asking for cash in advance, to avoid losses in case of international commercial difficulties. Some of them also are asking payment in dollars instead of marks, to avoid losses in exchange. Of course, those exporters who sell for marks are increasing the price in German coin to avoid loss in exchange.

These are the conditions which will affect the valley supply and price. What they actually will be depends upon the shipments which arrive in the next two months.

BULBS INSPECTED AT PORTS.

Ruling Facilitates Distribution.

In future seasons the importations of bulbs, which this year were inspected by state authorities, necessitating the sending out of many notices of shipment by bulb importers to their customers, will be held for inspection at the port of entry. The inspection will there be made by authorized representatives of the Department of Agriculture. After approval of them, the bulbs may be shipped to any part of the country without further restrictions under Quarantine No. 37.

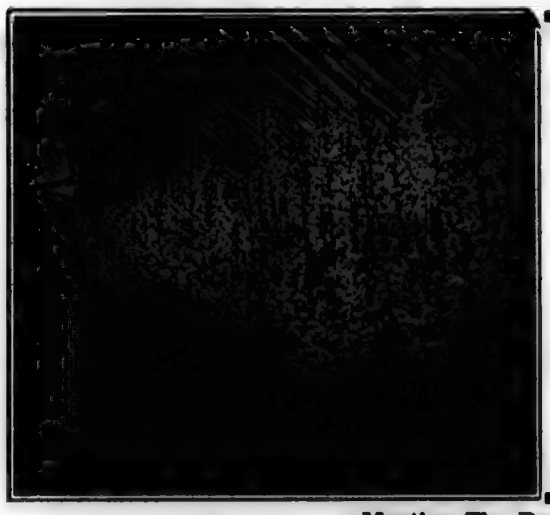
This change of procedure will relieve the importers of bulbs of the work of sending out notices of shipment to their customers. Consignments will not be delayed by state inspectors seeking to trace every individual case shipped to the interior. There should be distinct advantage to the importers in this ruling.

Statement by Board.

The statement by the Federal Horticultural Board in this matter reads:

To facilitate the entry and distribution of the importations of bulbs at the principal ports through which such material enters the United States, the board has recently ordered that when such shipments are entered at, or may conveniently pass through, any of the ports listed in regulation 6 and New Orleans, La., and Tacoma, Wash., now added to the list, all the requirements of the regulations must be met at such ports. This order applies both to shipments of bulbs which are offered for final entry at such listed ports and to shipments which may be passed through these ports under immediate transportation order in bond to interior ports.

At the ports of entry enumerated, inspection and approval for entry of bulbs by inspectors of the Department of Agriculture has been authorized by the several states as meeting the conditions of notification and inspection of shipments provided for in regulation 11 under Quarantine No. 37, and this carries with it regulation 12 as to marking of interstate shipments prior to inspection. After such inspection and liberation of bulbs by an inspector of this department, such bulbs may be shipped by the importer or his agent without further restrictions under Quarantine No. 37.



This action with respect to bulbs at these listed ports has been taken because it is impracticable in many, if not most, instances for state inspectors to follow up the hundreds of lots into which a large shipment of bulbs is often broken before the elements of the shipment reach final destination, and should prove to be of distinct advantage to importers, inasmuch as it will eliminate the necessity for hundreds of notices of shipment, and often of reshipment, of such bulbs, before the bulbs reach ultimate destination, or are inspected and passed by a proper official of a state, territory or district of the United States.

This order applies to the importation of bulbs only. As noted above, all other nursery stock, plants and seeds imported under regulation 3 must meet the conditions of regulations 11 and 12, as must also all bulb shipments for which permits have been issued for other exterior ports of entry or which must pass through such ports to interior ports of entry.

With respect to the entry of bulbs at the listed ports, the board, under date of September 20, issued substantially the following instructions to its inspectors at these ports:

"Hereafter the inspectors of the board at the ports of Boston, New York, New Orleans, San Francisco and Seattle, together with the collectors of customs at such ports, will be provided with copies of permits issued for the entry of bulbs. The notices of arrival called for in regulation 10 must be submitted by the permittee to such inspectors in accordance with the general provisions of that regulation.

"All bulb permits will be stamped 'Must be held for inspection at port of arrival.' The permittee will be required to keep the importation together on the dock until it has been released by the inspector of the board. The inspector of the board will examine the shipment at his earliest convenience for the purpose of determining its agreement with the per-

VICK'S ROYAL ASTER (Early)

ORDER YOUR ASTER SEED NOW

Hart & Vick :: Rochester N. Y.

Six Reasons for Ordering Early

1—At the time we have a good stock of new seed in the varieties and colors we list here.

2—From general Aster crop reports we believe there will be a shortage of new seed.

3—At this season of the year, before our spring rush begins, we can give every order prompt and personal attention.

4—Have your new Aster seed on hand, ready to use when you want it.

5—Early in the season every item on your order can be sent to you. Later some varieties may be gone.

6—Our aim is to give you complete satisfaction. Ordering early will make this possible.

Our Aster Seed is new. It is from healthy, 1919 stock, absolutely free from stem rot and other diseases. Florists may be confident of uniformly good results in buying Aster Seed passed on by Mr. Charles H. Vick, who introduced the first Large Flowered American Aster, Vick's Late Branching.

mit and with the invoice and original certificate of inspection as to quantity and kind of bulbs offered for entry, and also as to compliance of the shipment with the other requirements of the regulations, its general condition and its freedom from pests. The inspectors of the board will cause to be opened and will inspect representative cases of the different kinds of bulbs included in the shipment.

"The permittee will be required to fulfill the condition of the notices of shipment called for in regulation 11 with this modification: Instead of sending a separate report for each ultimate consignee and the repetition of such reports for each new interstate shipment until the goods have been inspected and passed by some state inspector, the permittee shall submit one notice, in duplicate, to the Secretary of Agriculture, through the inspector of the board, giving the information required in regulation 11 and including in such notice a list of all the intended separate shipments to ultimate consignees. This list should include, for each consignee, name and address, date of shipment, quantity and kind of bulb. This notice to the Secretary of Agriculture will, therefore, take the place of the copies of the notices hitherto sent to the duly authorized inspector of the state, territory or district to which the plants, plant products or seeds are to be shipped."

URGES CANNERS' SEED TRIALS.

Speaking on the "Seed Pea Situation" at a recent trade convention, A. A. Lau, of Hartford, Wis., urged the necessity of trials of seed stocks to effect further improvements in those used by the canners of the country. On this subject he said:

"While great quantities of the people's money have been spent (and rightly so) in the development of field corn, wheat, oats and livestock, and innumerable bulletins have been published and farmers' institutes conducted to advise the farmers of the improved methods thus developed, there has been little along the line of development of the seed stocks required by the canner and which are employed directly in the production of food for human consumption. It is my firm opinion that the government experimental station in this state is the proper agency with which to act and that our state association should appoint a committee at once to coöperate with the agricultural experimental station and secure, if possible, the use of trial grounds for necessary experiments and possibly, to some extent, for the production of canners' stocks. These trial grounds should be located near some canning factory and the particular seed taken up for trial should be adapted particularly to the latitude of the trial grounds. Such trial grounds would be a valuable asset to our industry. Here would be a source of information to which the canner would always go with confidence when problems should arise as to the selection of seeds or the choice of a strain for some particular purpose. Here, also, official tests could be made of the canners' seeds as to growing quality, upon which the buyer and seller could both rely with confidence, and here problems of plant disease could be worked out, such as pea blight, pea louse, etc. The question presents itself, should each canner establish an experimental farm of his own and spend the time and money necessary to ascertain facts necessary to the intelligent purchase of his seed stocks or should there not be certain public and reliable sources to which he may freely go for the information required?

"The canner must have the best seed stocks that can be produced, not only true to type and disease-resistant, but seed stocks that are bred to the highest power of maximum production. The state and national government should come to our aid in this necessary work. The modern canner cannot tolerate the least sign of inefficiency to creep into his factory organization or to affect his factory equipment, and why should we allow it to enter the domain of our seed supply?"

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Sluis & Groot, Enkhuizen, Holland.—A 130-page wholesale catalogue of flower, vegetable and farm seeds, with three illustrations showing new varieties of vegetables. The prices of many items are omitted.

Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, Pa.—"Michell's New Crop Flower Seeds," an illustrated 24-page catalogue, arranged in the form of an order sheet. The book also contains a condensed list of vegetable seeds, and offerings of canna roots, bulbs, hydrangeas for forcing, etc.

Hurst & Son, London, England.—Two catalogues, entitled "Export Trade Catalogue of Vegetable, Flower and Farm Seeds" and "Special Offer of Flower Seeds"; also an illustrated 4-page list of "flower seed novelties and specialties."

John Lewis Childs, Inc., Flowerfield, N. Y.—A wholesale catalogue which gives chief prominence to the Childs specialty, gladioli, but also includes lists of cannas, dahlias, irises, peonies, miscellaneous bulbs and perennials; sixteen pages, illustrated. On the back cover is a picture of Gladiolus White America, a new seedling of G. America.

G. D. Black & Son, Albert Lea, Minn.—A 16-page booklet, offering named varieties and popular mixtures of gladioli, the firm's specialty; also quoting wholesale prices on surplus stock of fifteen of the leading varieties.

Harrisons' Nurseries, Berlin, Md.—Two catalogues, general and special. The general catalogue contains eighty pages, well illustrated, accurately edited and bound in a colored cover. Besides full lines of hard-wooded stock, including nut trees, it offers a good assortment of named peonies and mixed collections of irises, dahlias and gladioli. The special list is condensed to twenty small pages.

Richard Diener Co., Inc., Kentfield, Cal.—An exceptionally handsome, well illustrated catalogue, in which the specialties are gladioli and petunias; thirty-two pages and cover. Besides these two specialties, the lists comprise dahlias, cannas and a few varieties of vegetables and fruits. Among the illustrations are four pages of colored pictures, showing a pink petunia, eight varieties of gladioli and the Diener tomato.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE Siebenthaler Co., Cincinnati, O., has been incorporated with a capital of $1,000 to engage in the nursery business.

A DOUBLE-ACTING slogan is that of Overman's Nursery, Spokane, Wash., of which Mrs. Ruth Day, president of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen, is manager. It reads at the left of the letterhead, "If It Grows—We Have It," and at the right, "If We Have It—It Grows."

UNPRECEDENTED demands upon the nurseries of Fresno county, California, for all vines, citrus and deciduous fruits, have caused an acute shortage never before experienced among the nurserymen of the county. Though the planting season has not commenced, practically all vines and trees have been sold. If the nurseries had the stock, the planting this year would have amounted to fifty per cent more than in any preceding year. One of the principal reasons for the lack of nursery stock has been the shortage of rain in the last year. Farmers who planted their own stock were forced to let them die on account of all available water being used for the producing trees. This has thrown the burden of supply upon the nurserymen, who are entirely unable to take care of the present abnormal demand.

BUREAU FOR FINDING STOCK.

In a bulletin just sent out to members of the A. A. N. plans are given for the establishment of a bureau for finding stock. In it President J. Edward Moon explains the project as follows:

"Every day Mr. Watson is receiving requests for knowledge of where this or that plant may be found. To give the information now—even though he possessed it—would be unfair to members whose stock he has no personal knowledge of. In these requests are opportunities for sales—so the American Association of Nurserymen hastens to provide its members with the facilities to secure this business.

"List the stock you're 'long on' or any items you wish to sell—1 or 5000, it makes no difference—upon standard 3 x 5-inch filing cards, one variety to a card, the number and size you have, the date and your name and address.

"Send these cards in at any time to Executive Secretary Watson's office—they will be filed under the name of the variety in cabinets provided by the association.

"When inquiries are received for a variety of plant, the reply from Mr. Watson's office will merely mention the name and address of every member listing the variety inquired for. It will give only the information you provide, without additional comment of any kind. Prices and references to quality will not be furnished.

"If sufficient members list their stock, the bureau may be advertised, that it may become a clearing house for nursery stock generally. The information of what is for sale will be given anyone, but the privilege of listing stock is for members only. Information as to quantities will be given only to members.

"In order to have cards filed uniformly, use the official code of standardized plant names as prepared by the American joint committee on horticultural nomenclature and adopted by the association as standard, or otherwise your stock may be filed differently and lost track of in the association files, when being inquired for. Cards may be filed or withdrawn singly or in quantities at any time you wish."

BARBERRY ERADICATION.

"The campaign for the control of the black rust of wheat through the eradication of the common barberry," states the recent report of the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture, "is in active operation in thirteen north central states, namely, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Wyoming. State laws requiring the removal of common barberry bushes have been enacted in all these states except Indiana, Ohio and Wyoming. The campaign has been conducted in each state by widespread publicity through many channels.

"The first problem, naturally, is to locate all bushes resulting from intentional planting and induce their owners to remove them.

"The second, and perhaps the most difficult problem in the campaign, is to locate bushes running wild. The number of localities in which wild bushes are found is immensely larger than was believed at the beginning of the campaign. Through many decades since barberries were first planted in these states, the seeds have been sown in large numbers in thickets and woodlands by wild birds. The difficulty of locating such bushes in rough and broken timberland, often amid thickets and underbrush, will be appreciated by anyone who undertakes it. It is essential, however, that such bushes be located and removed. In most cases they are not far distant from grain fields, and in any case rust spreads readily from them to grain fields by way of wild grasses in their vicinity. Furthermore, if they remain undisturbed their numbers will continue to increase by the action of birds throughout the years to come.

"The third problem is to insure that every bush located is removed by the owner or agent and so thoroughly and completely removed that sprouts will not develop, or, failing this, to insure that sprouts which do appear will be destroyed.

F. M. SOAR, Little River, Fla.

"Already the number of bushes located and destroyed runs into the millions. More than half a million have been destroyed by nurserymen in a single state. Naturally, as the campaign progresses the number of bushes located each month becomes smaller. However, they are still being found by the tens and hundreds of thousands. From March to July, 1919, inclusive, more than 16,000 bushes were located in Illinois. Nearly 40,000 were located in Iowa during the spring and early summer of this year. Up to May 30, 1919, Nebraska had found 63,000 bushes. About 94,000 plants have been removed from private premises in Wisconsin, in addition to large numbers taken out of public grounds. No serious outbreak of black stem rust occurred this season, although many bushes undoubtedly remain undiscovered."

DISINFECTION REQUIREMENTS.

To secure the enforcement of the disinfection requirement under regulation 9 and to determine compliance of shipments with the certification and marking as a condition of entry provided for in regulations 7 and 8, the Federal Horticultural Board has authorized the following procedure governing the entry of plants under regulation 3 of Quarantine No. 37:

Permits will be issued for ports listed in regulation 6 and such other ports as from time to time may be approved by the Federal Horticultural Board. To the listed ports, the board has added New Orleans, La., and Tacoma, Wash., the latter as a port under the jurisdiction of the inspector at Seattle. Permits issued for shipments for other exterior ports or for shipments which must conveniently pass through such ports will in general be restricted to plants or classes of plants for which the disinfection required under regulation 9 is deemed unnecessary, such permits to be stamped "Disinfection of stock entered under this permit will not be required unless an inspector of the Federal Horticultural Board so directs."

Whether or not disinfection shall be required of the goods entered at the ports listed in regulation 6, and as added to above, is for the determination of the inspector at such port. For the present, inspectors will require disinfection only of shipments which are manifestly infested and which, in their judgment, can be safeguarded by such disinfection. In case of doubt they should apply to the board for decision as to need of disinfection. These instructions as to inspection and disinfection apply both to shipments which are fully entered at such exterior ports and to others which are to proceed in bond through such listed ports to the interior ports specified in the permits. If disinfection of either class of shipments is required, it must be carried out at the listed port of arrival. The requirement as to the disinfection or nondisinfection should be stamped by the inspector on the proper entry papers or on the immediate transportation papers.

If disinfection is required of a shipment entered for immediate transportation to an interior port, such shipment must be converted into a consumption entry at the port of arrival. Instructions will be issued later with respect to such conversion.

To determine the need of such disinfection, all shipments of the classes of plants and seeds which may be entered under regulation 3 and arriving at the listed ports, as supplemented above, even though given a permit for final entry at an interior port, must be held at such listed port of arrival, where the inspector will also determine whether the shipment complies with regulations 7 and 8. Except when disinfection is required, this action will not materially interfere with the prompt movement, under immediate transportation in bond, of shipments to the port of final entry where the conditions of regulations 11 and 12 must be met by the importer or his agent.

Shipments for which permits have been issued for exterior ports of entry other than those listed, or which must pass through such other ports to interior ports of entry, must meet the full conditions of entry under the regulations at the final port of entry.

As to importations through the listed ports, copies of permits already issued under regulation 3, and copies of all future permits, will be sent to inspectors at these ports. The permits covering trans-Pacific importations will be sent to the inspectors both at San Francisco and at Seattle, and the permits covering trans-Atlantic importations will be sent to the inspectors at New York and Boston. Importations through Newark will be taken care of by the New York inspector. Permits for importations for interior ports which may arrive through New Orleans will be sent to the inspector at New Orleans.

The customs officers at these ports of first arrival also will be furnished with copies of the permits already issued, as well as with copies of all future permits, of shipments which will presumably pass through their ports. The customs officers at ports of final entry also will be notified of this action and will receive as formerly copies of the permits issued for their ports.

Due to exigencies of traffic, shipments under permits issued for Seattle may arrive at San Francisco or vice versa. In such cases the procedure herein authorized may be carried out at either port, the inspectors at each port having been provided with a full list of the Pacific permits as far as possible. The same rule as to entry applies to the listed ports on the eastern border of the United States.

A shipment authorized entry at a listed port, but arriving in error or due to some exigency of traffic at a port where there is no inspection service, should be held by the customs officer at such port for instructions. If, through error, such shipment is forwarded in bond to an interior port, each such case must be considered on its merits by the board as to the requirements to be enforced under the regulations.

Carnation Morning Glow

Has now been on trial in the Boston Market for 4 years and has made good.
It is there considered one of the "bread and butter" Carnations.
The grower likes it because it is an easy doer.
The seller likes it because it is a splendid shipper and keeper.
The ladies like it for its rosy morning glow shade.
MORNING GLOW is early, free, with a good, strong stem. It has no tricks about it.
While not one of the largest, it is probably the most profitable of all Carnations.
Sold by the originator. Rooted cuttings.
$7.00 per 100; $65.00 per 1000.

The Market.

Latest reports on Thanksgiving show that the business was the best ever experienced, long roses being the only thing that did not clean up entirely.

Business last week continued to be good and, while not quite so good as the same week last year, reports are more than pleasing. Wholesale prices on roses have not advanced since October 15 and the stock is moving well at the following prices: Columbia and Hoosier, $8, $15 and $20 per hundred; Ophelia, Shawyer, White Shawyer and other varieties, $6, $12 and $15 per hundred. Carnations are in great demand, select stock selling as high as $8 per hundred, while shorts and splits bring $4 and $5.

Some good snapdragons are coming in and find a ready market. A few sweet peas are making their appearance, but it is feared that the supply of these will be limited for Christmas.

Various Notes.

One of the most artistic window displays ever seen in this city was viewed at the store of E. A. Lambourne during Thanksgiving week. Prepared grasses, oak berries, grape and cat-tails and a few suitable pot plants were used.

C. A. Huson and J. C. McBain, formerly with the State Nursery Co., at Helena, Mont., stopped in this city last week. These gentlemen are on their way to southern California to spend the winter.

L. B. Westholder, of Evanston, Wyo., visited the trade last week. Mr. Westholder is the owner of two stores in Wyoming. He expects the largest business for Christmas that he has ever known, if the coal strike does not cause too much trouble in his territory.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful also to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

OIL BURNERS.

Please furnish us with data on oil burners and oil as fuel for our boilers.

C. R. C.—Pa.

When either fuel oil or kerosene is used for heating purposes, it is necessary to vaporize the liquid and mix it with air before it is burned. In the case of large boilers it is customary to use either steam or compressed air for vaporizing the oil, but in heating and cook stoves and for the smaller forms of boilers and furnaces, the oil is heated and vaporized in the burner itself. On leaving the burner it is mixed with hot air from the air drum.

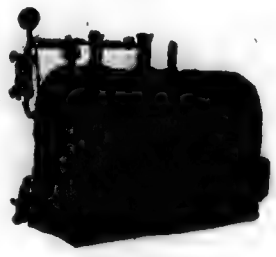
The comparative heat obtained from oil and from coal depends upon the grade of each fuel used; in general, it has been found that from sixty to 100 gallons of oil are required to equal a ton of hard coal. The use of oil for heating purposes has come into quite general use on the Pacific coast, where the oil seems to be especially adapted for the purpose and where its cost is low, while good coal is especially high in price. While on the side of oil as fuel may be put forward the expense of firing, removing ashes, etc., when coal is used, the man who would burn oil must have a large storage tank and a tank wagon for hauling the oil, and must procure and install a special burner for the oil.

Geo. W. Fisher, 47 Randolph avenue, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., manufactures the Regal burner for either kerosene or fuel oil. It is especially adapted for stoves and small boilers. The S. T. Johnson Oil Burner Co., 1337 Mission street, San Francisco, Cal., and the Rotary Oil Burner Co., 159 Twelfth street, Oakland, Cal., are among the other firms which sell oil burners.

PIPING DAHLIA HOUSE.

Please tell me how to pipe a greenhouse, running the pipes under the benches, so as to keep a temperature of 60 degrees when it is zero weather outside. The house will be exposed on all sides and will be used for the propagation of dahlias. It will be 16 x 40 feet, with three feet of concrete and two feet of glass in the sides, three feet of concrete in one end and the balance glass, and a height to the ridge of ten feet. The house is to run from east to west. Steam heat is to be used.

G. W.—N. J.



Although the house described can be heated to 60 degrees by using 160 square feet of steam radiation, it would be advisable to install a boiler with a rating at least fifty per cent greater than this; if another house is likely to

Kroeschell Tubeless Boilers

For Hot Water or Steam

For Vacuum or Vapor

It will pay you to consider the advantages of KROESCHELL BOILERS for Hot Water or Steam no matter how large or small the size of your establishment.

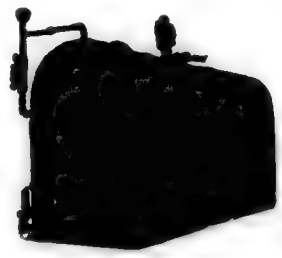
The superiority of our boilers has resulted in the removal and abolishment of hundreds of cast iron sectional boilers—in every instance KROESCHELL BOILERS give more heat with the same piping with less fuel.

KROESCHELL BOILERS have no bulky, soot-accumulating surfaces—you avoid the disagreeable work and trouble indispensable to cleaning boilers with complicated and tortuous back and forth fire passages.

NOT CAST IRON

NOT CAST IRON

The high safety factor of KROESCHELL BOILERS eliminates the danger of cracking and break-down risks.



Successful greenhouse owners everywhere insist upon KROESCHELL BOILERS because they are dependable and economical—you get better and longer service—you can reduce your heating costs by burning the cheapest grades of soft coal.

It is a sign of scientific management to own a KROESCHELL—a business management that insures a responsive, efficient and profitable heating system.

The supremacy of KROESCHELL BOILERS is proven by their country-wide adoption.

be added, the boiler should be large enough for both houses.

To heat the house, run a 2-inch overhead main two feet below the ridge and at the farther end of the house connect it with three coils under the benches. Altogether, ten 1¼-inch or twelve 1-inch returns will be required. Just how they should be distributed will depend upon the relative width of the benches, but, as a rule, the larger number should be in the outside coils.

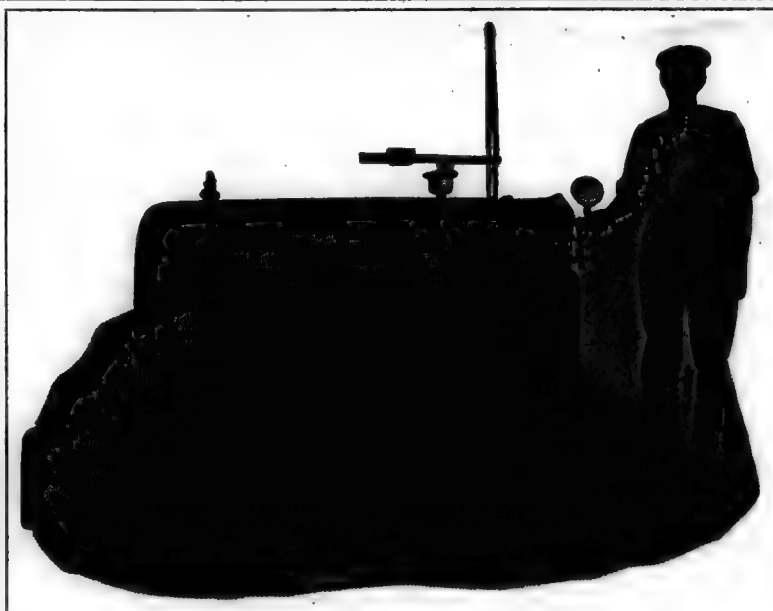
place an air valve at the lower end of each of the coils. For a house of this size it would be desirable to use a gravity system, placing the top of the boiler at least two feet and preferably four feet below the lower ends of the coils.



PIPING A SMALL HOUSE.

My new greenhouse is 10x25 feet, with 16-inch wood side walls and two glass gable ends. The benches are of earth, the path being sunken. It is seven feet from the bottom of the path to the ridge. Over the benches the glass pitches from sixteen inches on the low side to four feet on the high side. The house is roofed with sashbars and 16x18 double-strength glass. The boiler pit is in the center of one of the side benches and the stack passes directly up through the roof. Will a 1-inch flow pipe running overhead and connected with four half-inch return pipes running around three sides of the house heat it enough for pansies and geraniums during weather 10 degrees below zero? If not, what should I have? E. B. E.—Mich.

I am not sure how it is proposed to run the pipes. If the flow pipe goes from the boiler to one end of the house and the four half-inch returns run around the house from that point to the boiler, leaving half of one side and half of one end of the house without radiation, there would be a little less than forty square feet of radiation. Under proper conditions this would keep out frost, except perhaps along the side where there is no radiation; this side might be used for pansies.

I should advise piping the house with the idea of maintaining 40 degrees in zero weather, although 32 to 35 degrees would answer for stock geraniums and even less would do for pansies. For propagating the geraniums in the spring it will be advisable to have a minimum temperature of 50 degrees.

The principal objection to the plan of piping proposed is that even in a small house half-inch pipe is too small to be used with hot water heat. I should advise running a 1½-inch pipe from the boiler to a point just under the ridge and then with a slight slope to the end where the door is located. From there, run one coil of two 1¼-inch pipes around the wall to the heater and another coil of two 1¼-inch pipes from the door direct to the heater, thus placing a coil completely around the house except where the door is located. While the larger size is preferable, it will answer if a 1¼-inch pipe is used for the flow and three 1-inch pipes are placed in the coils. It will, of course, be necessary to place a small expansion tank on the highest part of the flow pipe. This may be made quite flat, so that it will not take much room.

The Market.

Mums are beginning to pass for this season, although there is still a limited supply in the market. Carnations are still somewhat scarce, but growers hope to have a more plentiful supply within two or three weeks. The supply of roses is also short, but a sufficient supply for the Christmas trade is promised. Business conditions are generally quite satisfactory.

Various Notes.

The S. A. Rogers Co., 453 Broad street, reports that the sale of bulbs during the present season has been excellent.

Charles Witheridge, 532 Broad street, finds business fairly good, but lacking real snap. R. B. M.

The Market.

All last week a shortage prevailed and other markets were called on to help out. With this condition, naturally prices have been firm and in many instances they advanced. The supply of carnations has shown no increase and little improvement in quality; rather they are weaker in stem and of poor substance. A fancy grade is not to be had, but the best arriving bring $7 per hundred, seconds $6 and shorts $4. Roses are holding out well in quality. During the week Double White Killarneys have been more plentiful; some of these are all that could be expected in quality and readily bring $20. Columbia is another best. Ophelia and Sunburst are not what they should be in either flower or stem. American Beauties of the second grades and shorts are more plentiful; fancy Beauties are scarce. Some chrysanthemums are still to be had, but they have lost their importance in the market. During the week there were some good pompons. The best of these have brought $1.25 per bunch, the bunches containing from six to eighteen sprays. F. P. A.

The Market.

Cold weather still prevails and for two or three days the thermometer stood at 20 degrees below zero. Chrysanthemums are good stock, with white and yellow Chadwick in the lead. Roses are in first-class condition, with the supply equal to the demand. Single violets have been scarce, owing to a heavy wind storm in California. A few double violets are coming along, but many of them get frozen en route. Funeral work was heavy all the week; consequently stock was cleaned up in fine shape. A number of large, elaborate weddings are booked up for the first two weeks in January. Flowering plants are scarce, with no sign of improvement for the Christmas trade, and no doubt many will have to be shipped from other markets. Christmas greens are beginning to arrive and the stores are decorated with bright Christmas colors. Many orders are being booked for Christmas and every florist is anticipating the best year yet experienced.

Various Notes.

Morris Grossberg, of the Grossberg-Tyler-Finnerman Co., Chicago, was a visitor to the trade last week.

Character Greenhouse Materials

For nearly forty years this house has catered continuously to the Florists' Trade of America.

Jealous care of its good name and of the quality of its construction materials has made the trademark "DIETSCH" of equal rank with "STERLING" as a mark by which established worth may be recognized.

You might as well be protected by it, for Dietsch construction material costs no more than other good material.

A Good Combination!

EVERTITE

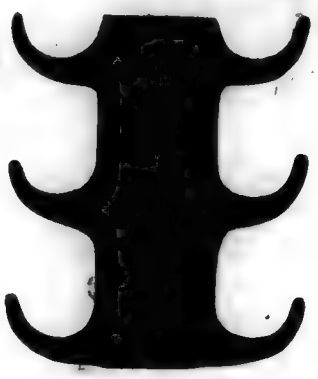
Patent applied for
S. A. KOST, Inventor.

GLAZING CEMENT Applied with an "OH BOY" Automatic Glazing Gun

Evertite Glazing Cement remains elastic at all times—forming a waterproof and air-tight joint over the sashbar. Evertite Glazing Cement will stand the extreme expansion and contraction that a greenhouse is subject to and will not check or crack—nor will it harden.

You know what putty will do. Just think how vastly superior Evertite Glazing Cement is to putty.

Evertite Glazing Cement applied with a new "Oh Boy" Gun (see cut above) makes an ideal combination. This gun, which is the last word in glazing guns, allows Evertite Glazing Cement to flow in a uniform consistency all the time. Note the ease with which this gun can be handled. Think of what you have used and draw your own conclusion.



Write us for more information, which we will gladly furnish.

The Market.

Business is excellent, with plenty of flowers to supply the demand. Prospects for a good Christmas stock of flowers and plants are good.

The coal situation here is serious for those who have only a small quantity on hand. The weather is mild, so that it might be much more serious than it is now.

Various Notes.

Miss Hester Blackman, daughter of Edward Blackman, was married November 29 to Harlan Foulke, a gifted musician of this city. The happy couple left for a two weeks' stay at St. Louis, Mo.

Karl Zeidler has returned home from his trip to Louisiana with a hunting party and reports a great time. The party killed eight deer, besides many squirrels and quail. Mr. Zeidler has plenty of coal on hand.

The Blackman Floral Co. is cutting some of the best roses it ever produced. During November the cut was about 30,000 blooms. Business is good. This firm's coal supply is low, but it is getting enough to keep going.

Niednagel & Sons are still cutting some fine mums and pompons and also having a nice cut of carnations and other flowers. This firm has a good supply of coal on hand.

The Lockyear Floral Co. has only a small amount of coal on hand and is worried as to the outcome.

Mrs. J. C. Elspermann also has only a small supply of coal on hand.

Theodore Kuebler says he has about enough coal to last till January 1.

Royston & Fenton have enough coal to run them till about February or March, depending upon how cold it gets.

Ernest Lentz, of Lentz & McConnell, of Boonville, was a visitor Sunday, November 30. He says that he has no trouble getting plenty of coal. He has the new houses planted in lettuce and as soon as the crop is cut he will stock up for the spring trade in plants and cut flowers. He says he planted two carloads of nursery stock last week. He and his partner had a narrow escape recently when their Ford truck turned bottom side up along the road and pinned them underneath, but they were fortunately not hurt. E. L. F.

Valuable Aid in Transplanting

Following is an extract from a letter from Hull Brothers, of Waymart, Pa.:

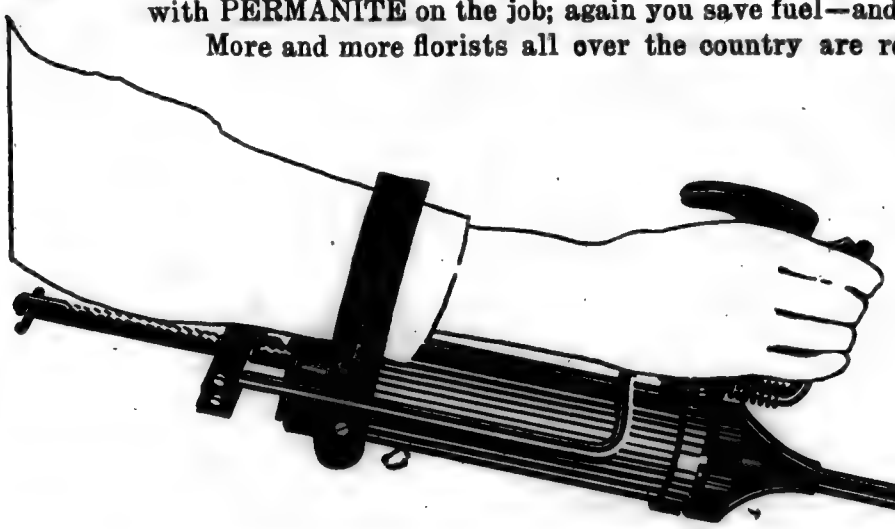
Permanite

[Trade-mark registered U. S. Patent Office.]



Your Coal Pile Coming Down?

Winter will soon be with us once more; whether you will have enough fuel to keep agoing all Winter depends chiefly on yourself; a leaky house, a house less than 100% air-leak-proof will waste your fuel; a house permanently permanited with PERMANITE will save your fuel.

Consider a house glazed with putty; after a short period the putty becomes as hard as brick and falls off; that leaves a leak in your sash—out goes the heat; putty is not elastic—cannot give with the expansion of your house—and that means more broken glass; some more leaks—out goes the heat.

Not so with PERMANITE; Permanite is elastic and stays elastic, does not harden and therefore cannot fall off. Being elastic, PERMANITE gives with the expansion of your houses, keeps them in perfect air-leak-proof condition with no chances for the heat to escape; that's where you save fuel; no more broken glass with PERMANITE on the job; again you save fuel—and glass.

More and more florists all over the country are realizing that PERMANITE is not merely a glazing cement, but also a big fuel-saver. Our latest folder on PERMANITE shows how and why—write for your copy today.

The Market.

The market is short. Everywhere there is a clamor for stock. A few straggling chrysanthemums are all that is left in this line; large ones are practically nil, but a few pompons linger.

Roses are in good demand and clear rapidly at $4 per hundred and up. The most conspicuous varieties are: Russell, Ophelia, Premier, Columbia, Milady and Hoosier Beauty. Although there is a fair supply coming into the market, a shortage of all other flowers makes them unusually popular and the supply seems meager.

Carnations are scarce, because of the recent dark weather. Good stock ranges from $5 to $8, although poorer flowers are available at $3 and $4 per hundred. Carnations are especially good property.

Other miscellaneous stock includes sweet peas, which are not yet here in large quantity, narcissi, calla lilies, calendulas, a few violets and some stevia. Lilies are limited in supply and sell at $2 per dozen. Narcissi are of good quality and move at $5 per hundred.

A few poinsettias mark the coming of the Yuletide. Potted plants are being offered in cyclamens, Jerusalem cherries, Chatelaine begonias, narcissi, obconica primroses, ferns and a few poinsettias.

Various Notes.

Bert Hitz has been cutting a large number of marigolds.

H. E. Bach, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, was a visitor last week. He has the territory formerly covered by D. L. Fern and will call on the Indianapolis trade from now on.

The December meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association was held at New Albany Tuesday, December 9.

Abe Martin recently said in the Indianapolis News, "'O' course it costs money t' 'Say It with Flowers,' but it's well worth th' difference, if you don't use good English." This helps to prove that "it pays to advertise" and that the public has learned the slogan.

E. E. Temperley is again in his home after three months' absence for rebuilding. E. E. T.

WIZARD

PULVERIZED SHEEP – PULVERIZED CATTLE
SHREDDED CATTLE

MANURE

Protects your crop. It is direct heat dried and sterilized, weed seeds, grass seeds, fungous and disease germs destroyed in a direct heat rotary drying process that does not change or destroy any of the valuable elements in crude manure.

Air dried manures cannot be sterilized and usually carry excess moisture that actually makes them cost more per ton than WIZARD BRAND even at the same or a lower price.

WIZARD TRADE BRAND MARK

Pulverized Sheep Manure

For nearly fifteen years the florists' standard of quality—always uniform and always reliable. A quick acting, powerful NATURAL fertilizer, absolutely free from chemical treatment or mixture. Order by name and be sure it's WIZARD BRAND. Don't accept a substitute.

Remember, WIZARD BRAND SHEEP MANURE is packed in extra quality 25-lb. and 50-lb. bags, and attractively printed 5-lb. and 10-lb. cartons for your retail trade. There is nothing better you can offer for lawn and garden fertilizer.

WIZARD TRADE BRAND MARK

Shredded Cattle Manure

Makes the best kind of mulch. Maintains uniform moisture and temperature in the benches. Can't be beat for young stock—keeps it growing strong and vigorous. It is carefully selected, extra quality, pure cow manure. Concentrated and completely sterilized at high temperature. No mixing and no chemicals—safe and sure—and mighty convenient to have in a storeroom for every kind of use about the place.

Always ready—easy to handle—a time and money-saver.

Look for the WIZARD BRAND Trademark tagged or printed on every bag. If it is not there, you are not getting WIZARD BRAND protection for your crop and pocket-book.

Your dealer can get WIZARD BRAND for you if you insist, or we will quote with freight rate on any quantity from a bag to a carload promptly.

CALLAS

WHITE CALLA BULBS. Clean, sound bulbs of Calla Aethiopica, the popular white Calla, all with crown shoots. Plant now and they will begin blooming in December. Figure a little; suppose you plant 1000 bulbs, 6 inches each way and get 6 flowers to a plant, (a fair average) you are making $750.00 gross on 250 square feet of bench space even if you sell the flowers as low as $1.50 per dozen, and you have your bulbs to use year after year.

Diameter of Bulbs.	100	1000
1 to 1¼-in.	$ 6.00	$ 57.50
1¼ to 1½-in.	10.00	95.00
1½ to 2 -in.	15.00	145.00

YELLOW CALLA BULBS. The true Elliottiana, brilliant yellow, with green foliage. Makes an attractive, easily grown, pot plant novelty that sells itself.

Diameter of Bulbs.	100	1000
1⅛ to 2-in.	$17.00	$160.00
2-in. and up	25.00	240.00

Cheap, poor quality bulbs take as much space and more care than good ones. Why not buy the best?

TROUBLE WITH SNAPDRAGONS.

Kindly give me the following information regarding a disease on snaps: My plants are grown in one solid and one raised bench at a night temperature of 50 to 52 degrees. The soil is kept in a moderately moist condition. The plants grow well until the spikes reach a height of about eighteen inches; then the tops begin to hang, wilt, and dry up. There are no insect marks to be seen and no rust on the plants. What remedy could you advise to overcome the disease, as the plants will not pay for the room while thus affected? The place is located at an altitude of about 7,500 feet above sea level. H. H.—Colo.

Snapdragons will wilt in the way described following a fumigation with hydrocyanic acid gas, but I have not hitherto experienced this trouble except sporadically, and in those cases merely portions of plants will die. I would suggest lowering your temperature at night to 48 degrees. Air as freely as possible. Run the plants a little on the dry side now that the nights are so much cooler and avoid giving any stimulants. If the plants are well established and need feeding, better give it in the form of a light top-dressing of old, well decayed manure. Avoid syringing the plants at all times and wet the foliage as little as possible when watering. Snapdragons from seed are the most vigorous and free from disease, but of late years all are more subject to rust, fungoid affections and stem-rot than formerly. Your altitude should not be detrimental, but rather the reverse, to the plants, as snapdragons do best in a cool climate and comparatively low temperature.
C. W.

Why Not This?

You are still considering the all-important question of the houses you MUST build next spring to enable you to cash in on the big business falling to the lot of every florist who is ready to handle it, so why not build houses like this?

The design speaks for itself and the excellence of the workmanship is evident at a glance.

Of course you're busy now. That's why we make the suggestion—it'll save your time. And it'll be a relief to have plans and estimate to study when the rush is over and you have a moment in which to relax.

It'll only take a moment to send us a letter, for pen and ink are handy.

Can't you get it in the mail today?

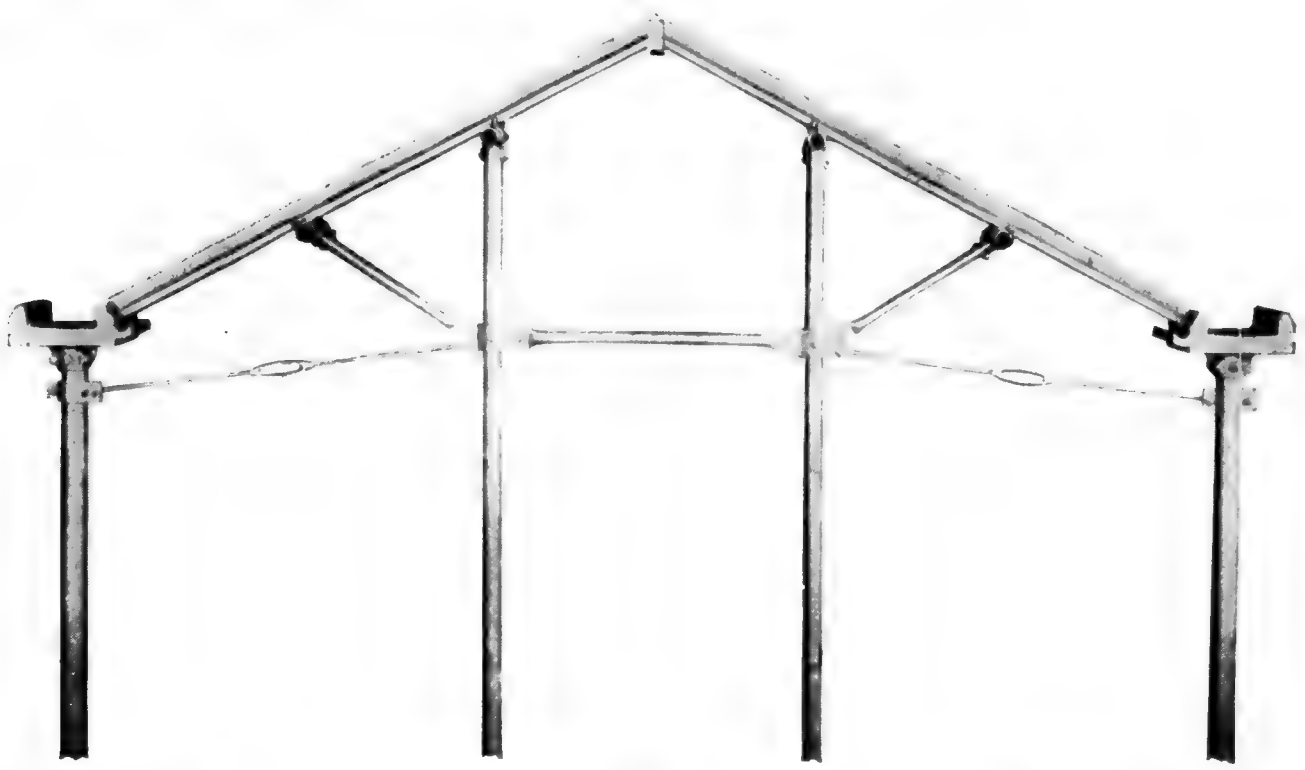
A Model Pot Plant Range

Built for the Naumann-Heepe Company, at Cleveland, Ohio.

Here is a range of our newest type pipe frame houses, built this Fall.

All supporting members are bolted together, no chance for anything to slip off and tumble about your head.



Anyone can tell you they build a strong house. Just ask him to prove to you that supports are bolted through the pipe and fittings. The John C. Moninger Co. is the only one that does this.

The Heating is Moninger Vacuum System.

The Water Supply is Moninger Pressure System.

The Service Building is 47 ft. wide. Note the self-supporting steel arches.

A wonderful range, wonderfully built.

Greenhouse Builders

The Greenwood Floral Co. Are Making Big Strides

Until a few years ago the "long horned" cattle of Texas had been the pride of the plains. Their owners, however, realizing that as an investment they did not yield as much as the "short horn" brand, which were better beef producers, gradually disposed of them, until now they are practically extinct.

Just as the "short horn" cattle have taken the place of the "long horn," so has the modern, Iron Frame Construction greenhouse taken the place of the cheaply built "short lived" house.

In 1917 we sold the Greenwood Floral Company, of Fort Worth, Texas, three Commercial Iron Frame houses, each 41 feet 9 inches by 150 feet.

They are just a forerunner, too, of what is yet to come.

Mr. Davis, General Manager, was so satisfied with these houses, and so proud of them, that he just dressed them up a bit at the entrances with pergolas and evergreen planting, which, of course, lends a touch of distinctiveness.

Mr. Bailey and Mr. Davis, owners of the Greenwood Floral Company, sure are rustlers, and last July they ordered another house 79 feet 5 inches by 300 feet.

Each gable of this house is to have 2 sets of triple doors, with a line of ventilating sash over the doors.

They intend to make a specialty of roses, and the new house is to be entirely devoted to them. Mr. Davis says that conditions are decidedly favorable—plenty of ground, good soil, sufficient water for irrigation purposes, and quantities of fertilizer, and that if this house proves a success, another will follow.

With the completion of this last house, the Greenwood Floral Co. will have one of the most up-to-date ranges in Texas.

You can have the most up-to-date range in your section—but don't hesitate; don't let the other fellow get ahead of you.

We are at your service.

HARDY LILIES

A few cases planted now come in very handy and bloom at the time when flowers are scarce. These flowers last longer than any other flowers you can use for a floral piece. They improve the character of the floral piece when used with other flowers.

We offer for immediate shipment the following varieties:

Rubrum, Album, Magnificum, Auratum

Sizes 7/9, 8/9, 9/10, 9/11, 10/11, 11/12

For four weeks we have had 485 Cases of these Lilies in our possession, or in our customers' hands. The unsold portion of this shipment is in storage awaiting your order.

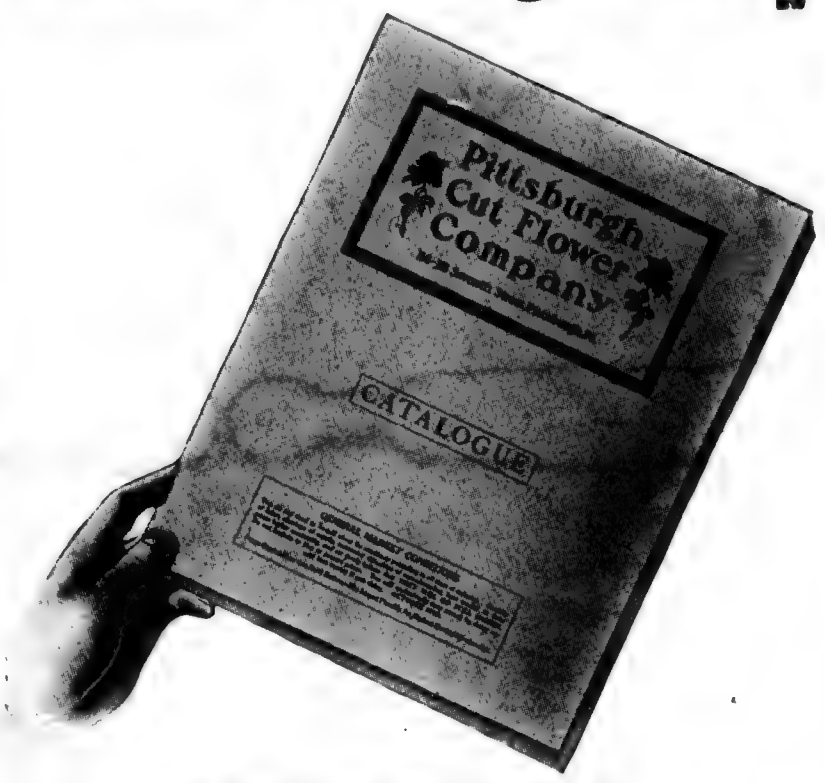
The quality of our Lily Bulbs cannot be surpassed. We positively assure you that these Bulbs have been properly cultivated to produce the best Bulbs for florists' forcing. This type of Lily grows wild in Japan, but the bulbs must be cultivated to give the results florists demand. During the war very few were cultivated for export purposes. When our Mr. Miller arrived in Japan, knowing of the scarcity, he immediately purchased fields that have been cultivated.



To produce a good Hardy Lily, it is necessary to gather the Bulbs in the mountains, where they grow wild, and then cultivate them for a season or two in open land. This method improves the quality and has been long practiced by the Japanese growers. Very few cultivated bulbs are available this season, so you can expect many uncultivated Lily Bulbs. In trusting us with your order, you assure yourself of the best cultivated stock.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

BRINGING BUYERS INTO THE STORE

Creating flower buyers out of the prosperous wage-earners who have never bought blooms before is a problem that is occupying much attention in the trade. The solution has yet to be found, but here is a device that is making customers for a live retailer in Buffalo.

AT ONE time or another people are led by their own needs or desires into the store of the grocer, the butcher, the baker, into the drug store, the hardware shop, or the drygoods emporium. Their daily life impels them to purchase at these places at least occasionally and these occasions engender familiarity that brings the buyer back again. Only the florist is lacking in a natural need that propels possible patrons into his establishment. The death of a friend or relative necessitates funeral flowers, but such occasions are, ordinarily, years apart. And the florist today is seeking to cultivate business aside from funeral work. He cannot depend on this item alone to bring in customers and he has not the natural wants of ordinary life, such as the other stores have, to attract patronage. The florist is compelled to devise by his own ingenuity means of inducing passers-by to enter his shop. The success with which he draws buyers into his establishment is dependent upon his own wit more than in any other trade.

Especially at Present.

Need for methods of creating flower buyers is particularly felt at present. High wages have brought prosperity to a class of people who have not been in the habit of buying flowers and whose environment and education have not inculcated in them any latent longing for flowers. The salaried class, formerly the genus of the general flower buyers, has felt the high cost of living most keenly, for while wages have jumped skyward, salaries have only ascended slightly and slowly. So this one-time support of the florist has weakened as the increasing prices of necessities have compelled salaried folk to curtail other items in order to meet the rent and the butcher's and grocer's bills.

How to awaken in the prosperous wage-earners the desire for flowers is a problem florists have cudgeled their brains over. The natural desires of such people, once they have money to spend, seem to be food and adornment. Herein lies the reason, say economic experts, that prices have climbed most markedly in these two classes of commodities. Expensive food and expensive clothes sell more easily and in greater quantity than ever before. But, retail florists say, these people do not buy flowers in proportion.

Is There a Way?

So the minds of florists alive to this situation have grappled with the problem of making flower buyers out of this new class of money spenders. The opportunity open to the one who can devise an effective means to this end has appealed vividly to many of the trade. But the way is not easy to find. Flower buyers are usually the product of a life's environment and education. Whether, by printers' ink or some other powerful agency, the process formerly so long can be reduced to so short a period as to be profitable to the trade, is still a matter of conjecture.

Though no general means for doing this has been found, various retailers have been conspicuously successful in devising ways of attracting the public into the flower store. Once that is done, much is gained. A large number of persons who buy flowers only at Easter, Christmas and Mothers' day are deterred by the prices they must pay on such occasions from visiting the florist at other times. Many others passing a flower store and seeing expensive pieces of floral art in the window imagine everything inside is priced above their means.

To draw such people as these inside the store, even if it is only for a small purchase at first, is an object that has occupied many retailers' minds. One of the devices that has been the result of such mental effort is that illustrated on this page. The Delaware avenue store of W. J. Palmer & Son, in Buffalo, is one of the most elaborate in the country. Its large plate-glass front, wide expanse of rug-covered floor, tables of artistic pottery, vases of long-stemmed flowers and fountain and conservatory in the rear are not calculated to produce an appearance of cheapness in the passer's mind. Indeed, it is located to cater to the automobile traffic which passes on the boulevard. Trade from pedestrians is small. Yet Mark Palmer conceived that if the persons going by on foot could be induced to enter the store, there would be just that much added to the sales.

Self-Serve Stand Makes New Flower Buyers.

Starting Small.

So he devised the self-serve flower stand. In design and construction it is simple, the illustrations of it almost explaining it sufficiently. A coin box such as is used in a street-car is the first thing to be obtained. This is set on a wooden box, into which the money falls. Around the outside of the box are glass test tubes, which can be cheaply bought at druggists' or chemists' supply stores. These tubes are held upright in a wire frame. In them may be placed carnations or roses or other short-stemmed stock.

On a summer day passers are attracted by the sign, "Help Yourself. 10 Cents Each," and drop a coin, putting a flower in his buttonhole or pinning it on the front of her dress. Mr. Palmer states that during the five summer months during which the stand stood outside the store it averaged forty-seven customers a day, or $4.70 for each day of the five warm months. He says he believes that on a street where there are more pedestrians the average would easily be tripled.

Better Than Money

But better than the actual returns in money was the missionary work that the stand did out on the walk in front. On rainy days passers missed the stand and went into the store for their flowers. When winter came the customers who had patronized the stand during the summer came into the store and made purchases. This is the way Mark Palmer puts it:

"From the time we opened our new and beautiful store on Delaware avenue, I always had a feeling that the average person who passed by and perhaps had the desire to buy a rose was afraid to come into the store. So I went outside to them. The result is, when winter comes and we do not have the flower stand out in front the customers who have patronized it during the summer come inside."

Self-Serve Flower Stand is of Simple and Easy Construction.

This is one way of bringing possible buyers into the store and creating customers by slow degrees of education. The trade can use such devices to its permanent advantage. Perhaps there are others of which it should hear.

DUMSER'S DATA.

Paul M. Halbrooks, Newark, O., cut his last mums two days before Thanksgiving and within twenty-four hours had the same benches planted to snapdragons. He is a firm believer in keeping benches working all the time.

Fred W. Arnold, Cambridge, O., has not been bothered by the shortage of coal or by the miners going on a strike. He had valuable experience during the war and has opened a mine on his twenty acres adjoining the greenhouses, so that he does not have to buy coal.

Fischer & Burkland, Youngstown, O., have been carrying two houses of mums for Christmas, but their trade calls for them every day; so they are well satisfied.

The J. Kiel Co., East Liverpool, O., has a large call for funeral work and regrets not building 50,000 feet of glass before the war, as the 20,000 feet does not supply their requirements.

McFarlands, Akron, O., have a fine lot of cyclamens, some with forty to sixty blooms and many buds, on well shaped plants averaging twenty-eight inches across. They say the local trade will buy all of them.

Geo. B. Watkin, Zanesville, O., reports his November sales this year far in excess of the same month last year. His benches are well filled for Christmas.

Harry Miller, Alliance, O., has closed a deal for a 5-year lease on a store at the busiest corner in town. It is being fitted up in modern style, with plenty of mirrors. He believes that the best location is cheapest.

Chas. Betscher, Dover, O., is having his first vacation in twenty years. He is serving on the grand jury. He says this is the first thing in twenty years that has taken him away from his work, but he enjoys his compulsory vacation at $2 per day. D. W. D.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Conditions have not been so favorable during the last two weeks. Cuts have declined considerably, due to the extremely cold weather, which is the only factor that has helped to keep the market from getting overloaded.

Mums are about out of the market. A few of medium size and some poor bunches remain, but the demand is not strong. Roses move fairly well at medium prices. Their quality is good and they are worth better prices. Carnations, which have not been plentiful at any time this season, still are scarce and bring from $4 to $8 per hundred. Sweet peas are coming in more heavily, some being of good quality, others being short-stemmed and poor in color. Violets move as fast as they come to the market. The crop is apparently quite short and the demand good. Few orchids are available and those marketed bring a good price. Calendulas are in fair supply and sell readily. Some callas and a few rubrum lilies are coming in.

The wholesale houses are busy distributing their supply of boxwood, winter berries, wreaths and miscellaneous Christmas supplies. The demand is good and the retailers are preparing for a large holiday business.

The growers are well booked with plant orders. Practically every plant grown for Christmas sale is assigned to someone and, while the variety this year is not great, the quantity is normal.

Various Notes.

Restrictions on coal for lighting and heating have caused the stores to operate only seven hours per day since December 4. This has had a tendency to slow up business to some extent, according to opinions noted. Normal hours were resumed December 15 and the psychological effect is apparent.

Mrs. M. O. Seeman has been seriously ill for the last three weeks.

Herman Hunkel says there were but two local orders for Christmas plants at the greenhouses the Monday following Thanksgiving. On Wednesday of the same week they were practically sold out.

Someone made a bit of money last year on stevia. This year every grower has some and no one will make anything. This happens every year with the item that had the strong call the year before.

Walter Maas has a new Dodge delivery car, also a motorcycle with side car for specials.

Richard Lietz, who suffered a broken rib while moving a case of bulbs into his store, is getting along nicely and will be fit for the Christmas rush. A. H. M.

Kansas City, Mo.—H. C. Pfeiffer, proprietor of the Gladstone Floral Co., has acquired the St. Mary Greenhouse, 2215 Jackson street.

TATE'S TIPS

THE HIGH COST OF FLOWERS.

What Is the Advance?

The questions, "If the grower is obliged to pay 100 per cent more for everything that is used in the production of flowers, what must he demand for his product?" and "If he demands a legitimate return, what effect is this going to have on the retail store?" were the subjects for discussion at a recent florists' club meeting. After a lengthy debate, the only phase of the problem that was clearly established was the fact that production had advanced 100 per cent in the last five years; indeed, there were some who made the claim that 100 per cent would not cover it. There is no end of discussion as to what the proper advance in the price of flowers should be, or just how much advance the public is going to stand before they will stop buying flowers.

Going back to pre-war conditions, let us see just how much the cost of flowers has advanced during the last five years. As I write this I have before me a price list, dated November 16, 1914, issued by one of the most reliable wholesale firms of an eastern city. A comparison of the prices quoted in this with a price list, from the same city, published in The Review November 13, 1919, will give us a clear idea of what the advance has been in the wholesale market. It might be well to remind readers that the dates of the price lists we are considering are at the time chrysanthemums are at their height, thus causing the prices of roses in both years to be below normal, with such varieties as Premier and Columbia missing.

Prices Before and After War.

We will start with American Beauty. The 1914 list has five grades quoted, viz.: Special, $22.50; fancy, $20; extra, $15; first, $10; second, $8. The 1919 list has two grades: Long, $50 to $60; short, $12 to $20. The figures for mums, which controlled the market during the weeks quoted, are, for 1914, $10, $12 and the best at $15 per hundred; in 1919, fancy are $25 to $30, select $15 to $20, ordinary $5 to $8. Cattleyas in 1914 were $40 per hundred; in 1919, $100 to $150. Space will not permit more figures; anyone who files his price lists for reference can easily make comparisons. The above figures show that a substantial increase has been made.

Now, taking these figures as a basis, is it not reasonable to assume that the growers' profits are as great in 1919, with the increased cost of production, as they were in 1914? These figures seem to indicate that the increased cost of production has been taken care of and any florist who finds that with the prevailing quotations of today he is unable to meet his cost of production, with a fair profit besides, would better look elsewhere for the reason.

Keep Cost Down and Quality Up.

The florists' business has now advanced to a point where efficiency in production is just as necessary as in any manufacturing business. Both grower and retailer should remember that it is their duty, through efficiency in producing and distributing their product, to put it into the hands of the consumer at as reasonable a cost as will be consistent with quality. The public expects to pay more for flowers, just as it does for everything else, but we should remember there is a limit and should make it a point to study the consumers' interests as well as our own.

Another point we should remember is that flowers are not an absolute necessity, in the sense that they cannot be done without, but the same can be said of every automobile built for pleasure. Take any of the large automobile factories and you will find that they have efficiency experts whose business it is to keep the cost of production down and the quality of the machine up. Competition compels them to do this. And the time has come when the florists must consider these two important points.

Will the Public Pay?

Let us look for a moment at the second question quoted at the beginning of this article, "What effect will this have on the retail stores?" This can mean but one thing—will the public pay the advanced price the retailer is obliged to charge? Several who spoke on the affirmative side of this subject said they were unable to get all of the stock they required. I have been around to a number of growers and there is certainly no part of their ranges idle and, as far as I can see, there are as many flowers produced today as there ever were. The wholesale houses are well cleaned up at all times. Then is it not reasonable to assume that there are as many flowers being sold today as ever? Any retailer will tell you that business this fall has equaled that of last year. Is not this, when you take into consideration the epidemic of flu, an indication that business is improving?

There is just one point I want to call attention to, and my reason for doing it is that I have heard it quoted so often. It is this: An old customer will often come in and ask the price of a certain article. When he is told, he will say it is ridiculous and sometimes will go out without making a purchase or will be compelled to take something else. I believe this is the greatest cause of the uncertainty that exists today among the florists. Remember your business is passing through a process of change; people are buying flowers today who never bought them before. Be guided by the gross business you transact and not by the complaint of an individual, no matter how good a customer he may be. Of course, it is well to try to educate such a customer and in most cases you will be able to reason with him. Every retailer has the same conditions to contend with. Be firm, though courteous, and you will win out.

To sum up on the question, I believe that the grower is now getting for his product sufficient to meet the advanced cost of production and that the retail branch of the business has never been in a more healthy condition. Tate.

PERSONAL GLIMPSES

BUSINESS WOMEN.

Hester A. Getz.

One of the most salutary signs of the times is the increasing part being played by women in fields formerly regarded as the exclusive province of men. Perhaps the realm of politics supplies the most striking examples. The business world of today is replete with instances of the widow assuming the burdens of the prematurely departed husband and bearing them with signal success, and of the young woman who, after thoroughly training herself, initiates a business of her own, to say nothing of the wife or assistant to whose guiding hands the success of many captains of industry may justly be attributed. The florists' business offers no exception; on the contrary, it is a pursuit in which sex plays little part and one in which women are preëminently fitted to succeed.

In Cleveland Hester A. Getz has proved beyond cavil that a woman can make good in the business of retailing flowers. Her best friends are her patrons, acquired and kept by the scrupulously exacting manner in which their orders are executed. Miss Getz employs no men upon her selling staff; she finds women better adapted to the needs of her business. Personality and refined taste pervade her shop, in which lovers of choice flowers delight to linger, the effect being a generous loosening of the purse strings. Each succeeding year finds her business increasing in volume as well as in profit. She is an enthusiastic member of the F. T. D. and regularly attends the conventions in quest of new ideas, and her belief in the merits of publicity is attested by her contributions to both the local and national funds. Hester A. Getz is a type of the new business woman destined to play an important role in the future of the commercial flower business.

Helen M. Schluraff.

Those who know this energetic woman cannot help admiring her because of the degree of success she has achieved. The manner in which she has pushed aside obstacles and forged her way to the front would be a credit even to members of the sterner sex. Hard and intelligent work, united with a determination to succeed, is responsible for the enviable standing of Helen M. Schluraff, at Erie, Pa., in the florists' business today.

It is an acknowledged fact that women get closer to their business and give greater attention to detail than do men; such traits inestimably qualify them to win. In the conduct of a retail flower business the little things are of prime importance and their neglect simply means greasing the chute by which the florist readily glides into bankruptcy. Since the greater number of flower buyers are women, it is meet that they come into contact with members of their own sex in having their floral wants supplied. Aside from actual necessity, the love of one's work regulates the degree of energy applied to it and the effort so prompted is the most productive. Knowing well her work and equally resolved to prosper, Helen M. Schluraff has achieved a success which might serve as an inspiration to all women aspiring to a business career.

B. S. Fearn.

It has been justly observed that women florists give closer attention to the appearance of their stores than do male members of the profession. This is particularly true in the smaller cities. Stepping into the Elyria Flower Shoppe, of which B. S. Fearn is proprietor, at Elyria, O., one accustomed to visiting flower stores is immediately impressed with the force of this assertion. A woman of refined taste rarely fails to appoint her place of business in a handsome manner. This, with a discriminating nicety in handling orders, is an asset which women bring to the profession.

B. S. Fearn entered the florists' business because she was intensely fond of flowers and succeeded in it by reason of her devotion to its needs. She insists upon personally opening her store in the morning and closing it at night. Scores of patrons go regularly to her place of business feeling assured that their orders will be given the proprietor's personal attention. Service is the watchword and its practical application brings the inevitable reward, increased business. An electrical "Say It with Flowers" sign in front of her shop, visible a great distance by reason of its prominence, supplies evidence that B. S. Fearn fully appreciates the advantages of publicity and is profiting by its intelligent use. What was formerly an ordinary flower store has been changed to an up-to-date and prosperous business by the enterprise of its present proprietor, which is proof positive of her ability as a business woman.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The market opened at the beginning of last week with a fair amount of activity and continued so throughout the week. The retail stores are more and more festive-looking, most of the downtown stores being now decorated for the approaching holiday.

Cut flowers are not plentiful and prices are approaching those of previous years. The chrysanthemum season is practically at an end, save for a few late varieties which are showing up in small quantities each day. These are bringing good figures and, owing to the scarcity of other flowers, are much in demand. Pompons are also seen, but the supply is quite limited. Good cattleyas and cypripediums are on the market, but prices on the former are quite high and the demand is somewhat slow. Good mignonette is seen and moves well. Paper White narcissi reach us now in heavier supply, but are not any too plentiful as yet. They are of good quality and sell freely.

There is a satisfactory supply of roses reaching the market each day and, since there is a steady demand, no surplus is left. The demand is chiefly for the medium grades, but there is no difficulty in disposing of both long and short stock. Fine Columbia is reaching us at this time and is especially well received. There promises to be a good supply of red stock for the holidays. Violets sold better during last week and the quality is good. Single violets do not move so readily. Calla lilies are reaching us in small quantities and sell well. Bouvardia in pink and white arrives in small quantities and is of good quality. Snapdragon is also seen.

Christmas greens are arriving in excellent shape and there is a splendid supply of laurel and laurel roping on hand. Boxwood this season is exceptionally good and the demand is good. Ground pine is also selling readily. Mistletoe is in good condition. Winter berries and partridge berries are of special good quality and sell well. The early shipments of holly are in good condition.

Various Notes.

George F. Boucher has both his East Main street and his East avenue windows filled with Christmas baskets of helichrysums and other dried flowers and foliages, the production of Arthur M. Newborn. They are artistically arranged and attract considerable attention.

Alberts the Florist has an attractive window arrangement, in which fancy vases, ferneries and jardinieres are seen in large quantity, all nicely filled with strawflowers, berries and artificial flowers. He is doing a fair business in holly and pine wreaths.

The Rochester Floral Co., of 9 North street, has recently installed a new electric sign bearing the word, "Flowers." The sign, which is set at an angle, is clearly seen from the main street; since the word is of ordinary block letters, it is easily noticeable. This store reports good business so far this month and the outlook for Christmas is promising.

E. R. Fry, of West Main street, reports a large amount of funeral work recently. He is making good preparations for the holiday and his store is especially attractive in its decorations and Christmas novelties.

James Macgregor, of Parsells avenue, is doing a good business in that section of the city. He is making up a lot of Christmas novelties, including a large number of gourds which he is filling with helichrysums, etc.

Visitors to the trade last week were B. Kimball, of Syracuse, N. Y.; S. W. Morgan, of Le Roy, N. Y.; Mrs. Percy Patrick, of Auburn, N. Y.; R. W. Merrill, of Sayre, Pa., and the manager of the Exchange Flower Shop, Geneva, N. Y.

George B. Hart is growing some fine ferns and palms at his greenhouses in Fairport, N. Y.; they will be in good shape for the Christmas rush.

George Cramer has been busy during the last three months making up birch bark baskets of all sizes and shapes. He is about through now and expects to leave town in a day or two for Buffalo to assist one of the florists during the holiday season.

PAINESVILLE, O.

Beginning the first of the year, the firm of T. R. Norman & Sons will run their nursery on a profit-sharing basis with all employees who have been in their employ two years or more.

R. A. Hacker, probably one of the most successful propagators of shrubs, roses, etc., in northern Ohio, reports a highly prosperous season.

H. P. Knoble and Shep. Norris, of Cleveland, motored to Painesville on a business trip Saturday, December 13. Mr. Norris is superintendent of the Friedley Co. greenhouses.

Joseph Martin started in business for himself recently. Mr. Martin has ten acres well stocked with nursery stock, perennials, etc.

Carl Schmidt, foreman for the Carl Hagenburger Co., West Mentor, O., has reason to be proud of a house of cyclamens grown by him. Some of them measured two feet across. They met with ready sale to the Cleveland retail trade. There were 2,000 plants in all.

Kallay Bros. have enlarged their seedroom and have also built a new cellar and packing house for nursery stock.

The nurserymen in this section say that fruit trees are scarce and will double in price. Plums will be hard to get at any price.

C. C. Hallinan says he has had an exceptionally good demand for perennials, shrubs, etc., this fall.

The Carl Hagenburger Co., at West Mentor, O., sends its Packard truck on two trips daily to Cleveland. This not only saves express charges, but also gets the shipments to customers in first-class condition.

E. H. Schultz, manager of the Wayside Gardens, Mentor, O., says that 1919 has been the banner year. With many orders already booked for spring delivery, the coming season promises to surpass all previous ones.

Wilson the Florist has had a beautiful window display of Christmas flowers.

T. J. M.

Akron, O.—Recently the Heepe Co. received a $1 order for flowers, to go, according to the order, "to the Akron Chamber of Commerce, in appreciation for getting us some coal." Narcissi to the value of $1 were immediately sent to the chamber's office.

Ferns

FIGHTING FERN CATERPILLAR.

I noticed with considerable interest an article in The Review, December 4, regarding a worm which works on ferns and the trouble which numerous florists are having with this pest.

Our firm had considerable trouble with this worm some time ago for about two years before we exterminated it after a loss of several thousand dollars. It is no trouble at all to get rid of this pest if you have the right remedy, but it took us two years to find it. We sent samples of this worm to the state entomologist, Purdue University and the University of Illinois, with no results. We found a number of remedies which would kill the worm, but which if used strong enough would kill or ruin the ferns also, and consequently we did not have a salable fern for more than two years.

Through the courtesy of J. D. Eisele, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., we were advised to use pyrethrum, a form of insect powder, blowing it on about once a week. After several applications we exterminated this pest entirely.

Homer L. Wiegand.

FERNS HAVE WEAK FRONDS.

Kindly tell us the cause of fronds on Boston ferns getting weak near the root. The fronds seem healthy, but for some reason they grow brown and get so weak that they cannot hold their own weight. We cannot determine whether it is caused by the condition of the soil or whether it is a disease. Kindly give us any information you can.

W. S.—Utah.

Without seeing the ferns in question, it is not easy to say just what the trouble is, but it is quite possible that an alkaline soil has something to do with it. I would suggest giving a light top-dressing of lime, or mixing some ground limestone in the soil. This would do the ferns no harm and would correct the acidity of the soil if such exists.

W. H. T.

ADIANTUMS TURN BROWN.

In September I transplanted some adiantums from one bench to another. They had been doing finely up to that time, but now the new growths turn brown as fast as they are formed. The adiantums are planted in black sod loam, mixed with sand, well rotted manure and leaf-mold, all thoroughly incorporated. Among forty plants, there are only two that are doing well.

H. L. W.—Kan.

So far as may be judged from the description of the condition of the ferns, this would seem to be a case of giving too much food. It is probable that too much manure has been mixed with the soil, and the plants may also have been overwatered. This combination would check the root action of the plants; consequently the young fronds would fail to mature. Try keeping the soil somewhat drier until the plants get established.

GLEN COVE, L. I.

Club Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in Pembroke hall, December 10, at 7 p. m. President Joseph Adler occupied the chair. James Barlow, James Allison, Simon Garden, Oscar Olson and John Henderson were elected members and five petitions for membership were received.

President Adler appointed Henry Gaut, James MacDonald and William Preston to judge the monthly exhibits, and their awards were: Pot Paper White narcissus, James McCarthy, first; three heads of celery, James McCarthy, first; twenty-five Brussels sprouts, Thomas Henderson, first.

Since the last meeting, D. S. Smithers, an honorary member, had died and the secretary was directed to write a letter of sympathy to Mrs. Smithers. The treasurer read his annual report, which shows this society to be in a strong financial position.

President Adler appointed John D. Johnstone chairman in charge of election, and Henry Gaut and John Westlake as tellers. Thomas Twigg was elected president and Mr. Millstead vice-president. Edward Harris was re-elected secretary and C. J. Brown treasurer. Joseph Adler was elected trustee for three years and Arthur S. Cook corresponding secretary. Messrs. Westlake, Henderson, Watson, Frampton, Smith, Young and Carter were elected on the executive committee.

Mr. Popp made a few remarks on the assistant gardener and offered a prize for the best decorated basket of flowers, to be competed for at the June meeting by assistant gardeners.

Maurice Fuld made a few interesting remarks on the work the Garden Club of America has planned to do in the coming year.

There was a record attendance at this meeting and a motion was made and carried that the secretary put in the minutes the attendance of each meeting.

Exhibits for the January meeting will consist of twelve carnations, twenty-five freesias and three poinsettias.

Arthur S. Cook, Cor. Sec'y.

CARNATION SOCIETY MEETING.

In Chicago January 21 and 22.

Carnation growers expect a good showing both of exhibits and members of the American Carnation Society at Chicago January 21 and 22. All entries must be in the hands of the secretary, A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, not later than January 12. In the schedule of premiums, which has just been issued, plans are outlined as follows:

The twenty-ninth annual convention and exhibition will be held in Chicago, January 21 and 22, 1920. The exhibition, the business sessions and the banquet will all be held within the La Salle hotel. Please note that the date is one week earlier than our customary convention date.

Conditions having been restored to practically normal, we are returning to our regular premium schedule. Railroad and express service have improved to such a degree that there should be little difficulty in getting shipments through in good order. Plan now to exhibit your new varieties or the standard sorts, for which classes are provided. The exhibition committees will stage your blooms if you are unable to attend in person. Notify the secretary in advance and prepay the express charges. If you have a noteworthy plant or specimen flower, space will be provided for exhibition.

Only the judges will be permitted in the exhibition room while the awards are being placed. After the completion of this work and until 8 p. m., the exhibition will be held for inspection by the members. After 8 p. m. the public will be admitted. In the morning of the second day the Chicago Retail Florists' Association will take charge of the exhibition, rearranging the blooms in vases, baskets and other displays suitable for public exhibition. The medal classes, the certificate of merit classes and the Kerr special class will be held intact.

The first business session will be held at 8 p. m. Wednesday. A second session will be held Thursday morning. Reports of committees, nominations for officers and invitations for next meeting place on Wednesday evening. Election of officers and selection of next meeting place on Thursday morning. Banquet on Thursday evening. Register and secure your banquet tickets immediately upon arrival. Wear your A. C. S. button.

EXPERIMENT WITH SOIL.

I have two benches in my carnation house where I expected to bench snapdragons, but I couldn't get any when I was ready. What can I put in there that will give the biggest returns? What about gladioli?

The soil proposition is the worst thing I have to contend with here. I have to haul black mountain soil about twenty miles. The soil here is adobe and full of alkali; so I tried an experiment, using two-fifths mountain soil, two-fifths pure gypsum and one-fifth rotten cow manure in one bench. The rest is all mountain soil. (This mountain soil is not leaf-mold.) The carnations in the experimental bench have gone ahead of the rest of the benches by leaps and bounds. There is an unlimited supply of gypsum within easy hauling distance. Would you advise the use of this mixture for all purposes? I had been told there was no plant life in gypsum.

Will the carnation plants I throw out next summer, if cut back and planted, bloom in the fall in the garden? Or would it be better to start early cuttings and plant them out?

D. F. C.—Colo.

You will find over a column of snapdragon advertisements in the Classified section of The Review. If your market will absorb the cut from a bench, they will probably pay you better than anything else you could bench now. Calendulas, too, would give a splendid cut within a short time if you will buy plants from 3-inch or larger pots. The best strain obtainable will be the most profitable in the end. Gladioli would do well if planted soon. Do not try to force these, or failure will surely result. We find 50 degrees just about right for them. Keep the temperature right and guard against red spider, their worst enemy in the greenhouse.

Carnation plants which have bloomed all season do not make ideal stock for planting out for blooms during the summer or fall. Young plants grown from early-struck cuttings will give better results. Probably the best results would be obtained from late-propagated plants, potted into 3-inch or 4-inch pots in the fall and carried over in coldframes until spring, at which time they could be planted out, blooming by early summer. If your climate is not too severe to carry them through the winter in coldframes, this would be the ideal plan.

Your local growers or your state agricultural experts could give you better advice on the soil question than I. They are familiar with your local conditions, while I am not. However, if you find something that gives better results than what you are using, lose no time in substituting. That is the way to progress. A. F. J. B.

FROM HANSEN'S HANGAR.

Kansas City, Mo.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. has been spending about $300 a day getting wood for the greenhouses. Twenty men are employed to cut timber at $4 a day and the loading and unloading is a large item.

Kansas City business has been curtailed on account of all amusements being discontinued during the coal crisis.

St. Louis.

Considering the shortened hours lately prevailing, the spirit of the florists is wonderfully brilliant. Practically everyone is looking forward to a big Christmas business. St. Louis uses many orchids, both cattleyas and cypripediums, as well as vandas and other spray orchids. Beauties are seldom seen here. There is a good supply of local violets.

The St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. has probably the finest appearing wholesale store in the country; the front is decorated, the finishing inside is green and the tables are polished.

Joseph Witek, at 4748 McPherson avenue, is a good way from the center of the town, but his location enables him to handle not only large quantities of cut flowers of the usual grades but also much fancy work.

Memphis.

Memphis stores occupy little space. When one enters a place such as Nell's Flower Shop the adage, "Good things come in small packages," enters one's mind. There is true harmony here. Flowers come from the Chicago market principally.

Louisville, Ky.

There are many fine stores here, but the store owners do not have glass of their own as a rule.

Edith V. and David Walker, formerly with their father, William Walker, have opened a store on the opposite side of South Fourth street.

David Weller is active manager of the William Walker Co.

It is peculiar to note that the Ward rose is quite popular down here.

Indianapolis.

Indianapolis stores have peculiarities of display novelties. The Circle Flower Store, on Monument place, has an elaborately tiled floor, in the center of which there is a pond with goldfish. A. Wiegand's Sons Co. has a window of alligators; they number fifteen. H. W. Rieman's store contains one of the finest collections of birds to be found anywhere in this part of the country.

Bertermann Bros. Co. has a wonderful array of palms and ferns under glass in a section adjoining their store, which is always beautifully decorated. The Bertermanns have made themselves famous by hard work, and any visitor to their store is able to feel the radiance of activity that prevails there.

W. A. H.

CHRISTMAS IN NEW YORK.

Under date of December 16, Max Schling, Inc., sent the following letter to 2,000 florists with whom orders are exchanged:

The wholesale prices of flowers in New York are steadily increasing. We are now paying for the best American Beauties $1.25 each, for long-stemmed Hadley roses, 60 and 75 cents each. Short-stemmed roses range from 15 to 20 cents each, carnations, 12 and 15 cents each; violets vary between $2 and $3 a hundred; orchids, $2 to $2.50 each.

These are wholesale prices. What will they be at Christmas?

Therefore my personal advice to my brother florists is that when taking orders for small sums of money we must be careful what we promise. Irrespective of the present high cost, we must give our customers satisfaction; we must consider that we need these customers not only for Christmas, but all the year, and have to take care of them, especially of those who cannot spend more than $4, $5 or $6, and satisfy them the same way as those who spend $25 and more. To enable us to take care of them properly, please do try to take all orders for $4 $5 and $6 open to our selection, so that we can give them either a plant or flowers which not only represent the value of the money spent, but which will also show to the best possible advantage.

Every order filled should be a credit to us and satisfactory to the customer.

The same policy applies with equal force to other cities; orders should be of sufficient value to cover the overhead costs and good quality flowers, else they would be better not sent, and so far as possible selection should be left to the one who fills the order.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Market.

The zero weather the first part of last week taxed the capacity of the boilers of our local growers, and the cloudy weather did not help the market as to supply. But as there seems to be something of a lull among the retailers just previous to the Christmas rush, the demand has been moderate and just about enough to clean up the supply of good stock that came in daily.

Prices will undoubtedly rise greatly by the end of this week if the supply is still short of expectations. Now that the coal ban has been lifted, the growers can use coal more freely than they have for the last two weeks and that should help the production greatly. In looking over the various local wholesale markets last week, we found there was still a large supply of late mums coming in; among them a lot of extra good fancy Bonnaffons, both white and yellow. But the end of the mum season is close at hand. Roses are coming along well, and with a week of clear weather the crop should be large for Christmas, as our local growers have been off crop almost a month. Premier, Russell, Columbia and Ophelia of extra quality were noticed during the week.

Carnations are expected to be in crop for the coming holidays. The advance prices show that they will be high on all fancy stock. Violets are not any too plentiful at present, but as the weather is just right for them a good crop is expected for Christmas. Sweet peas are slow this season and only a few are coming in from our local growers; prices have been exceptionally high on the few coming into this market. Valley and lilies are scarce. The market is almost clear of them at present.

Among the miscellaneous stock coming in daily are bouvardias, Paper Whites, yellow narcissi, calendulas, mignonette, stevia and snapdragons, all of which have a good demand. Orchids have been in fairly good demand all the week, with prices up to $24 per dozen for choice cattleyas.

There is not enough asparagus and long smilax coming for the demand. Adiantum and common flat ferns are in large supply, while the demand for galax, boxwood and leucothoe has been excellent all the week.

Florists' Club Meeting.

The last meeting in the old year of the St. Louis Florists' Club took place Thursday afternoon, December 11, at 2 p. m., in parlor A, Planters' hotel. The attendance numbered fifty when President Hummert called the meeting to order, with all the officers present. After disposing of the general opening business, the chair called upon all committees for reports.

The state fair premium committee reported that the next state fair would be held at Sedalia, Mo., beginning August 7, and that the committee had offered to florists for plants and cut flowers $643 and to amateurs $64. The reports were accepted, and the committee discharged with thanks.

George Asmus, of Chicago, who was present, offered the society medals for premiums at the state fair and his offer was accepted by the committee.

Chairman Bourdet made a pleasing report of the work of the publicity committee and the amount of money being spent for advertising the sale of cut flowers and plants. Mr. Little, who has charge of all the committee's advertising, was present, and also advised the members on advertising.

A letter was read from President-elect A. L. Miller, of the S. A. F., which informed the members that he had appointed W. J. Pilcher as state vice-president of the S. A. F. for eastern Missouri, to succeed himself, which pleased the members exceedingly.

A letter was read from President J. F. Ammann, of the S. A. F., regretting his inability to be present at this important meeting, as he was addressing the growers' association in Chicago the same day, and saying that George Asmus, of Chicago, would address the St. Louis meeting on publicity work from the retailer's standpoint.

There were forty-three applications for membership ready for ballot, being read for the second time. On report of a committee of five that they were not ready to report on the applicants, and on motion, all were laid over for the next meeting of the club.

The chair then called upon George Asmus, president of the Chicago Retail Florists' Association, for a talk on publicity. Mr. Asmus responded in his usual happy manner and told the retailers what good the publicity committee is doing them in helping them to advance in business and how they should get in line with this work. Mr. Asmus consumed almost an hour in one of the best talks the members have ever listened to, and the local committee will greatly benefit from Mr. Asmus' talk. At its conclusion a rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Asmus.

The new state vice-president, W. J. Pilcher, was present, and reminded the members that this month was their last chance to become life members of the S. A. F. for $25, and that beginning January 1, 1920, the life membership will cost them $50—just double.

Treasurer Smith's report was pleasing, as it showed a healthy balance on hand.

The meeting then adjourned and the trustees announced that lunch would be served; it was much enjoyed by all present.

State Horticultural Society.

The Missouri State Horticultural Society held its annual meeting at Springfield, Mo., December 9 to 11 in the Chamber of Commerce building. Prof. H. C. Irish, of St. Louis, attended the meeting and reported that it was one of the most interesting and well attended meetings of the society and that the feature of the meeting was a talk on "The Farmer's Wheel of Progress," by Dr. Harry R. McKeen, of the Chamber of Commerce of St. Louis.

At the banquet, held Thursday, December 11, Mr. Irish acted as toastmaster. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, L. T. Connett, of St. Joseph; vice-president, H. C. Irish, of St. Louis; second vice-president, F. B. Mumford, of Columbia; third vice-president, E. L. Beal, of Republic; honorary vice-president, C. H. Durcher, of Warrensburg; treasurer, D. Lowmiller, of Parkville, and secretary, H. S. Wayman, of Princeton.

All apples on exhibition that were found worthy will be sent to Columbia to be exhibited at the Farmers' week apple show, January 19 to 23, 1920.

Various Notes.

December 11 Chairman Bourdet, of the local branch of the national flower show committee, held a meeting with George Asmus, chairman of the national flower show committee, at a dinner at the Planters' hotel to talk over prospects of holding the show in St. Louis in 1921. St. Louis can have the show, said Mr. Asmus, but we must provide a hall containing at least 180,000 square feet of space. There were present, besides the guest of honor, Jules Bourdet, A. H. Hummert, A. S. Cerny, Oscar Ruff, L. P. Jensen, W. C. Smith, W. J. Pilcher and J. J. Beneke. During the evening the prospects of holding the show in St. Louis in 1921 were fully discussed, and it will be up to the S. A. F. executive committee at its next meeting to decide.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Reburn, of Chicago, were guests at a birthday party given by Mrs. F. W. Bruenig December 5, at her home on Gravois avenue. Outside of the two guests it was a family affair.

L. P. Jensen, president of the St. Louis Gardeners' Association, says the membership of the society now numbers 125. He reports that he is now connected with the Missouri Botanical Garden and divides his time between the botanical garden and the Busch estate, of which he is head gardener.

The Siebel Floral Co., on Labadie avenue, has branched out and has opened a retail store at 1508 Cass avenue under the name of Driemeyer & Siebel. Many years back this same store was run by Grimm & Gorly.

Most of the members of the publicity committee failed to report at the meeting held December 9, owing to zero weather; only five out of seventeen members braved the cold night and transacted such business as came before them. The placing of several large advertisements in the daily papers for the holidays was approved of. No more meetings of this committee will be held until the second Tuesday in the new year.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

J. D. CARMODY.

INVENTIVENESS, in both wit and mechanics, has characterized the long career of J. D. Carmody, or Colonel Carmody, now 84 years old, whose bright speeches at S. A. F. conventions are perhaps as well known as the Carmody hot water boiler and the Carmody ventilating machine. Colonel Carmody was born May 31, 1835, at Utica, N. Y. His parents died during his early childhood. He served during the Civil war and was discharged from the army at Fortress Monroe; there he met Miss Connor, whom he married. They moved to Evansville, Ind., where they established a millinery store; that proved successful and Mr. Carmody started in the florists' business on Water street, later moving to Hull's Hill. About 1890 he sold his business to Julius Niednagel and William Halbrooks. His inventions, made at this time, were developed by men whose ability lay more in the business field than did his. He was a charter member of the S. A. F. and the first president of the Indiana State Florists' Association. His wife died twenty years ago and his adopted daughter, Miss Bessie Long, has been in recent years his constant aid. The trade lately received with welcome the news that Mr. Carmody was again in health after having been critically ill for some time in the hospital.

Contracts were let this week for the remodeling of the 4-story building at 712 Washington avenue, which will be the new home of Grimm & Gorly and into which they will move the latter part of January, to be open for business in the new place February 1, 1920. The exterior of the building will be remodeled, with huge cement flower boxes in tiers running parallel to each floor. They will be filled the entire year with seasonable plants and flowers. A canopy of bronze and glass will project over the doorway. The first two floors will be used as salesrooms and will be decorated with plastic reliefs, crystal chandeliers of distinctive design and floors of French tile. A large display of wicker ware and sun-room decorations will be shown on the second floor.

C. Young & Sons Co. furnished the floral decorations for the opening of the new Night and Day bank in the Odd Fellows' building on Olive and Ninth streets. Many floral baskets were sent by friends of the bank and, as usual at openings of this kind, it looked like a flower show.

Guy Reburn, of Chicago, who spent a week here calling on the local trade, says he never experienced a more prosperous business week than he did here. M. C. Wright, of the Chicago office of the Lord & Burnham Co., and Martin Reukauf, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, also called on the trade last week with excellent results.

All the wholesale houses that handle supplies say their shipping and local trade this year is away beyond expectations. Red frieze, red ruscus and made-up magnolia wreaths have the greatest call, and the supply is running low. Judging from advance orders, Christmas demand for cut stock will be larger than ever.

The Florists' Bowling League held a fine bowling session December 10 on the new alleys. During the evening the Carnations met the Sweet Peas and suffered defeat in two of the three games, while the Roses won the odd game from the Daisies, thus breaking the tie for first place with the Carnations. Frank Plotz, of the Sweet Peas, was high man with 621, an average of 207 per game. After this week's bowling the league will not bowl again until the first Wednesday night in the new year.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

There is little change to be reported in the flower market this week. The supply of flowers is barely sufficient to meet the demand, which is not more than normal. The heavy supply of chrysanthemums, which has been a feature of the market for many weeks, is no longer to be reckoned with and the supply of other seasonable and staple items does not seem to balance the situation; consequently, the market faces a shortage which will be hard to overcome.

Poinsettias are beginning to arrive, but thus early they are moved only for window display. The quality is fine and later there will doubtless be a good demand for them.

Roses are not overplentiful and in the short grades there is hardly sufficient stock to meet requirements. American Beauty is in fair supply and moves well, even at prices which might be considered at the holiday point, the best specials bringing $125 per hundred. Hybrid teas are active in movement, although top grades require a little pushing, the supply of these being much larger than of the other sizes. The quality generally is of high order.

Carnations are not plentiful and prices continue high, sales ranging from $10 to $12 per hundred for the best, with $15 being asked for selected stock of Mrs. C. W. Ward and the reds. It is quite evident that the production of these popular flowers is much curtailed this season.

Orchids continue scarce and high and no change in this condition is looked for in the near future. Cattleyas are bringing $2 and more, and are quickly snapped up. Much of the stock available is sold before arrival. The same condition applies to gardenias. It is rather a question on the buyer's part of "How many may I have?" than of the wholesaler's "How many will you take?" The price for good flowers seems to be $1 each, with 75 cents for culls and imperfect flowers. Cypripediums sell fairly well at $3 to $6 per dozen.

There is a small supply of Easter lilies, which command 25 cents per bud and flower, meeting ready sale for wedding work. Rubrums bring $6 to $12 and albums $6 to $10 per hundred. Lily of the valley is scarce, the price range still being about 20 cents to 30 cents per spray, with selected sprays as much as 40 cents.

Sweet peas are only in moderate supply, the dark, muggy weather causing a wholesale dropping of buds. With many growers of peas the Christmas supply is likely to be quite short. The price range is $2 to $6, the latter figure for long-stemmed sprays.

There is a small supply of snapdragons, mostly short-stemmed stock, at $1 to $2 per bunch. Callas are a little more plentiful and move fairly well at $2 to $4 per dozen. Calendulas, wallflowers, a few pansies, forget-me-nots, mignonette and pink bouvardia are among the offerings, and clean up well. Stevia is in good supply; the average price is $1 for three bunches.

Christmas greens are plentiful, with the exception of lycopodium, which is extremely scarce. A shipper in town recently stated that he cannot get pickers even at 15 cents per pound, about three times as much as is usually paid. Holly is bringing $7 per case and Christmas trees are offered at $1.50 per bundle.

Various Notes.

Bassi Freres have opened a retail store at 202 Main street, New Rochelle. The building is new, of green granite and white marble, three stories high, and the store appointments are quite up-to-date. The American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, is erecting a greenhouse for show purposes in connection with the store.

C. C. Trepel, at Bloomingdale's, last week featured the Von Tilzer "Say It with Flowers" song, a rendition being given eight times daily by a lady vocalist, accompanied by an orchestra of six pieces. Miniature reproductions of the title-page of the song, with a score of the chorus, were distributed generously and the piece made a considerable hit.

There were two or three mettings of wholesale florists last week to consider projects for the housing of the various interests. One project was the leasing of a large portion of the ground floor in one of the abandoned department stores on Sixth avenue, but it is not learned that any definite action has been decided upon.

A. L. Young has commenced work on the basement of the Coogan building, which he will remodel to meet requirements to accommodate three or four wholesalers.

George E. M. Stumpp has been elected president of the Associated Retail Florists of New York. The organization holds weekly meetings at the Pennsylvania hotel.

It seems likely that the ladies' night of the New York Florists' Club will be held on a date different from the one decided upon at the last meeting of the club, the business of the club on the night selected making the change imperative.

DELAYED DELIVERY.

The postal service, once the pride of the people of the United States, suffered seriously during the war. It never came all the way back. Moderately prompt handling of letter mail was attained, but at the expense of publishers, who are charged three times the pre-war rates for a vastly inferior service.

Disruption of train schedules because of attempts at fuel conservation, coming during severe weather and at the time of the Christmas rush, has completed the disorganization of publishers' mails. Posted each Thursday with the greatest regularity, the delivery of The Review to its subscribers has passed wholly beyond the publisher's control.

Because the next two mailing days fall on Christmas and New Year's, The Review will be printed one day early and mailed on Wednesdays for the next two weeks.

By the time the succeeding issue goes into the mails, January 8, it is hoped conditions will be more nearly normal and that some degree of promptness and regularity in delivery can be maintained.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

Work of the Committees.

An examining committee of the C. S. A. has submitted a report on a new variety as follows:

At Cincinnati, O., November 29. Sunbeam, yellow, Japanese incurved, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich, scored as follows on the commercial scale: Color, 18; form, 14; fullness, 9; stem, 14; foliage, 14; substance, 13; size, 8; total, 90.

Chas. W. Johnson, Sec'y.

Geraniums

RICARD GERANIUMS.

We are sending you a sample plant of Ricard geraniums, or such we believe it to be. We have been shipping it with the Ricard label for several years and yesterday had a complaint that it was not true to name. We are also sending its flowers. They are all from 2-inch stock and consequently small.

V. V. G.—O.

If the geranium is not Alphonse Ricard it closely resembles it, but the specimens were so dried up when received that it was almost impossible to tell what variety it is. I would suggest that V. V. G. buy a few Ricards from a geranium specialist and compare them with the stock he has on hand.

The variety Decorator greatly resembles Alphonse Ricard and is often substituted for it. M. P.

SCALD ON GERANIUMS.

I am sending you some leaves and stems of ivy-leaved geraniums. Please tell me what is the trouble with them and what the remedy is. These have been growing in the same house where other geraniums and many other plants are growing without any trouble.

K. G.—Pa.

The leaves and stems of the ivy-leaved geraniums have every appearance of being affected with some kind of scald, such as would come from the action of the bright sun on the plants after a period of dark days and excessive moisture. Also, if the plants are standing on coal ashes, the action of the sun on the wet ashes will cause a gas to rise from them, affecting the plants in the same manner as were the specimens sent. I have seen a similar trouble stop when limestone screenings were used in place of coal ashes for the plants to stand on.

M. P.

GRUBWORMS AND GERANIUMS.

Please tell me some way to kill grubworms in outdoor flower beds. Geraniums were planted in the beds and were eaten off at the roots. Too much fresh manure was mixed with the soil, but this is the second year and the worms were as bad this year as last.

M. G. A.—Kan.

About the only thing to advise for these grubs at this season of the year is to work up the beds well, if you can, and allow them to remain open all winter, then when spring comes, give another working up, paying close attention to catch any grubs or May beetles that are found when turning over the soil. If the beds are surrounded with sod, that is the place where a great many of the grubs will be found. Sometimes it becomes necessary to remove the sod directly around the beds and replace with fresh sod before the grubs can be got rid of.

It will not do any harm to give the beds a dressing of fresh lime before working them up. If it can be done, it would be well to change the planting to some other plants than geraniums for a season or two. M. P.

OBTAINING CYANIDE.

Where can we obtain cyanide at a reasonable price for fumigating purposes? S. & W.—Mo.

Potassium cyanide has been difficult to obtain during the last three years, but sodium cyanide answers the same purpose and is generally available. It is used the same as potassium cyanide and in the same proportions. With either, great care should be taken in handling it and the fumes should not be inhaled.

If your local druggists do not carry either sodium or potassium cyanide, they should at least be able to procure the former from some wholesale house in Chicago or St. Louis. Care should be taken to obtain a grade that is nearly chemically pure. L. R. T.

THOMASVILLE, GA.

Mrs. W. A. Wells has erected a greenhouse on Smith avenue. She has recently joined the F. T. D. Association.

P. J. Hjort, who has for twenty-one years conducted the Thomasville Nurseries, has taken into partnership his son, S. C. Hjort. They are preparing to do an increased retail business.

George and Jack Willis have erected two greenhouses two miles east of Thomasville and will grow flowers, vegetables and nursery stock. The new firm will be known as the Cottage Gardens.

The nurseries of B. W. Stone and the Southern Nut Tree Nurseries, both growers of papershell pecan trees exclusively, report unusually heavy sales; already many sizes and varieties are sold closely. S. C. H.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

POLLINATING TOMATOES.

We should like to know if there is an artificial way to carry pollen on tomatoes under glass. In other words, how can we make them set? B. B.—Mich.

From November until March tomatoes set better if given some artificial pollination. This is accomplished when only a small number of plants are grown by using a camel's-hair brush, rabbit's tail or piece of cotton wool tied on the end of a stick and lightly brushing it over the open flowers. The pollen masses will be carried in this way from flower to flower. Where quantities of plants are grown, if the plants are shaken well about noon (on clear days, if possible), pollen will be scattered and fulfill the same purpose. Tomatoes need a dry atmosphere and will not set well unless a minimum of 60 degrees can be maintained in winter. C. W.

WORMS ON LETTUCE.

I am sending a small box containing worms which I find on my lettuces in the greenhouses. They have eaten all the plants on one bed and are also on the other beds. Can you tell me what to use to get rid of them? I always find them on the under side of the plants. I have tried tobacco smoke, tobacco juice, weak formaldehyde, etc., without results. N. F. C.—O.

The worms were pretty well dried up when received and I could not identify them. The only remedy which would be likely to completely clean out these pests would be hydrocyanic acid gas. When carefully used in cool weather there is little danger of burning the tips of the foliage. The formula for this gas has been frequently given in The Review and I would recommend you to try it. A second application may be necessary if you find any worms alive a few days after the first one. Hydrocyanic acid gas is deadly and must be used with the greatest care. C. W.

SCORCHED LETTUCE.

I am sending you under separate cover two lettuce plants. The leaves of more than half of my plants have turned brown, as in the case of the samples. I started to paint my hot water pipes with a tar paint recommended by a paint manufacturer, but then I noticed in The Review that tar paint should not be used and consequently stopped after about fifty feet of pipe had been covered. Every time I fire up, the paint can be smelled. Could that be the cause of the trouble and, if so, how can it be remedied? S. H.—O.

The foliage shows every appearance of having been scorched and there is little doubt that the paint you used is responsible. The best thing to do is to secure some paint remover and clean off the cause of the injury as promptly as possible. As a preservative for your pipes, I would suggest coating them with lampblack and linseed oil, heating the pipes well in order to dry it before planting your crops. Lampblack will scorch fronds on adiantums and some other plants when houses are closed up tightly, but not where ventilation is provided for a few days after the lampblack has been applied. C. W.

FLORISTS' REVIEW

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

IT will be a merrier Christmas with the coal strike settled.

MANY are the reports of plantsmen who are already sold out for Christmas.

PUBLICITY is changing the flower-buying season from a 3-month interval to an all-year period.

PUT Paper White narcissi in the Christmas corsages of violets where you formerly put valley.

SCARCITY of fuel has limited the pot manufacturers to such an extent that there is a serious shortage.

DARK days, zero weather and fuel restriction have combined to check cut flower production this month.

TRADE prognosticators see in the scarcity of sugar and consequent diminution of candy supplies a stimulus for flower sales at Christmas.

THOSE who last summer postponed building more glass on account of the high prices are coming to the belief now that it would have been money well invested.

GROWERS, following the lead of other sorts of manufacturers, find advertising valuable to stimulate general demand for their products. Hence their enthusiasm for the coöperative campaigns.

PRESIDENT J. F. AMMANN'S project of a national association of growers, which received much favor upon its proposal at Detroit, will be launched at the time of the American Carnation Society's meeting in Chicago, January 21 and 22.

THE changes in rules regarding the packing of express shipments which went into effect last week do not affect the trade. Briefly, the provisions are that shipments weighing over twenty-five pounds shall be packed in containers of a requisite strength.

THE notice sent out by the Illinois State Florists' Association set the date of its meeting in Chicago as January 29, which is just one week too late. The dates of the meeting and exhibition of the American Carnation Society, with which the state meeting will be held, have been changed to January 21 and 22, to avoid conflict with the automobile show and obtain better hotel accommodations thereby.

Is the trade's publicity outdistancing its production?

WHEN prices are up the rest of the year, there is no complaint from the public of high prices at holidays.

THERE seems to be small chance of an adequate supply of stock for the spring trade. It will be in line for every grower to propagate industriously, to produce all he can.

IT is to its friends The Review is indebted for its continuous growth in circulation. For several years most of the new names have gone on the list because some reader has recommended The Review to his neighbor.

THERE is a general report in the trade that wealthy people are inclined to curtail expenditures and that the recent increase in flower buying is due to the activities of wage-earners, who have not heretofore had the means to gratify so freely their wish for flowers.

FLORISTS WILL GET FUEL.

The grave situation of the greenhouse industry was realized by the fuel authorities when they lifted the restrictions which had previously confined the delivery of coal to governmental institutions and offices and to public utilities. When additions were made, the greenhousemen were placed sixth upon the list, ahead even of manufacturers of food products. The industries were designated in the following order:

(1) Railroads; (2) army, navy and other departments of federal government; (3) state and county departments and institutions; (4) public utilities; (5) retail dealers; (6) greenhouses; (7) cold storage plants; (8) meat packing establishments; (9) creameries and other manufacturers of perishable food products; (10) grain elevators; (11) beet sugar plants; (12) manufacturers of news print paper; (13) manufacturers of yeast.

Florists whose cars of coal were seized in transit and now find their piles low will, it appears, have the assistance of the fuel committees in securing their requirements.

COAL AND CHRISTMAS.

The return of the coal miners to their work and the removal of the fuel restrictions turned a gloomy outlook for Christmas into a much brighter one. It is for some not so bright as it was before the fuel shortage occurred, for lowered temperature delayed stock so that it will now miss the holidays. This hardship operates only in a few localities and in individual cases, for most growers were sufficiently supplied with coal. The absence of this stock, however, will aggravate the scarcity that has been anticipated for Christmas. Inability to secure stock to fill orders is the matter that is giving retailers most concern as the Yuletide nears. Both plants and cut blooms will be sold out, it is expected, ere the rush is ended.

But such conditions are greatly to be preferred to the possibility of doing business under the handicap of shortened hours, dimly lit and chilly stores and curtailed transportation, which florists faced a week ago. The public, relieved from the hardships it contemplated so shortly since, is purchasing for Christmas more freely than ever, except, of course, in those communities where the closing of factories for lack of fuel cut off the wage-earners' income. There the trade finds business not so good. Yet, the country over, bumper holiday sales are expected.

PINK PART JUST TWO.

The Pink Part celebrates its second birthday this week. The retailers' department of The Review made its first appearance on rosy tinted paper December 20, 1917. But my, how it's grown! On that first appearance it was sixteen pages in size and included 310 florists. Last week, when it completed its second year, the Pink Part tightly filled forty pages and included 563 florists. The increase in space occupied was 150 per cent. And the increase in number of florists was 253, or roughly eighty per cent. This week the Pink Part again fills forty pages and has five additional names, or a total of 568 retailers who advertise their ability to handle telegraph orders through The Review. The growth of the trade and the growth of the telegraph delivery business is well reflected in this birthday comparison, for The Review is the paper that grows with the trade.

GENERAL AVERAGE.

Perhaps the highest commanding general on the staff of business in war or peace is that important figure "General Average." The individual in the ranks who strives to go contrary to the dictates of that old warrior usually finds he has little success. General average rules.

This idea is a serious one for the grower who sends stock to the wholesale market. If his blooms are of uniformly good quality, his general average in returns will be high. But if amid flowers of the better sort are mixed culls and cripples, the price per flower will be lower. And not slightly lower, but, so the grower thinks, much lower.

Though the culls and cripples count in number on the production books, they do not count in the returns—except as they count against the one who sends them in. Retailers do not buy them; they pay for good stock and ask for that in bunches that are uniformly of high quality. Culls and cripples lower the general average of the growers' returns; if he left them out his production count might shrink, but the general average would be higher.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Kansas City, Mo.—Felizian Fromhold, who formerly conducted the flower shop in the Muehlebach hotel, filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy in court here December 5. He has 126 creditors, to whom he owes $7,731.70. His total assets are $1,240.55.

STRONG WORDS.

When a man of known conservatism uses strong words, they become even stronger than usual. Like this:

> The results we have obtained through our recent advertising in The Review have been amazing, both on inquiries and orders.—The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., by T. P. Langhans, secretary, December 5, 1919.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

Mark F. Kyle.

Mark F. Kyle, one of the oldest florists and gardeners in the middle west, passed away December 12, at Chicago. Mr. Kyle was 83 years of age. He was born in Scotland and came to America in 1861, locating at St. Louis. After a short time he removed to Chicago and was for many years with John Good & Co., afterwards Andrew McAdams, the business now conducted by William La Grotta. During his later active years he had charge of the Charles Reisig place at Riverside. He retired in 1912 to make his home with his only son, William P. Kyle, 5435 Lake Park avenue, Chicago, where he died. The funeral was held December 15, interment being at Mount Greenwood cemetery. Among the pallbearers were Charles Klehm, William La Grotta and William Kidwell. There were many flowers, attesting the high esteem in which the deceased and the family are held.

John Kent.

John Kent, of Knoxville, Tenn., one of the oldest florists and gardeners in the state, died December 8 at the age of 87 years. He was born in Harnston, Lincolnshire, England, in May, 1832, and came to this country early in life. For many years he was manager of the Island Home Gardens, near Knoxville, later joining the growing staff of the C. W. Crouch Co. During the later years of his active life he held a position at the greenhouses of Baum's Home of Flowers. He retired from active service about five years ago and since then had spent most of the time in Florida. At the funeral services December 10 there were some beautiful floral tributes from friends in the trade and others. R. E. M.

John J. Wade.

John J. Wade died at his home in Carbondale, Pa., November 6, at the age of 66 years. Mr. Wade had been in business in Carbondale for the last thirty years. He is survived by his wife, four sons and three daughters, who will coöperate to continue the business.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Stock was scarce last week and prices advanced on all kinds. Carnations are bringing from $10 to $12 per hundred and orchids are selling at from $1.75 to $2 each. Business has been good and all available stock was cleaned right up at good prices. From present indications, stock will be tight for some time. Out-of-town orders for Christmas are coming in fast. The orchid situation has improved somewhat, but the outlook for Christmas is not bright. Sweet peas have shown a decrease and there has been a large demand for violets.

Various Notes.

The Louise Flower Shop has an interesting and attractive display, which puts the ability of the F. T. D. Association right before the eyes of the public. Miss Daugherty has had a complete telegraph outfit installed by the Western Union Telegraph Co. to connect two miniature cities which she has arranged in her window. The outfit consists of an instrument in each city and is connected up ready for immediate use. The display is complete in every detail, including the wiring and small telegraph poles between the towns. At night the little towns are brightly illuminated and when the instruments are working the exhibit shows how the orders are flashed from one part of the country to another in a short time. Large crowds are on hand most of the time to view and study this unusual display.

George C. Shaffer had large decorating jobs at the Merchants' Bank of this city and at the Washington Club. He has a large amount of funeral work on hand and was busy last week with several distinguished weddings.

It has not been mentioned in this column that the Oehmler Floral Co. made a corsage which was worn by the Queen of Belgium while she was in this city.

Albert Schnell, manager of Leo Niessen's Washington store, is getting things in shape to cope with the Christmas rush. Large quantities of fine artificial stock as well as all other kinds are coming in.

F. H. Kramer reports business good. His palm garden is visited by hundreds of people daily. G. V. S.

Gude Bros. Co. ran a decidedly effective page advertisement in the local press. "Say It with Flowers" appeared in script repeatedly and around the eloquent copy of the advertisement ran a border of telegrams received and sent by this firm from and to all parts of the country, as well as a written order to a London firm.

DETROIT, MICH.

The Market.

Last week's business was below par. There was the usual sale of dried flower Christmas novelties and also the usual number of pricers—customers looking around and comparing prices. The sale of fresh flowers has been slow, but funeral work has been a little better than normal and has helped to move the supply along.

Roses are in oversupply because of the high prices in this market, since the retailers are taking advantage of the out-of-town growers. The local growers seem to overlook the fact that they have out-of-town growers to compete with or else they are preparing the buyers for the high Christmas prices to come. American Beauties are poor in quality, but they manage to find buyers. Ophelia and Shawyer are moving most successfully.

Chrysanthemums continue to come in, but they do not amount to much. Carnations of high quality are coming in and bringing top prices. Paper Whites find the demand slow, but they clear each day, since the supply is limited. Stevia, calendulas, snapdragons and English wallflowers are coming to the market. Violets are uncertain from day to day, in both quality and quantity. Sweet peas are meeting what is only a fair demand, considering the fine quality. The market is well stocked with greens.

Bowling Club Meets.

The Detroit Florists' Bowling Club met Thursday evening, December 11, with the following scores for the evening:

Various Notes.

The Detroit Florists' Club held a meeting at the Hotel Statler Tuesday evening, December 16. Professor C. P. Halligan, of Michigan Agricultural College, Lansing, Mich., gave an interesting address on "The Principles of Plant Growth and the Chemical Elements in the Soil," and Elmer D. Smith, Adrian, Mich., who presented an exhibit of late-blooming chrysanthemum novelties, continued his helpful discussion of their culture and production. Harry Smith read an article on mums which he had first read to the club twenty-five years ago. After the talks the members discussed preparations for the Christmas trade. A feature of the meeting was a display of Hamburg Late Pink mums by the Wm. F. Kasting Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

John Klang has a new Dodge delivery car. H. T.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

There has been a radical change in market conditions since last report. Even before the heat and light restrictions were canceled the market had begun to stiffen and the present week opened with a sharply reduced supply and with prices on the up grade.

At length the chrysanthemum season seems actually to be passing. Of course there still are quite a few large mums and many pompons still in the market, but the quantity is so much less than it has been during the last two months that the weight of the load no longer is felt. Also, those among the out-of-town buyers who have been using their own chrysanthemums evidently have cleaned them out, because they have increased the orders sent to Chicago. The shipping trade really is phenomenal. Heavy as were last season's shipments at this date, the present volume of shipping is running ahead of all previous records and the word comes from all the cities and towns served by this market that the flower business never has been so active as now. It is not the same in Chicago. The local retailers have not been breaking records during the first half of December.

No doubt one of the reasons why supply is reduced this week is that the growers are holding back for Christmas.

Order Poinsettias

Amling's offers a splendid supply of cut Poinsettias—order all you need. This is quality stock, properly prepared, and it will not wilt down or disappoint. We recommend these Poinsettias for your Christmas use.

Order Long Roses

Amling's has the entire cut of over 350,000 Rose plants, growing within 16 miles of our store. The largest Christmas supply in the history of the Chicago Market. Strongest on Columbia, Premier and Ophelia. Order medium, long and special grades and we will fill your order in full, with fine stock.

Another reason is that they nearly all reduced their temperatures last week in harmony with the general movement for fuel conservation. Still another factor is that we are having genuine midwinter weather, zero night after night, which always tends to restrict production. Another fact, and one which bears strongly on the prospect for Christmas, is that a number of rose growers are going off crop, the unseasonably warm weather early in November having set their crops ahead to a point which will result in small Christmas cuts for them.

With this combination of circumstances, it is impossible to supply all the short and medium roses that are being called for. It still is possible to furnish as many as are wanted of the higher priced grades, for the simple reason that not so many buyers are in position to use quantities of the more expensive grades. The quality of roses generally is excellent and the growers now are sanguine; they feel that for the first time this season they are about to realize prices which are in harmony with the present cost of production.

The supply of carnations has not increased. Production is so light that it is thought growers cannot accumulate Christmas stock and prices are advancing. Nearly everyone has come to the conclusion that the supply of carnations for Christmas will be much less than the demand and prices are being pushed up on that account.

Among the most plentiful items in the market this week are Paper Whites and yellow narcissi. These have not enjoyed any great demand, though most retailers are using a few each day. Calla lilies now are in daily supply and selling at nearly double the price of other years because of the absence of Easter lilies. Stevia is much less abundant than in other seasons. Sweet peas are to be had, but not always on late orders. It is the same with valley, cattleyas, violets, mignonette and calendula, as once more we have a seller's market.

The Christmas Outlook.

It is almost the unanimous report that the Christmas orders are coming more heavily than ever before. It seems to be generally recognized that the supply is not likely to equal the demand, especially on short and medium roses. So numerous are the orders for these grades that many of the wholesalers have adopted the policy of declining orders for the shorter grades except where a proportionate quantity of long stock is taken at the list prices. It is the same with carnations; most of the dealers are making the bright colors sell the white for Christmas. Poinsettias do not seem to be in special request and it seems that this is one item on which a retailer could push with success. Sweet peas and violets will be in small supply, though one or two commission houses expect heavy shipments of violets from the Rhinebeck district.

Confidence is general that this Christmas will break all records in the matter of money. In the matter of satisfaction, much depends on the supply of stock and on the character of the service given by the express company. Except for one interval during a zero spell, the express service recently has been quite fair. Everybody hopes it will not break under the strain of the holiday rush.

Christmas Greens.

There never has been a Christmas for which such huge quantities of artificial material have been bought as is the case this year. The reason is the high price, low quality and general uncertainty with regard to Christmas greens. Florists generally have bought large quantities of boxwood because it was available, staying off in the matter of ordering holly because they had no assurance as to quality, price or delivery. The market is practically bare of holly. Some districts put an embargo on freight shipments. This happened to the W. W. Barnard Co., which has been getting eastern holly in car lots by express. In some sections express shipments were limited to five cases. The eastern Tennessee district has been flooded, so that no holly could be cut. In the zero weather many shipments have been frosted. Prices have varied widely, from $6.50 to $10 per case, and it was Growers Favor Coöperative Campaign.

Interest already aroused in a coöperative advertising campaign in Chicago was stimulated by the address of J. F. Ammann, president of the S. A. F., at the meeting of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago at the Hotel Randolph Thursday afternoon, December 11. At its conclusion the organization voted to appoint a committee to consider a plan and present it for adoption at the next meeting. President Kohout named on this committee Paul Weiss, W. J. Keimel and Secretary Otto Amling.

President Ammann's stirring remarks were followed by a talk by Fred Lautenschlager on the same subject. Discussion brought forward an appeal for immediate action from Paul Weiss, who has been one of the most ardent advocates of the project. Upon explanation of the plans in use in Milwaukee, St. Louis and Buffalo by President Ammann, W. J. Keimel moved a committee be appointed to decide upon the one best adapted to Chicago's needs.

About thirty-five members were in attendance. J. H. Davis, of Fort Worth, Tex., was a visitor and won the attention of the meeting when Mr. Ammann described his work in growing roses in the Texas climate. New members elected at the meeting were Wendland & Keimel Co., of Elmhurst; M. Weber, 5332 Bowmanville avenue, and Xavier Wojtkiewicz, of Niles.

On the tables were blooms of Chrysanthemum Sunshine, grown by Hans Jepson, of Maywood, and a vase each of the new roses of A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., Crusader and Pilgrim, from plants grown by the A. F. Amling Co., Maywood. Specimens of the rose, Frank W. Dunlop, were expected from J. H. Dunlop, Toronto, but did not arrive in time for the meeting.

The meeting next month, it was decided by vote, is to be held in the afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Paul Weiss and Otto Amling went to the home of W. J. Keimel December 15 for a first meeting of the committee appointed to deal with the publicity matter. It was decided that no plan offers such assurance of success as does the one tested in Milwaukee. The comin close coöperation with the retailers, with the idea of securing practically unanimous support for the joint committee to be put in charge.

Various Notes.

H. D. Schiller, from boyhood associated with the florists' business founded by his father, has joined the staff of M. C. Wright, western sales manager for Lord & Burnham Co.

G. M. Reburn has returned from a trip of several weeks south, southwest and west within the contiguous states. He says he found florists almost without exception reporting business as good as last year, or better. It was the exception to find one who was not getting profitable prices and doing a first-class trade. Mr. Reburn says it has taken the smaller city florists some time to realize that they could get paying prices if they asked them, and by no other method. He says they know now and are making money. With Mrs. Reburn he leaves December 21 to spend the holidays at his old home in West Grove, Pa.

In getting out of his automobile December 11, Otto Wittbold, 6319 Louise avenue, Edgebrook, stepped in front of another. His leg was broken.

Harold Amling, who is studying at Culver Military Academy, left December 17 to spend the holidays with his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Amling, at Orange, Cal.

Emil Buettner says he seldom has cut so few roses for Christmas as will be the case this year. He says the warm weather in October and early November brought his crop ahead of time.

At last reports Mrs. Joseph Kohout was convalescing at Garfield Park hospital in spite of the fact that her case is one in which few recover.

P. C. Schupp has sent the customers of J. A. Budlong Co. one of the handsomest calendars of the season. It is the painting of the "Orchid Lady," reproduced in colors.

C. L. Washburn says the commission dealers have had the advantage of the wholesale growers so far this season, because increased production has brought to the commission houses enough stock to more than counterbalance the lower prices which have prevailed. This has not been possible for many of the individual growers. But Mr. Washburn expects a change with Christmas and the new year. He looks to see a good many houses short of roses for the next six weeks.

C. J. Michelsen spent December 11 in the Twin Cities.

The death of Mark F. Kyle, father of W. P. Kyle, is recorded in this week's obituary column.

There is a good opportunity for someone with capital, the establishment of the Kenwood Floral Co., on East Forty-seventh street, having been closed since the death of Henry Hilmers, who had run the place many years.

Paul Klingsporn and Frank Schramm spent December 11 at Lincoln, Ill., to see what is being done this season at the big establishment of Gullett & Sons.

Over 300,000 gladiolus bulbs already are in the store of the American Bulb Co., grown in Indiana for this concern.

George V. Wienhoeber has not been well of late, but is preparing for a big Christmas.

A. T. Pyfer says the mum season of 1919 will not end until 1920.

George H. Pieser has joined the staff of Johnson & Chronis, where the big store is full of palms and other plants and business never seems to slacken.

Weiss & Meyer Co., Maywood, never approached Christmas with as large a cut as this year. Ophelia is in specially heavy crop.

Sam Pearce is cutting narcissi in great quantities.

Frank Oechslin is sending a crop of cut poinsettias to the Chicago Flower Growers' Association.

J. E. Pollworth has it "doped out" that a dry New Year's eve will help the flower business. His observation leads him to believe that flowers seldom grace the tables of restaurant revelers but nearly always do those of celebrations in the homes. Without wine, Mr. Pollworth thinks, large numbers of watch parties will be transferred from public to private surroundings, to the trade's benefit.

Visitors.

Joseph H. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., was here last week, in conference with manufacturers of greenhouse building material. He plans to put up new glass to house 25,000 carnation plants, but has not decided what type of house to build.

H. Welke, of the E. Welke Co., Milwaukee, visited the market December 12, hunting supplies to care for the increasing business in the new store occupied by the "House of Roses."

Philip Breitmeyer, of Detroit, has been here this week placing orders for Christmas stock.

was in the market December 15. He says Kansas City will have the greatest Christmas business on record; the supply of stock will not be enough to go around without considerable help from this market.

William Dittman, son and successor of the pioneer New Castle Beauty grower, was here December 13, introducing his bride to friends on the market.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

During the last week business has continued about normal and the supply has been sufficient to meet all demands. Indications are for a banner Christmas trade already, the shops having begun to take on a holiday appearance, and early orders seem to point to a more general giving of flowers than ever before. It is believed that prices will reach the top notch.

Funeral work is brisk, some of the firms having had unusually large orders for this work last week, and small weddings, with pre-nuptial affairs, keep all cut stock well cleaned up.

Various Notes.

At the December meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society President E. K. Thomas will report on the proposition of the society's joining with the Rhode Island Fruit Growers' Association, the Rhode Island Poultry Society, the Market Gardeners' Association and the State Corn Growers' Association for a combined exhibition of fruit, flowers, poultry, corn and agricultural products at the State Armory, this city, November 13 to 16 next year. Mr. Thomas was elected at the joint meeting of representatives of the various organizations a member of the executive committee, representing the Horticultural Society.

Ed Brooke, of T. J. Johnston & Co., made a business trip through Connecticut and southern Massachusetts last week, looking for potted stock.

Peter S. Byrnes, of the Homogansett Greenhouses, has been appointed chairman of the committee on annual fair and dance of the Narragansett Veteran Firemen's Association, of Wickford.

Charles Smith was in Massachusetts last week in the interests of the Eastern Wreath Co.

The Market.

Stock is exceedingly close. Last year at this time everyone proclaimed it the "worst ever," but it is even worse this year. Everything is short.

Roses, in limited supply, are to be had at $10 and up. Carnations sell quickly at $6 to $15. As usual, red ones are in big demand and are "as scarce as hen's teeth." A few chrysanthemums are still to be seen—pompons in pink and white, seedlings and a few Christmas Eve and Patty.

The most plentiful flowers again this year will be poinsettias and, although most of the florists have grown considerably more of these than usual, the supply will be inadequate. These always sell well and the scarcity of other flowers will make them sell even better.

Potted plants will also be limited. The variety is the same, but the quan-

State Association Meets.

The December meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association was held at New Albany, Ind., Tuesday, December 9.

To the disappointment of all, the weather was especially unfavorable and caused many who had intended to go to remain at home. Dark, cloudy, rainy weather in the morning changed to freezing, with a drop in temperature of over 40 degrees by evening. But, the weather notwithstanding, the small delegation that did go had a splendid time and regretted that the others missed it. Leaving Indianapolis early, they arrived in plenty of time for lunch, which was bounteously provided at Mr. Rasmussen's establishment.

After lunch a meeting was held, at which little business was transacted, because of the small attendance. The next meeting is the first of the year and is the annual meeting of the association; at that time the yearly report of the secretary and treasurer is given. The committee to look over and audit the books was named as follows: Oscar Carlstedt, William Roepke, Fred Kiel and Frank Rieman.

The association, having gone "over the top" in its drive for members in the S. A. F., is now entitled to a place on the board of directors of the national society. A petition was drawn up to send to the S. A. F., requesting Mr. Rasmussen's membership on this board.

After the business meeting, the guests visited around in New Albany. Mr. Rasmussen's range is in fine shape and is producing some splendid roses. Columbia is especially good. He also has a large crop of lettuce planted.

F. H. Hustedt's range was planted all to carnations and looked promising. Louis Gueltig has not been in possession of his range long and, although it looks good now, planted in miscellaneous stock, his intentions are to plant it all to roses. He had some fine bouvardias, good poinsettias, carnations, etc.

The weather being disagreeable, the trip over into Louisville was abandoned. Mr. and Mrs. Rasmussen entertained the guests at dinner in their home that evening.

The next meeting of the association will be held in Indianapolis January 13 in the rooms of the Independent Athletic Club. This will be the annual meeting, and at it will occur the election of officers and the competition for the Indiana rose and carnation trophies. The secretary requests any raisers of novelties to send in a sample shipment at this time.

The Market.

It is funny: Carnations are bringing more than roses.

That is the feature of the market. It is due to a short crop of carnations, to the beginning of the holiday crop of roses and to the fact that the buyers have not yet met the changing conditions. The market is taking easily the flowers offered. The buyers say there is no business, but they continue to take all the flowers in sight. White has been somewhat plentiful, but as the week closes that seems to be past. Pink roses are rather scarce, particularly in the shorter grades. Columbia affords few shorts. What remains of Killarney is mostly cropped for Christmas. Ophelia is the most plentiful rose today.

Roses have always been the mainstay of the market at Christmas. This year they promise to be more important than ever. There are fewer carnations, fewer violets and sweet peas are showing that unhappy tendency toward bud-dropping, their bane in early winter. Not much is expected of snapdragon. There will be orchids for those who can afford them. There are lots of poinsettia, stevia and Paper Whites.

A Florist's Story.

"My wife went shopping the other day. She likes to go early; the stores are less crowded, so the service is better. She arrived about 8:30 that morning. She went to the glove counter. There she was asked $4.50 a pair for exactly the same gloves that had cost $2.50 a pair a year ago. As she turned away the saleswoman remarked that those gloves had been $3.50 a pair last week. In another department store she saw tags being changed from $2.50 to $3, others from $3 to $3.50. That evening she was indignant about it. I told her there was another side to it, most likely. The stock of gloves was growing short and could not be replaced except at an additional cost of, say, 60 cents a pair."

The Plant Market.

Never in the history of the plant market have indications been brighter. There are still plants for sale, lots of them, but the novelties and specialties are gone and the market generally is in the condition, December 12, that it ordinarily hopes to reach December 24.

is basking in the California sunshine and Mr. Pepper has laid down no ultimatum, so it seemed a chance to see the wholesale district in the world's greatest flower mart for the first time.

Everybody, blessed with any imagination at all, forms a mental picture of what he is going to see. My mental picture was two-sided—a scene of terrific bustle and activity and human machines trading, not men. In both I was disappointed. The market was quiet that morning. It was raining and so foggy that horns and bells were in constant use on the river. It was said that 9:30 a. m., with the early rush over, was too late, but I strongly suspect this statement was due to local pride and that coming over on the sleeper would not have made much difference that day. The men who control the destinies of the New York market are by no means trading machines, but a most human lot of fellows, well worth cultivating.

The most striking feature of the New York cut flower market is its size. This impression is heightened by the way business is done. A great number of small places are ranged side by side on both sides of the street for a block. Most of their stock is laid out on the counter in plain view from the street, so that except in the case of some fancy flowers put in the iceboxes, it is hardly necessary to go in and ask whether this or that variety is on hand. The method of trading resembles that of the stock exchange. The words "accommodate," "help you out as a favor,'' are nearly, if not quite, meaningless here. The law of supply and demand is recognized. A maxim here is, ''Watch the supply; that's what counts.'' Bookkeeping is reduced to a science; no unnecessary figures appear. The returns are in bulk. The sales are for cash or short time. A detail that was a surprise was the delivery. Outside of New York it is currently reported that flowers are never delivered. The buyer always takes them. This is incorrect. Orders are delivered, though everyone does as little of it as possible.

The appearance of the wholesale commission houses on Twenty-eighth street led us to the belief that the best stock sold best at this, as it probably does at every other season of the year. The low grade appeared to drag, while the choice stock sold. The price paid, with the size of some of the transactions, was surprising. It showed the possibilities in the production of flowers. It also showed the danger of getting false ideas of values. Given a flurry in the New York market and prices out of all reason are obtained. Given a slump and the cost of production is far above the price realized on the stock.

The thought on leaving was one of admiration for the brains of the men who operate on the New York wholesale cut flower market.

BOSTON.

The Market.

The supply of cut flowers diminished considerably during the last few days. Dark weather has probably reduced production in some degree, but many growers are now holding flowers back for the holidays, as in former years. While supplies are much reduced, prices have advanced sharply. The demand at prevailing prices is, however, comparatively small. In the case of roses the cut is not large, but growers hope to have a large Christmas crop. Short-stemmed stock has advanced to $8 to $10, with other grades running up to $25 and $30, and some fancies, like Hadley, Columbia, Russell and Premier, a little higher. The call for whites, which was quite strong for some weeks, has dropped off and this color is now inclined to drag in its sales.

Carnations are coming into their own and have more than doubled the prices of a week ago, $10 to $12 being present quotations, with $16 and $20 as probable Christmas figures. Matchless is more in evidence than any other variety and does not move at as lively a gait as the colored varieties. Violets are being mostly held back for the holidays and are sold at $3. Pansies sell quickly, with fancies realizing $4 to $5. Callas sell readily at $24 to $32 per hundred. Lilies are not seen at all. There are larger offerings of Spencer sweet peas, but the demand is good at $2 to $4 per hundred. Yellow marguerites are not plentiful. The best sell at $4 to $6 per hundred, with bachelor's buttons at $2.

A little cosmos still comes in, but moves slowly. Paper Whites sell at $6 and stevia is now offered abundantly at 35 to 50 cents a bunch. Small lots of freesias are expected next week, but no Dutch bulbous stock is likely to appear until after the holidays. Small lots of late mums sell at $24 to $30 per hundred and pompons are easily sold.

Lily of the valley is offered at $20 per hundred. White bouvardia is less plentiful and sells out quickly. Cattleyas are decidedly scarce and dear, but there are fair supplies of cypripediums and some zygopetalums and Lælia anceps. The abundance of stevia temporarily affects the sale of asparagus. There is a large call for holly and other greenery. Holly is well berried, but in comparatively small supply. Trade in pot plants with the retailers is good and wholesalers are already well sold out of all good stock. Cyclamens especially have been in wonderful demand. Pans of poinsettias are especially fine, with cut specimens selling at $4 to $12 per dozen. The highest priced are of superb quality.

Various Notes.

William R. Morris, of Wellesley, who used to be a leading rose specialist, started carnation culture a year ago and now grows them exclusively. It is safe to say that no finer flowers come into the Boston market. His plants now average over a yard in height and are of uniform excellence. His varieties are Beacon, Benora, Doris, Matchless and Pink Delight.

At the monthly dinner and meeting of the Horticultural Club, held at the Parker House December 3, E. H. Wilson, of the Arnold Arboretum, the newly elected president, gave an illustrated lecture depicting vegetation and scenes in China, Japan and Formosa. Thomas Roland sent some handsome cyclamens for table decoration, and William Anderson, superintendent for Mrs. Bayard Thayer, exhibited a large vase of Lilium regale, from bulbs which he had kept in cold storage and potted early in September. The bulbs were 4 years old from seed, and the spikes carried several handsome flowers, each showing their value commercially and otherwise.

The Welch Bros. Co. is receiving the finest cut poinsettias I have seen this season. It is practically the only firm here having lily of the valley in quantity for the holidays. One of its windows is devoted to fine specimens of Begonia Melior, for which it has a good demand. P. Welch fears that prevailing high prices may tend to reduce shipping trade, which has been good this season.

Louis E. Small, of Tewksbury, the local bachelor's button king, has three houses devoted to this flower at present. He has some fine yellow marguerites, the best realizing $6 per hundred at wholesale.

Wollrath & Sons have sold out practically all their fine specimens of begonias, cyclamens, poinsettias, etc. They filled one $11,000 order from Connecticut for cyclamens last week.

made good. Both winter and summer it sells well here and holds its color remarkably.

Robert Dougherty, of West Medway, is making a decided hit with his fine shipments of Spencer sweet peas, handled by E. J. Rogean.

Lured by high prices in the metropolis, some of our leading carnation specialists have made large shipments there during the last week.

The many friends of Alexander Montgomery, Sr., of Hadley, for many years manager of the Waban Rose Conservatories, Natick, will be relieved to learn that he is successfully recuperating from an operation for gallstones at the Holyoke hospital, performed December 11. Mr. Montgomery's hosts of friends wish him a speedy recovery.

B. A. Snyder & Co. state that the prevailing high price of flowers has not checked the demand at all. Their shipping trade is excellent and everything indicates a splendid Christmas business.

At Hamlin the Florist's store in the Little building, Mr. Rogers reports business as steadily improving. The store is charmingly arranged for the holiday season and as it becomes better known will soon be in the front rank of retailers.

Norris F. Comley, of Burlington, grows roses in large quantity. At present he is cutting Ophelia and White Killarney heavily, but he has a fine lot of Spencer sweet peas.

Light and heat restrictions made by the fuel administrator affected all the retail stores. At first hours of business were set from 11:30 to 4:30, but after a large delegation had been at Washington a modification was made and hours were changed to from 9:30 to 4:30, with an additional two hours on Saturdays. It is unfortunate that this reduction should come just when Christmas buying is at its height, but all took the change cheerfully and are now pleased that the restrictions on light and heat were removed December 16.

Thomas Roland's several houses of high-grade cyclamens are already completely sold out. From Revere he receives an average of 5,000 roses daily, chiefly Ward and Ophelia. He will have a heavy cut of these and other varieties for the holidays.

Adolph E. E. Koch, of Nobscot, is sending in fine shipments of marguerites. He also has an excellent lot of stevia, which sells better than ever this season.

A. H. Hews & Co., North Cambridge, are short of fuel and several cars of coal ordered by them have been diverted. As

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Colma, Cal.—The S. Rosaia Co. is shipping violets from the west coast nearly to the east, with notable success.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

While the fine weather last week helped to bring on stock, there is still a scarcity and at the rate that Christmas orders are coming in there will be a record rush for all kinds of flowers. Wholesalers report an unprecedented demand for this time. As a general rule, the last two weeks before Christmastime are not good, but this year has beaten all records. The rose scarcity is passing, but the high prices that growers have to ask may check the demand somewhat. When the high cost of labor and of all kinds of material is considered, the reason for the higher prices is at once apparent, but unfortunately this is not always taken into account by flower buyers.

Carnations are in good condition, but the greenhouse-grown crop will be extremely limited and only half the orders will be filled. Poinsettia growers are watching the weather anxiously and hoping for the best. A storm has been threatening and rough weather would be fatal to good shipping stock. Heather is arriving of better color than last year's, owing to the recent rains, but personal observation of the growers' stock seems to indicate that the long sprays so plentiful last year will be nearly absent this year. The regerminans types, while attractive, do not seem to meet with the same favor as melanthera, which is always in demand. In favored sections the baby zinnias are still flowering, though many of the patches were injured by the recent frost. Violets are still on the scarce side as compared with the orders. Brunner roses are scarce, some of the indoor growers being off crop. There will not be enough cattleyas to go around, even at the high prices asked, and sweet peas are almost out of the market.

The "sold out" signs are on the azaleas and cyclamens and the poinsettias are going fast. There is little else in pot stock. The demand for Christmas greens, wreaths and garlands is quite without precedent, while the express service is not of the best. Reports of deep snow in the northern woods have stiffened prices and everything points to a scarcity. Desert holly is not plentiful, owing to the difficulties of transportation. Greens are high in price and likely to remain so from now on.

Various Notes.

Tassano Bros. have taken large temporary quarters at 714 South Spring street for the holiday season; there they will be centrally located to fill orders.

T. Wedderburn, of the Quality Brands Co., Cleveland, O., has been a business visitor in this city. This firm's glazing specialties were used on the new greenhouses of Walter Armacost & Co.

The H. N. Gage Co. is sending in forced Roman hyacinths in pots and also the earliest daffodils.

A most attractive "Say It with Flowers" sign is being shown by the Broadway Florist. A small electric motor revolving a light behind glass gives the impression of running water, the different colors of the flowers shown breaking up into various tints and appearing as moving waves of color. This firm has recently added a Dodge delivery car to its equipment.

C. E. Morton, of Phoenix, Ariz., is visiting this city because of his mother's dangerous illness. Mrs. Morton is at Long Beach, lying ill with cancer; her

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Both potted plant and cut flower stock is short and, according to all indications, will continue so for the rest of the year. Prices are considerably higher than they have been for some time; in fact, many of the retail prices of last year on potted plants are the wholesale prices this year.

What stock there is in the market, however, is in good condition and selling well. A brisk demand for holiday goods is keeping shipping establishments busy, eastern orders being particularly active just now.

Violets are getting back into condition after the wind storm which affected many of the fields in the vicinity of Colma and shipments of first-class stock are going out.

been a longer chrysanthemum season. The first crop was unusually early and, while the stock is scarce now, there probably will be chrysanthemums sold up to the first of the year. An extremely heavy frost December 9 just about cleaned up the Chinese mums growing in the open, but there are still cuts of the large blooms grown under protection and quantities of the small pompons arriving in the market.

So far the poinsettia shipments from the south have arrived in good condition. A number of northern growers have potted poinsettias, but practically all the cut stock comes from Los Angeles and vicinity.

Carnations are scarce and high. What stock arrives is in good shape and in demand on account of funeral work, which always increases during the rainy weather.

Roses are none too plentiful. The cuts are excellent, however, making it easier to secure the price that is necessary just now. The first American Beauties have been cut, but the quality of this variety will stand improvement.

California orchid growers recently raised the price of orchids from 75 cents to $1 each wholesale. The blooms will now retail at $2 each. Due to the demand in San Francisco, retailers anticipate no complaint in regard to the advance. When orchids are desired the price seems to make little difference. Gardenias are a little short. Several large social affairs and weddings last week cleaned up this stock fairly well.

The unusually cold weather for this time of the year has seriously affected the trade. Of course there is always plenty of work on hand making Christmas wreaths, baskets, etc. Funeral work has been about normal. The market is well supplied with all seasonable flowers. The growers are now booking Christmas orders and expect to be able to fill all demands except for red carnations and roses.

Various Notes.

H. L. Olsson is well satisfied with the products of his rose house planted last summer with Ophelia, Russell, Hadley, Killarney and White Killarney. The cut from 2,700 rose plants from September 1 to November 1 was 30,000 blooms. He also has some fine specimens of cyclamen and pepper plants.

E. Sinclair finds that it pays to rebuild. His greenhouses he found to be too low to grow roses successfully; so last summer he rebuilt two of his houses and plans to rebuild the remainder. His main crop is roses and to get the best results he found it necessary to give them the right greenhouse conditions.

Eugene's Flower Shop has been busy with a large Christmas decoration order from the Crescent department store.

The Florists' Club meeting had to be postponed this month, as so many of the growers found it necessary to watch the thermometer instead of attending a meeting. H. H.

a consequence they are obliged to run on short time and are endeavoring to keep customers supplied. So keen is the demand for pots that they are loading them on trucks practically as soon as they are baked.

December has given us some variable weather and of late rain, fog and overcast skies have had the ascendency. Cold waves have mostly petered out before reaching here and the temperature has not yet fallen to zero. December 13 a maximum of 61 degrees was recorded.

NOTICE

Due to the adverse conditions, we have in sight for the holidays comparatively few cut flowers of our own growing, and being unable to obtain satisfactory stock from outside sources of supply, we regret that we will be unable to fill, at that time, any orders, other than for plants, sent us by our florist friends and others.

The C. A. Dahl Co, Lawrence Floral Co., Wachendorff Bros., Weinstock's Flower Shop, West View Florist.

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

Flowers have taken another advance this week and yet another is in sight for Christmas week. The prices for Christmas are in general twenty-five per cent ahead of the Christmas prices last year. In fact, the wholesale prices are so high that few if any of the florists are carrying any violets.

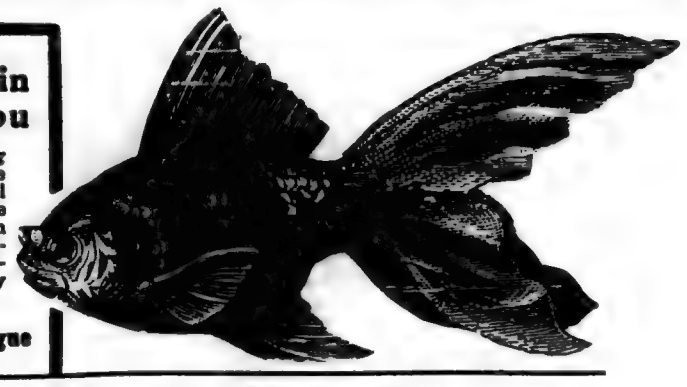
The demand for flowers is on the increase and dealers are doing a bigger business than ever before in the history of Toronto florists. It is expected that the Christmas trade will be a record one, but on account of the large increase in wholesale prices the profits will be less. A visit to the greenhouses of the growers shows that there is every prospect of a fair supply for Christmas trade, but not sufficient to take care of the entire holiday demand. One dealer has rented an adjacent store to handle parcels for delivery and shipment.

Retail Florists' Club.

At a meeting of the Toronto Retail Florists' Club held Monday, December 8, one dealer showed a window card he was using, stating that because the growers were charging such an unnecessarily high price, no violets were being handled. Other dealers liked the idea and stated that they intended to follow suit.

The growers are to be invited to an oyster supper the first meeting in January, when the club will make several recommendations to them and will discuss with them questions for the betterment of the trade in general.

The club has had a piano installed in its rooms and it is expected that the instrument will add to the enjoyment of the social evenings. There will be no social meeting this month.



The annual dance of the club will be held in February. A committee is at present searching for a large enough hall.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Success and the Slogan.

As we approach the close of the year, the committee looks back upon the work accomplished with a great deal of satisfaction. Our publicity campaign has certainly produced wonderful results, results in which the whole trade has shared. The movement of flowers and plants has been most active. No gluts have been reported in our markets and the demand for our products has been greatly increased, in spite of a higher range of prices which has all along existed.

Our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," has gained the strong approval of the people and is being quoted liberally outside our own field. It is being featured by our literary men and women and is being sung by concert artists the country over. Our florists—the progressive ones—are using it at every opportunity and realize its value to them as a medium for suggestion. Daily it is growing in use and bids fair to rival in popularity the best slogan ever devised and perhaps overshadow it. People who know say that it is on top of all and worth millions of dollars to our craft if we perpetuate it by constant and unflagging publicity.

Work for the Second Half.

This condition was foreseen by our publicity committee and it was achieved through the generous support of only part of those most interested. When the committee started to raise a fund of $100,000 for this year's work, its members confidently believed that this amount would be forthcoming. It was not. Barely more than half has been volunteered. As a consequence, the campaign, as laid out, has seen many departures from its plans. We have got only half as far as was intended. Those whose subscriptions have made the work possible are unanimously of the opinion that the money spent has been a most excellent investment and there has been abundant evidence to warrant such an opinion.

Invest Your Christmas Profits.

But it would be interesting to know what the vast army of non-subscribers think about it all. Do they ever think of the benefit which this great campaign is producing for them? Are they willing, are they desirous, that a certain body of generous men of their own craft should provide this benefit for them? Are they content to see their business conditions improve through the expenditures of others, whom they have for many weary months been invited to join?

We put these questions to all non-subscribers at this time, this glorious Christmas time, when good will is so strongly accentuated and the better selves of all of us respond to the appeals of conscience. Why not resolve to donate a small percentage of your Christmas profits to the campaign fund

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

A Ten Days' Opportunity.

Practically only ten days remain in which to take out life memberships in the society at the old rate of $25. At the Detroit convention it was unanimously voted to increase the annual dues from $3 to $5, and the life membership fee for members in good standing from $25 to $50, the increases to take effect January 1, 1920.

The advantage in life membership at the present rate is obvious—in five years a member will have paid in annual dues what can now be made in one payment, forever relieving the member from the payment of further dues, besides removing the necessity for keeping track of annual subscriptions and the bother of making remittances. Many members consider it an honor to be on the life membership list and point with pride to the handsomely framed and most impressive certificate, or diploma, which is issued to each life member.

Trade Life Insurance.

Look at the matter in the light of an investment and send me your check for $25, if in good standing; if not in good standing, add your dues for 1919, making the check $28. New members coming in as life members must pay $30, the difference being the amount of initiation and first year's dues.

If you are not already a member and are not interested in life membership, why not start the new year right, by sending in your check at once for $5? This will cover your initiation fee and dues to January 1, 1921.

Life memberships nominally are designed to increase the funds in the hands of the treasurer, to permit of more effective work in the interests of the trade. Almost 700 life membership certificates have been issued this year.

Some of our state vice-presidents and others are doing laudable work in the direction of increasing our life membership list, notably O. J. Olson, St. Paul, Minn., who has sent in fifteen applications, and W. J. Pilcher of St. Louis, Mo. W. F. Gude, Washington, D. C., and A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind., have also done good service.

Certificates and Buttons.

Owing to the large influx of life members, some little delay has been experienced in engrossing, framing and dispatching certificates, but we are catching up with the work as fast as possible.

A new supply of life membership buttons has just been received; these are being furnished at 75 cents each and are mailed on receipt of this amount at the secretary's office.

John Young, Sec'y.

NEW OPPORTUNITIES.

Are You Finding Them?

Has the slogan "Say It with Flowers" taken hold of you to the extent that it has developed new thoughts and suggestions for the extension of your business?

Have you noticed how well the florists of several parts of the country carried out the suggestion of Z. D. Blackistone, of Washington, D. C., in regard to a "Say It with Flowers" week?

And now comes the new song, "Say It with Flowers," making a big hit wherever it is sung.

Those who have tied up to these plans have already benefited by their adoption and, as the field of endeavor has hardly yet been scratched, we may, in the near future, expect other good ideas for strengthening the campaign, both national and local. And can you not see in the week and the song the enthusiasm emanating from our national campaign, which has been the inspiration for both actions?

More Pep, More Profits.

Opportunities, more than we yet realize, exist in our business and the more "pep" we can put into our campaign the larger will be the results.

Who doubts that florists generally feel proud of the effect of our campaign, as yet but two years old? Can you conceive the outcome of several years' action, both in results and in instilled energy as well?

Advertising men have argued for years that the door to economical marketing is opened by advertising and a concrete example of this is the experience of a firm which began advertising thirty years ago a camera which took a 2½-inch picture and which sold for $25. Today this firm makes a far better camera, which sells for $10, simply proving that by continuous advertising it not only improved the camera, but, by making and selling more cameras, it was also able to lower the price, and this in the face of a steady increase in the cost of labor and materials.

Facing the IF.

Now, how does this affect flowers? By a steady application of a proper national publicity campaign backed up by a strong local campaign you will build up a bigger and better business through developing more uses for flowers, helping at the same time the grower to maintain a higher market price, to which he is justly entitled. This can be accomplished if—and here's the "if"—IF we all back up our campaign fund to the extent that we can spread our message before the American public often enough so that flowers will be used more, talked about more, yes, and now sung about more. And if the funds which are now necessary to conduct this campaign come in their proper amounts, your returns will be many, many times your original investment.

Now, a word to those who have not as yet contributed: If there is a doubt, or shadow of a doubt, as to why you should contribute, ask your neighbor, and if he cannot tell, ask any of those who have already given.

La Rochefoucauld once said that "narrowness of mind is often the cause of obstinacy; we do not easily believe beyond what we see." If such be the case, look around you and see who the contributors are, and do your share.

Henry Penn,
Chairman National Publicity Campaign.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

The dark, cloudy weather which has characterized the last few weeks continues to make the supply inadequate for the demands made upon the "fashionable florists," who for several weeks past have had a capacity business on account of the renewed ardor of social activities. Naturally, this season's debutante set is made up of "buds" of the three seasons of 1917, 1918 and 1919, whose friends apparently are trying to make up for lost time, if one may judge by the large quantities of rare and beautiful blooms thus demanded. On the other hand, the larger body of retail florists who maintain a more general business are complaining of business being a little slow.

On the whole, prices continue just about the same as they were a year ago, notwithstanding the abnormal demands at that time. Roses vary from $6 to $30 per hundred, while carnations are $8 straight. The supply departments, both wholesale and retail, are busy in making ready for the Christmas trade.

Various Notes.

Although J. M. Johnston is having the best season in the history of his affiliated McKeesport, Braddock, Homestead and Duquesne stores, he is giving them only secondary attention, since both he and his manager, F. D. McMillen, are largely busy with the new McKeesport gas boom, promoting and selling leases in the gas belt. Harry Koehbar has been temporarily transferred from the McKeesport store to replace Mr. McMillen in the Braddock store.

Fred Burki, president of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., and his wife, who with their children, Roma, Grace and Albert, left early in October for California, have returned temporarily and have been spending the last three weeks in and around the city. Their intention is to leave again Saturday, December 20, for the Pacific coast, where they have purchased a beautiful bungalow at Hollywood and expect to spend the greater part of each year. superintendent for this firm, will probably take a large part of Mr. Burki's responsibility during the latter's absence. Mr. and Mrs. Kocher entertained at their home Wednesday evening, December 10, with a large dinner party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Burki, the guests' list including Mr. and Mrs. Langhans, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Ludwig, Mr. and Mrs. Ira B. Crawford and other old friends and neighbors, numbering about forty. Miss Roma Burki, who remained with the other children in California, was formerly identified with the clerical force at the wholesale store in town.

Joseph M. Jones, of 401 Penn avenue, is dealing heavily in Christmas trees this year. Mr. Jones and his family recently returned to their town house following a prolonged season at his farm near Valencia, Pa.

Manager W. H. Carney, of the Florists' Supply Co., Inc., has engaged G. P. Smith, of Wilkinsburg, a certified accountant, to take charge of the firm's accounting department. Mr. Carney has also added a large truck to the firm's delivery system.

Mr. and Mrs. De Forest W. Ludwig are receiving the congratulations of their friends upon the arrival of a young son, their first child, December 4. The child has been named John Collins Ludwig, for his maternal grandfather, John George Collins, of Meyersdale, Pa.

The display windows of Beckert's Seed Store showed last week a most attractive exhibition of rustic bird houses. On the counters were Christmas boxes of Paper White narcissus bulbs, with pebbles, the bulbs being designed to grow in water. The boxes are of three sizes, the respective selling prices being 25, 50 and 75 cents.

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Market.

The market was again short last week on all lines of stock. The cause for this is quite evident—the growers are holding it back for the holidays and higher prices. Roses were scarce; there was a good demand, but not enough stock to satisfy it. The same, or perhaps a little worse, condition existed in regard to carnations. Sweet peas were in the same category and violets were hardly to be had. There are more Paper Whites and these clean up well each day. Chrysanthemums are about over. Stevia is to be had in fair supply. Asparagus is the most plentiful article on the market. A great deal of smilax is not carried on hand, but enough can be secured on short notice for all demands.

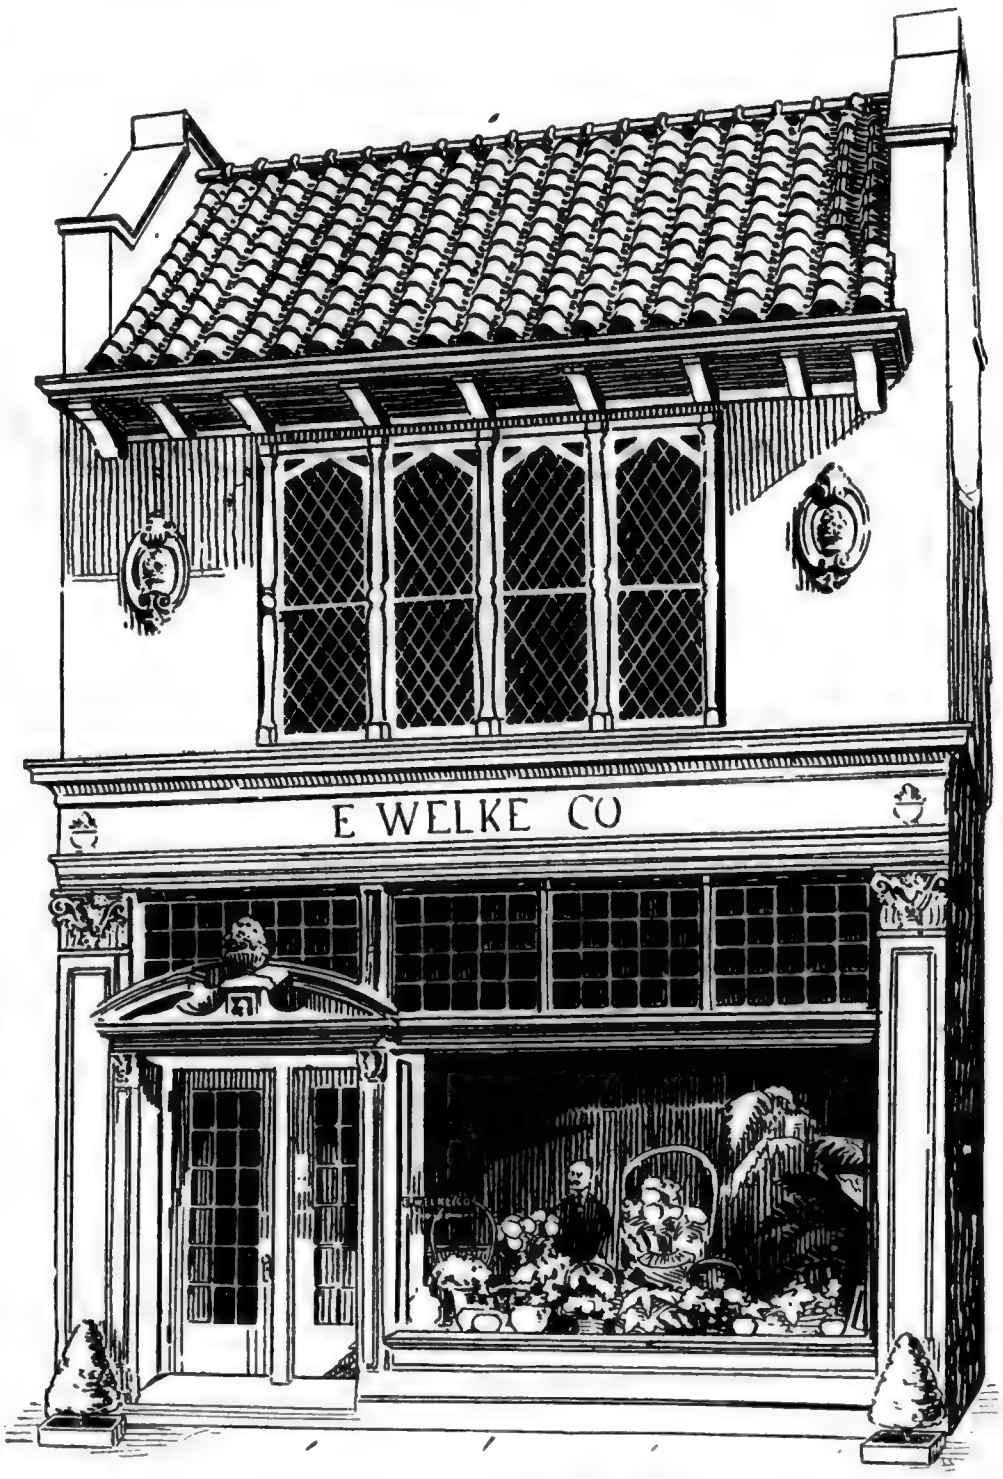
Club Meeting.



Monday evening, December 8, the Florists' Club held one of the liveliest and best meetings it has had for a long time. The president, William F. Ekas, presided. This was decidedly a young men's meeting, there being more of the younger members present than had ever before been seen at a meeting.

At 7 o'clock Robert L. Graham, Jr., had a meeting of the entertainment committee, at which plans for the coming winter were outlined, and to hear those boys making their plans was an inspiration. Every meeting during the winter has been provided for. William F. Feast is a member of this committee and he is certainly the right man in the right place. Among other things suggested by Mr. Feast and adopted by the committee was a theater week, when the club will hold a theater party at which "Say It with Flowers" will be well boosted. Like everything else that Mr. Feast is connected with, this is to be on broad lines; that is, not only the evening of the theater party is to be taken care of, and the house in which it is to be held, but the five principal theaters of the city as well. This will mean work, but the committee is one that is not afraid of work. "Say It with Flowers" being sung in five different theaters for six nights should bring the slogan to a goodly number of people. There is no doubt that this committee means business. It is composed of a lot of young hustlers who will make things hum for the club this winter.

At the same time that plans were being made for the entertainment this winter, William E. McKissick had his membership committee in another part of the hall. This committee has made a census of those engaged in the business who are not members of the club and it is the committee's intention that these shall be members within a short time. Seven of this number were proposed at the meeting, even before the committee had got down to work. A significant fact was that, of the seven members proposed, only one was over 40 years of age. The committee has adopted for its slogan, "Go get 'em."

John Nuth, who is a veritable wizard when it comes to seedling chrysanthemums, had on exhibition a vase of pompons that attracted lots of attention. The exhibition committee was of the opinion that these were as fine a collection of seedlings as they had ever been called upon to judge; they awarded the club's certificate of merit.

Various Notes.

One of the most pleasant features of the meeting of the Florists' Club was the presence of our old friend, Robert Halliday, formerly with the I. H. Moss Co. Mr. Halliday has been on the sick-list for seven or eight months, but his recovery is now complete and he is looking as well as he ever did. His physician, however, has ordered him to be in the open air for the next year or two, so he has taken the agency for Baltimore and vicinity for the Henry F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia. Now, if any of you want anything that is handled by this house and will call up Homewood 1867-J, you will find Rob at the other end of the wire, ready to take care of your requirements, or a postal card to 2310 North Calvert street will bring him to you. We all wish him success in his new venture.

We have been reading much of late about the enthusiasm displayed by Buffalo florists in local advertising. They had better look to their laurels, as Baltimore has become infected with the same germ. Joseph S. Merritt, the young fellow who talks, eats and dreams "Say It with Flowers," is chairman of the local publicity committee, whose business is to have this slogan placed in every available place in the city. The committee is composed of five young men who do not know how to take "no" for an answer. If you have not yet put the slogan on your delivery truck, get it there at once, or if you have not heard of the glass signs, send for them before the committee comes to see you, for "Say It with Flowers" Merritt and his committee will be around. They are on the job, so that it will be no use to try to side-step.

Robert L. Graham and James J. Cummings have recently become members of the F. T. D. Baltimore has become too contracted for them to do business in, when there is plenty of business all over the world just waiting for them to go after it. This makes five members in the Baltimore list.

Andrew Anderson has a fine lot of poinsettias in pans that will be just right for Christmas. Out at this range they have timed their rose crop for the holidays.

The range of Stevenson Bros. is going to hit it just right for the holidays, since they have timed their crops carefully.

At the range of the I. H. Moss Co. the outlook is fine for Christmas; as fine a lot of poinsettias as one would wish to look at for cutting is to be seen; the rose crop will be just right, and the carnations will be fine. Everyone is making preparations for one of the biggest Christmas rushes yet experienced and everything is being in-

DULUTH, MINN.

The Market.

The weather continues cold with not much prospect of any change. The cut flower trade has been a little slow since Thanksgiving and stock of all kinds is plentiful. There are still a few good chrysanthemums on the market in white, yellow and pink, which retail at good prices. Pompons are good, although only in moderate supply, and are useful both as a cut flower and for body work in funeral designs. Stevia is good stock and when used in combination bouquets is light and effective. Carnations are in moderate supply and are fairly good stock.

There is an abundance of roses in all grades. Russell, Columbia, Ward, Ophelia and Sunburst are of high quality, especially blooms in the medium grade, which are the best sellers. American Beauties are scarce and high in price, although this does not affect the sale, as people expect to pay a good price for Beauties at this season of the year. Killarney and White Killarney are coming in well. Cecile Brunner is scarce.

Paper White and yellow narcissi are plentiful and sales are slow. There is quite a demand for Easter lilies for wedding decorations, but there does not seem much chance of an adequate supply as most growers say that there are no lilies in sight. Valley and cattleyas are scarce with prices still high. Double violets were a little better last week.

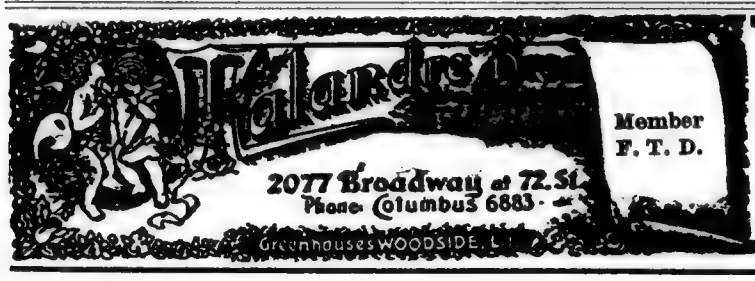
Funeral work was brisk all last week. For the last two weeks all the stores have had large displays of artificial stock which will now be replaced by the Christmas plants and baskets. Because of the fuel situation the hours of the retail stores were limited last week to from 12 noon to 6 p. m., but the restrictions were lifted at the beginning of this week.



Various Notes.

J. J. Le Borious had a large and elaborate decoration for the Mullen wedding. It took the form of an altar arrangement of palms, ferns and Ophelia roses. The fireplace was banked with ferns and Ophelia roses. The dining room was decorated with Ophelias and the table was showered with Cecile Brunners. The bride's bouquet concisted of white roses showered with Cecile Brunners and the maids carried Ophelias.

The Duluth Floral Co. was kept busy with the McLeod funeral at Chisholm, Minn., last week. Many large designs

William Japp has a fine lot of poinsettias, both in pans and on the benches, which will be in good shape for the Christmas trade. He also has a nice lot of cyclamens, but has not enough to fill orders. Walter Japp has left Duluth to take up a position with Matthews the Florist, in Dayton, O.

Henry Eichen, of the Duluth Floral Co., has left for California to attend the funeral of his mother, widow of the late Michael Eichen. Mrs. Eichen had been staying in Duluth with her daughter, Mrs. E. P. Kreimer, since the death of her husband and went to South Bend,

The Market.

What the florists would like better than anything else just now is a week or more of clear, sunshiny weather. There has been so much cloudiness the last two months that holiday stock has been held back and at this time it seems that everything will be late, plants as well as cut flowers. Sweet peas are especially in need of sunlight, as the plants are in good growth and the buds are forming, but there has not been the crop that there should be for cutting now. Carnations are also showing the effects of dark weather in a short supply. There are a few white narcissi and a little stevia in this market now. Mums are holding on well. Some growers are still cutting good pink ones and also white.

Business has picked up somewhat since the coal miners and operators have come to a settlement and the mining of coal has been resumed. Fuel restrictions have been gradually removed by the fuel administrator and Monday morning, December 15, all lines of business returned to their normal hours of opening and closing. The shorter business day and the ban on social gatherings worked a greater hardship on the downtown retail florists than on any others, as all decorating was cut off and persons who bought flowers on their way home stopped at the outside dealers, because the weather was so cold that they were afraid the flowers would freeze on a long trip. The outside dealers also lost heavily on the short day, however. With some of these, cash sales are usually heavy from 5 until 8 o'clock in the evening and when 5 o'clock was the latest closing hour permitted the outside shops were closed by the time the home-bound persons reached there.

Funeral work has been the main part of the flower business the last two weeks and this has kept everyone fairly busy. There have also been a good many hospital orders. Shipping business has been good all the week.

$25 to $36 a dozen for Christmas retail trade. Some dealers say they are going to be prudent on their advance orders for Beauties at these figures. Prices have not varied much in the last few weeks. Roses are from $6 to $20, carnations $6, narcissi $5, stevia $2 per hundred, sweet peas $1.50 and $2 per hundred and California violets $1.75 for half a dozen bunches.

the mining district all last week. The regiment was called out by Governor Gardner Monday morning, December 8, when a force of volunteers reported for work at the Missouri mines. Mr. Carter was mess sergeant at a camp near Oskaloosa, Mo. His company was quartered in a church and, according to a letter from him a few days ago, quite comfortably situated.

James Musso has sold his cut flower business in the Woolworth 5 and 10-cent store to Price E. Payne and Meyer Lieberman.

An oak tree, said to be 200 years old, was recently cut down in the yard of the J. C. Egelhoff home, 2700 Main street. For the last two years the tree has not seemed to be in a healthy condition, but members of the Egelhoff family who had played around the tree as children were reluctant to have it cut down. A consultation recently resulted in the decision that the tree was dead and when it was estimated that it would yield several cords of wood at $15 a cord it was decided to cut the tree down. The wood will be burned in the large open fireplace of the home.

The Market.

Business was quieter last week, doubtless the calm before the storm.

Carnations are selling well at $1.25 per dozen; the somewhat brighter weather has caused the quality to improve. Roses are in fair supply and meet with ready demand. Most of the other flowers are in short supply. Poinsettias, both for cutting and as potted plants, will be difficult to get, since the growers have already received orders for most of the stock on hand. Present signs indicate that there will be no surplus for Christmas, but a greater demand.

No doubt the scarcity of trained help is responsible for the smaller supply of stock. Much has been said regarding the increase of wages paid to skilled florists, especially growers, but the increases have not been in proportion to the higher prices received for greenhouse stock. Consequently men continue to turn to other lines of work

Business has been good for the last two weeks and it has been a hard matter at times to find enough good stock to fill orders. However, the supply of stock has greatly improved during the last few days and there will be a heavy crop from now until after the holidays. Some fine roses are being received and find ready sales at good prices. Among these are Russell, Columbia, Hoosier Beauty and Premier with stems from three to five feet in length. These bring from $6 to $12 per dozen. If nothing happens there will be a heavy crop of roses for Christmas. The carnation crop is far below the usual standard for this season of the year, as to both quantity and quality of blooms. Owing to the late summer and fall, with so much warm weather, the crop has been almost a failure. The Christmas crop of carnations will be only about fifty per cent of that of former seasons. There is a good crop of Paper Whites and there will be a heavy cut of these for Christmas. These retail readily at $2 per dozen, while there is a strong wholesale demand for them at $8 per hundred. Mistletoe chrysanthemums are in strong evidence, and there will be a good crop for the holidays. There is a big demand for them, and it is no trouble to get $10 and $12 per dozen for the best ones. There is a good crop of orchids, with indications of a large Christmas crop.

The Christmas situation is looked forward to with more or less anxiety by the trade. There will be about the usual supply of stock, but the indications are that trade will be a great deal heavier than at previous Christmases. Several reasons are advanced for this increase in the demand for flowers, among which are these: First, the national publicity campaign is doing much toward educating the public and increasing the demand for flowers; second, there is a candy shortage, which will naturally increase the demand for flowers; third, the Knoxville florists are not asleep when it comes to a matter of placing their merchandise in an inviting way before the public, which is learning fast to "Say It with Flowers."

equal to the demand in long-stemmed roses, but there is a scarcity of short stock. Some extra fine Mistletoe mums in yellow and white are to be had in limited quantities. Outside of this variety, mums are through, as are also pompons, with the exception of Christmas Gold, which is especially fine. But all this stock has been ordered in advance for Christmas sale. Carnations are scarce, since the stock from Richmond, Ind., has ceased coming to this market. A great many Chicago carnations are coming to this market. Violets are not to be had, except California stock, which arrives in satisfactory condition. Paper White narcissi are plentiful and seem to clean up daily. Soleil d'Or is coming on again and sells well.

Various Notes.

The coal problem does not seem to be as serious here as in some cities. Nearly everyone has a good supply and with the miners back at work the first days of winter ought to show a considerable improvement in heating conditions. The retail merchants of Cincinnati are allowed full business hours, but they are asked to shut off all electric signs, show windows and show cases when the store closes at the end of the business day. The streets present an unusually dismal appearance after 6 o'clock, but everyone seems satisfied with the new conditions.

The Cincinnati Florists' Club met at the store of H. W. Sheppard. Outside of routine business little was done, because of small attendance, probably due to everyone being busy with Christmas work. After the first of the year no doubt everyone will do his part and keep up the high standard of the club.

E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., was a visitor last week. Mr. Hill was on his way home from the Indiana State Florists' Association convention.

Gustav Adrian, Price Hill, will be in good crop for Christmas with white Mistletoe mums, Christmas Gold pompons and stevia.

F. C. W. Brown, of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, was a visitor last week.

W. Sundermann will have a good cut of Mistletoe mums in a few days.

William Taylor, Price Hill, has some fine poinsettias in pans in perfect condition.

R. Witterstaetter, Price Hill, has the finest yellow and white Mistletoe mums in this market. His Christmas Gold pompons are exceptionally good.

Gentlemen:-

We are enclosing you our check herewith covering your invoice in full. The fixtures are installed and the new mirror is here for the refrigerator. Everything is fine and the fixtures are very satisfactory and have caused much favorable comment. We appreciate your promptness and thoroughness in getting out this order and should we need any more fixtures, you can feel assured that we will call on you.

We propose having a photograph taken of our new store and sending it to the different floral papers, with a write up of the store and we shall be pleased to mention your name in this write up.

Please quote us on a counter similar to the two you furnished us except same to be 12 feet long instead of 10 ft. otherwise to be exactly the same as the two counters we now have.

Yours very truly,

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

L. W. Wheeler, of Gilroy, Cal., was born December 20, 1868, at Cherry Creek, near Jamestown, N. Y.

Eugene Schattel, of Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co., Paris, was in Chicago December 15 and 16, his first visit since 1915.

Trade offers from Germany are being received with increasing frequency. Wilhelm Pfitzer, of Stuttgart, sends prices on begonia seed for 1920.

During the quarter ended September 30, 1919, exports of bulbs from Amsterdam to the United States totaled $161,953, being fifth in importance in this trade, diamonds, hides, rags and artificial silk preceding.

Every indication points to higher prices on Paper Whites at Ollioules. Where the "skindcate" once held them up, the Holland and American buyers now bid them up. The Englishman stands back with his hands up.

The official roster of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y., is: President, Jerome B. Rice, Jr.; vice-president and treasurer, C. E. Smith; secretary, John L. Hunt; auditor, H. S. Hoard. The business was established in 1832 and incorporated in 1886.

German seedsmen who send price lists to former American customers are quoting in dollars and asking payment through bankers in advance, the former in order to avoid loss through low exchange and the latter to protect themselves against seizure of their accounts in case of international financial or political difficulties.

The California Certified Seed Potato Growers' Association has been organized at Los Angeles, with George Peters as president. The state legislature of California has appropriated $10,000 to promote the improvement of seed potatoes. The new association will coöperate with state officials in developing state-grown seed potatoes, so that shipments from other states will not be required.

Charles L. Atlee, for twenty-nine years manager of the mail order division of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, has taken a similar position with the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis. The personnel of this firm is as follows: President, John P. Salzer; vice-president, Kenneth E. Salzer; secretary, Carl Rau; general manager, W. D. Weedy. Since 1868, when John A. Salzer founded this business, it has grown steadily until now it employs more than 500 people and its warehouses, offices, etc., occupy more than seven acres of floor space. The latest addition to these buildings is of tapestry brick and has numerous improvements, including washed air and an automatically controlled heating system.

VALLEY FROM HOLLAND.

Though no receipts are yet here from Hamburg, since the steamer Abraham Lincoln has not arrived, several shipments of valley pips have reached New York from Holland. The first, of eighty cases for McHutchison & Co., was announced last week. On the steamer Zuiderdyk, from Rotterdam, which arrived at New York December 6, were

A TRUCKER'S VIEW.

The Need For Tested Seeds.

"'As ye sow, so shall ye reap.' The truth of this text is universally accepted in theory and has been since the dawn of history. In practice, however, many planters either fail to grasp its truth or believe that congenial growing conditions can be made to overcome the influences of heredity in seed," said E. R. Bennett, of Boise, Idaho, at the vegetable growers' conference at Riverside, Cal., last summer.

"To discuss this question intelligently, we must first define what is meant by good seed. Good seed from the planter's standpoint is seed of a given variety of good viability, from high-yielding, healthy plants, true to type and free from the influences of pollenization from other varieties or undesirable strains of the same variety. All these characteristics are invisible and so intangible that it is easy to forget their importance and to trust to luck in securing seed stock for planting.

Where Heredity Counts.

"By far the larger part of the experiments and literature on the subject of gardening pertains to the culture—environment—rather than to the heredity of the plants with which we work. To say which of these two factors in truck growing is more important is to bring up the perennial question of heredity versus environment. Anyone who cultivates a garden realizes the necessity for providing the proper fertility, moisture, etc., in order to make plants grow successfully. That intangible something which every seed contains, which has been carried from generation to generation, and which determines whether the flesh of a cantaloupe will be salmon color or green, although not seen in the seed, is of vital importance to the grower.

The Age of Seeds.

"Not infrequently growers attribute crop failures to the age of the seed sown. For many years we have been told by gardeners that the tendency of root crops to go to seed the first year was due to the fact that the seed sown was old—meaning that it was more than one year old. We have found no evidence that this is necessarily true. In the case of celery our experience has been that failure to make a crop, or seeding, was more likely to be the result of poor cultural methods. A check in the growth of the plants will cause celery to seed, and the same may be true of the root crops also.

"There is no question that the age of the seed is an important factor in successful gardening. We believe, however, that this is largely a matter of viability. Many vegetable seeds will fail to grow when more than one season old, and possibly some of those that do grow may be so weakened as to fail to produce as would fresh seeds. It is a peculiar fact that some species that it would seem should retain their vitality will become worthless after one season, while other seemingly more tender plants retain their viability for long periods. The onion seems to hold the record for inability to retain life, while the cucurbits may grow even after a lapse of eight or ten years.

Use Seeds From Known Sources.

"Unquestionably the safe plan for the trucker is to use only such seed as is known to be new, or at least this system should be followed so far as is possible. Every gardener realizes the importance of good seed and there seems to be a growing tendency among the better growers to produce their own seeds so far as is practicable. Where this is done intelligently, with a view to improving the variety or strain, the work is undoubtedly profitable. We shall hardly be able to dispense with the professional seedsman, however. It is to him that we must look for the greater part of the seeds used, as well as for much of the standardization and improvement of our vegetable crop."

IMPORTS OF GRASS SEED.

The following table, prepared in the seed laboratory of the Bureau of Plant Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, shows the amount of the various kinds of forage plant seeds subject to the seed importation act permitted entry into the United States during the month of November, 1919, as compared with the corresponding month in the previous year:

its wholesale seed stock and is experiencing a brisk demand for fall seeds. The retail end of the business is running along smoothly, Mr. Nevraumont states, and he is looking forward to an exceptionally good spring business.

C. C. Morse & Co. are practically cleaned up on Holland bulb importations. T. C. Holmes, of the retail store at 125 Market street, remarked on the volume of future dahlia orders, a line which the firm has been particularly interested in for the last three years.

Mr. Hallawell, of the Hallawell Seed Co., is well pleased with the results of the bulb season, which is closing up better than he expected. The recent rains have stimulated the purchase of rose bushes and ornamental shrubs. Due to the scarcity of stock of this character, most of the retailing nurserymen expect an early call for it.

The potted plants from the Cottage Gardens Co., of Eureka, are coming in. This stock is about a month ahead of the Belgian stock and is said to be in first-rate condition.

The C. Kooyman Co. is receiving regular shipments of poinsettias from the southern part of the state and Mr. Kooyman reports a fairly large demand for the blooms.

The staff of Enomoto & Co. is exceedingly busy with eastern orders for California red berries, woodwardias, thistles, etc., in addition to the usual violet trade, which is quite good this year. The violets are much improved over those of last week, some of which were damaged by the severe wind storm.

Domoto Bros. are shipping large orders of violets both to the east and the northwest. Their violet stock is much improved since last week. Some fine azalea plants have been taken from the nurseries already and Mr. Domoto says that there will be a good supply of poinsettia plants ready for the holidays.

A splendid showing of ferns was seen at the United Flower & Supply Co. store, on Bush street, last week. This concern has a good-sized stock of potted plants, including cyclamens, begonias, Boston ferns, palms, etc. In addition, the company has a good stock on hand of dried Japanese lotus seed pods, which are greatly in demand by florists for decorative work.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is moving large quantities of violets just now and is busy keeping up with rose shipments. The cutting of American Beauties has commenced at the nurseries and Henry Avansino, manager of the Bush street store, states that the demand for Beauties promises to exceed that of last year.

J. A. Axell is busy getting settled in the enlarged quarters. The store now has a main entrance of its own at 463 Bush street, which will add greatly to the convenience of handling trade.

W. A. Moore, of the Hollywood Gardens, of Seattle, was in San Francisco last week, calling on the trade and doing some holiday buying in the line of gift novelties, fish aquaria and the like.

Mrs. Meldrum, of the Meldrum Floral Shop, at Sacramento, Cal., was another visitor last week.

Joe Varsi, of Richmond, has been commissioned to do the holiday street decorations for the Merchants' Association of the Richmond district. He plans to use redwood garlands and wreaths and California red berries.

The Nelligan Sisters report a home wedding order in which chrysanthemums, azaleas and pink roses will be used.

For a wedding of considerable size, held December 13, the decoration was provided by A. O. Stein. The room in which the ceremony was held had a background of redwood, with yellow and gold chrysanthemums for the main color note. Poinsettias, arranged not too prominently, gave the holiday atmosphere to the affair. The bride's bouquet was of orchids and gardenias. This shop will also decorate a wedding which is to be held in the Empire room

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

PRESSURE of business has kept nurserymen from their usual attendance at state and sectional trade meetings this fall.

OFFICERS of the Waxahachie Nursery Co., at Waxahachie, Tex., are: President and manager, J. R. Mayhew; secretary, G. H. Blackmon. The company's capital stock is $92,500.

ELMER RICE, of Springdale, Ark., delivered 135,000 apple trees this season. He had orders for twice that total, but was unable to fill them. It is estimated that 500,000 trees have been sold in that locality this fall, most of them being 4-year-old trees.

THE owners of the Austin Nursery, Chicago, Henry J. Stockman and Robert Barton, have leased 250 acres of land, known as the Utica Black Ball Cement Farm, just east of La Salle, Ill., and expect to employ thirty to fifty men in growing small nursery stock, mushrooms and French endives.

THE Western Association of Nurserymen will hold its next annual meeting January 28 and 29 at the Hotel Baltimore, Kansas City, Mo. The present officers are: President, Earl D. Needham, Des Moines, Ia.; vice-president, E. P. Bernardin, Parsons, Kan.; secretary-treasurer, George W. Holsinger, Rosedale, Kan.

As the result of recent court action, L. J. Miner, of Upland, Cal., was prevented from collecting on the note of J. Frank Hollenbaugh, a local rancher, for $140, alleged to be due on the purchase of citrus nursery stock. Judge George Crane held that the stock, purchased two years ago, was diseased and that the defendant had already sustained heavy loss, having planted the trees and worked on them for two years, only to be obliged to pull them out and replant.

SUMMER PLANTING.

An Income the Year Around.

Don't all say at once, "Impossible." I forgot whose definition it was, but somebody defined impossible as something difficult for the ancients. Summer planting is not only possible, but the biggest asset to any nurseryman's business. Bare-rooted trees cannot be transplanted after the sap has come up, but when trees are taken up with a ball of earth intact around the roots, they can be handled at any time of the year, it matters not what the season.

Most of us are familiar with balling and burlapping, as this process is called. For the benefit of those who are not, I may say that it is one of the most wonderful adventures in the nursery and landscape business. A tree, shrub or plant is dug without disturbing the roots. Growth continues just as though that tree or plant had never been moved from the earth in which it originally grew. The surrounding earth, which is lifted intact, yields nourishment and serves as protection for the roots until the tree or shrub is transplanted.

No Closed Season.

We used to think, as many do now, when we were digging stock bare-rooted and getting from 15 cents to 25 cents for a peach tree, that when the sap went down we could commence digging and that when the sap came up in the spring our season was closed. We would then let half or more of our office and field forces go, in that way losing trained help, and stop planting until the following November, being compelled then to break in a new set of workers.

The nursery business is divided into departments, fruit, ornamental and so on. And there are different methods in selling. Some sell through direct mail-order trade and some through salesmen on the road; then there is a general line of landscape planting locally that every nurseryman and florist has to take care of. Summer planting applies principally to the ornamental department and to those who have, or should have, a landscape department connected with their establishments.

We are looking to the moneyed man for our long profits and not to the old-time buyer, who planted four peaches in his back yard and three sycamores on his front walk. The big man's fancies come and go over night, and when he gets the home bee in his bonnet, then is the time we want to reach out and be of service to him in improving his surroundings, even though it is the first part of August.

You may come back at me and say that there is something in the atmosphere or climate of the gulf coast country that permits us to move this stock at this time of year, but that is far from being true. We move our stock directly from the field to the yard with hardly any losses. In the event that it is a failure with you, try the next best way —defoliate about one-half, place in the packing shed and keep damp from one to three weeks until new roots form in the ball of earth. Another good method is to ball and burlap the stock prior to the months of April and May and place this stock in a lath house or packing shed, heeled in shingletow or hay; the tops should be kept well sprinkled. Then, just do enough planting on your jobs to cinch them and keep your labor busy and your customer happy.

Midsummer Jobs and Mutual Joy.

When stock is handled in this way, the plants go to your customer with leaves on them and he likes that immediate effect in the appearance. He feels much better about the spiræas, althæas, crepe myrtle and many other of our deciduous shrubs than he would if they were put out in the winter months without a leaf on them. And there is a great advantage in planting evergreen trees and shrubs in summer, for they will live much more readily when planted in the warm ground. By the time you get your customer's job finished in January that you started in July, the bushes that have already been put in have made, under the increase of water and attention given them, a good growth and they are in a much better position to stand the following spring's drought than if they had been planted during the winter months. Consequently your man immediately becomes interested and the result is that he thinks he has done as much towards the building and beautification of his place as you have and there is an interest manifested that makes him happy.

Better than Side Line.

I believe that, if a commercial salesman could lay before you something as a side line that would care for your labor situation in the summer, most of you would be willing to incur an expenditure of $1,000 to $5,000 in enlarging your business to take it on. Now, I have a far different proposition; your packing sheds are built, your help is already lined up, your trees and bushes are grown and, instead of investing that $1,000 to $5,000, let us get on the job with a little close observation and give it a thorough and fair trial.

PRISCILLA

FOUR VARIETIES That Fill a Gap

While the "Mum" season is still fresh in your memory, run over your list of pink varieties. Have you anything good that blooms between Unaka and Chieftain? We offer these four varieties to fill this gap. The first two compare favorably with your varieties in other colors blooming at the same time, while the latter two will rank with the best midseason sorts. Being easy doers, and giving a full percentage of perfect blooms, they will find a place among the commercial varieties.

PANDORA

TOKIO

Priscilla Resembles Unaka in many respects, but has a livelier color and is full in the center. Blooms same time as Unaka. Take terminal bud. Stock limited.

Pandora Follows Priscilla in date of blooming. Reflexed petal and full flower. Lively pink in color. Take terminal bud. Stock limited.

Tokio Follows Pandora. Large Japanese reflexed. Beautiful lavender-pink. Compares favorably with the best midseason varieties. Take terminal bud.

Progress Follows Tokio and finishes as Chieftain comes on. Large, Japanese incurved. Bright deep pink. Makes a fine appearance. Scored 91 points. Take terminal bud.

Delivery will begin about March 1, 1920. Each, 35c; dozen, $4.00; 100, $25.00. Six at dozen rate, 25 at 100 Rate.

PROGRESS

BAUR & STEINKAMP

3800 Rockwood Ave. INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

Our prettiest yards are planted in midsummer and people think us strange and wonderful, for a few years back they could not conceive the idea of planting a large bush or tree even in the winter, to say nothing of the summer. I used to feel as if I wanted to carry my catalogue in my inside pocket, because I did not care to have some people I saw know that I was in the nursery business. But today is different. People are traveling and seeing excellent plantings; they are a topic of conversation at tea parties, and the Ladies' Home Journal, the Home Beautiful and other papers of their type are devoting from one to five pages to them. Ours is getting to be a real profession.

Know More than Your Customer.

The average old-style tree salesman cannot go out and interest a man in a $2,500 planting. For these reasons, it is up to us to put our whole hearts and souls into the business. We ourselves must study and also teach our employees in open discussion. Teach them to speak of the aucuba as a pretty little plant from the Himalaya mountains in Asia, and of the Cedrus Deodara as the cedar about which Kipling writes so many pleasing stories, and so on. For you know as well as I do, and the fact has never been different, that if you do not know more than your customer, you stand a mighty poor chance of getting his attention.

Comparatively speaking, there are as yet only a few landscape gardeners and nurserymen who have adopted the practice of summer planting. But it is rapidly coming to the front.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Horticultural Society.

At the annual meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, held at Music Hall, Tuesday evening, December 9, the fund for the greenhouses at Wallum Lake, the state sanatorium for the treatment of tuberculosis patients, received substantial additions. There was a fine exhibition of mushrooms by William Gray, gardener for W. B. Leeds, and he was awarded besides the society's cultural certificate a gratuity of $5.

The annual reports of the president, secretary, treasurer and executive committee were read, showing the society to be in an excellent condition, financially and numerically, while the work accomplished during the last year at exhibitions and regular meetings had been highly satisfactory. Notice was also given of an illustrated lecture, "New Plants," to be given January 13 by Professor Jack, of the Arnold Arboretum.

The following officers were elected and installed: President, Arthur W. Potter, Jr.; first vice-president, Andrew J. Dorward; second vice-president, Charles Philpot; recording secretary, Frederick P. Webber; financial secretary, William Gray; treasurer, Richard H. Gardner; sergeant-at-arms, William F. Smith; executive committee, officers ex-officio, with Andrew S. Meikle, Bruce Butterton, John B. Urquhart, William MacKaye, Frederick Carter, Alexander MacLellan, William F. Smith and James Robertson; auditing committee, Herbert Bliss, Bruce Butterton and Andrew S. Meikle; entertainment committee, Herbert Bliss, Andrew J. Dorward, Parker Thurston, Howard G. Ward and Robert Dunn.

Various Notes.

Edward J. Hass has accepted a position as head gardener at Indian Spring, the Bush estate, recently purchased by J. Francis A. Clarke.

Everybody reports good business, with an unusual number of orders for wreaths and greens for Christmas. Indications are for a busy holiday trade.

Carnation Morning Glow

Has now been on trial in the Boston Market for 4 years and has made good. It is there considered one of the "bread and butter" Carnations.

The grower likes it because it is an easy doer.
The seller likes it because it is a splendid shipper and keeper.
The ladies like it for its rosy morning glow shade.

MORNING GLOW is early, free, with a good, strong stem. It has no tricks about it.

While not one of the largest, it is probably the most profitable of all Carnations.

Sold by the originator. Rooted cuttings.

County Florists Meet.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club held its monthly meeting December 11 in Brenneman hall, Lancaster. The following officers were nominated for 1920: President, M. J. Brinton; vice-president, B. F. Barr; secretary, Albert M. Herr; treasurer, Harry K. Rohrer. The club went on record as being in favor of the S. A. F. proposed publicity program for St. Valentine's day. The next meeting of the club will be held in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce Thursday, January 15, 1920, when an illustrated lecture on "Holland" will be given by B. F. Barr's new landscape gardener.

After the business meeting a social session was held. Among the card-players, the first prize in the game of "500" was won by Mrs. B. Frank Barr; the second, by Mrs. Elmer J. Weaver, and the third, by Mrs. A. F. Strickler. The winners in the men's classes were Charles B. Herr, of Strasburg, Ira H. Landis and A. F. Strickler. At bowling some high scores were rolled. Mr. Dyer won the rake and Albert M. Herr, the hoe.

A buffet luncheon was served and, altogether, a decidedly pleasant evening was spent by all. The affair was arranged by A. F. Strickler, L. S. Landis and H. K. Rohrer.

Various Notes.

Continued cloudy weather forecasts a short cut of flowers for Christmas week. The numerous geranium rooting establishments around Lancaster have had considerable losses in rooting cuttings, because of unfavorable weather conditions.

Five of the Lancaster county florists have taken life memberships in the S. A. F. H. K. R.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful also to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

PIPING FOR HOT WATER.

We are sending you a sketch of our greenhouses. Please tell us how to pipe our new house, 42x150 feet, for hot water; it has a 7-foot gutter, four feet of glass in the south side and two feet of glass and two feet of ventilators in the north side. The house is of pipe-frame construction. How many flows and returns shall we need on either side and in the middle?

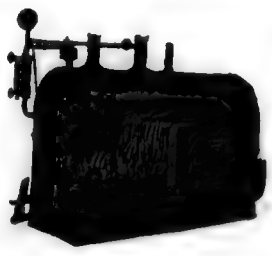
House No. 4 will be connected with the new house. We intend to run mains through the door leading to No. 4, then drop one and one-half feet to get under the 7-foot gutter; this would allow us a 1-foot drop to every fifty feet of heating pipe on the south side and approximately a 10-inch drop to every fifty feet in the middle and on the north side. Is this sufficient, or would it be better to build a lean-to on the west end of the new house? Running the main through in this way would give two feet more of drop.

We now have a Kroeschell boiler, size 3, which heats the four old houses. What size of boiler shall we need to heat the entire range, including a lean-to, 5x50 feet, on the west end of the new house? The latter is to be used as a cold house. The heat required is 60 degrees at 10 below zero.

P. B.—N. Y.

Although the letter does not state how much heat will be required in the old houses, I infer that an average of 60 degrees will answer. The sketch shows that these houses are, respectively, 20x100, 18x71, 18x71 and 15x69 feet. In house No. 1 there is two feet of glass in each of the side walls, but the others all have wooden walls. About 5,000 square feet of radiation will be required for the range, including the new house, but it would be best to use a boiler rated at about 6,000 square feet of hot water radiation or, better yet, two boilers of about 3,000 square feet each. In mild weather one boiler will furnish the heat needed, while the other can be held in reserve for use in severe weather and in case repairs are needed in the other boiler.

About one-half of the above radiation will be needed in the new house. Either five 3-inch or six 2½-inch flow pipes should be used. These should be connected with a main at the west end of the house, the main to be carried through the lean-to as suggested. One of the flow pipes may be placed on each of the side wall plates and the others may be supported on purlin posts, or suspended from the purlins, in case a truss roof is used.



For a house of this length it will be advisable to use 2-inch pipes for the returns. About twenty-one will be required. Four will be needed on the south wall and three or four should be placed on the north wall. The remainder should be distributed either under the benches or in the walks if solid beds are used.

It is not necessary to give a slope to the pipes in order to secure a good circulation of the water. A slope is only necessary in order to allow the air to escape when the pipes are filled with water. For this, one inch in twenty feet will generally answer and even less will suffice if the pipes are carefully graded and supported, thus preventing any sags in the line. In order to secure a rapid circulation of the water, the returns should be placed as high above the boiler as possible. Particularly when small flow pipes are used, it is advisable to slope them away from the boiler, since the circulation depends upon the relative weight of the water on either side of the highest point in the system. For this reason, it is advisable to arrange the system in such a way that there will not be much Gentlemen: Please send me 25 record plates like the enclosed sample, and I want to say that the machine, bought a good many years back, is keeping up its good work right along. I think it a very useful adjunct to good plant growing, and it should be in every greenhouse, as reference to it may often tell what is wrong with a batch of plants. Very truly yours,

ALBERT M. HERR.

The actuating element of the Standard Recording Thermometer is of lamina metal, which, besides being extremely sensitive to temperature changes, is practically indestructible. Record charts are furnished either daily or weekly, and the whole mechanism is contained in an attractive metal case fitted with lock and key, which insures the record from being tampered with.

The clock movement is of extremely high grade; everything about the instrument is up to the highest possible standard of manufacture.

cooling of the water until it has passed the highest point in the system. This arrangement also makes it possible to dispense with the use of air valves, as the expansion tank should be connected with the highest point in the system.

PIPING A LEAN-TO.

I have a lean-to greenhouse, 10x20 feet, that I want to use for tomato and cabbage plants, starting February 15. I have a Wilks hot water boiler and should like to know whether I can use 1¼-inch pipe for the flow and 1-inch pipe for the returns. Those are the only pipe sizes for which the boiler is tapped. The lean-to runs east and west, having a building on the north side and three feet of glass in the other three sides. If I can use the 1-inch pipe for returns, how many should go on each side? F. D. W.—O.

A Wilks hot water boiler with a grate 14x30 inches is sufficiently large to heat a greenhouse several times as large as the one described, especially if it is not to be used until after the middle of February.

The method of arranging the heating pipes will be determined to some extent by the location of the doors in the house. While 1-inch pipe may be used for the coils in a house as small as the one described, provided the lowest part of the coils is above the top of the heater, 1½-inch pipe would be preferable for the flows and returns. This can be used for the boiler described by connecting the flows and returns by means of reducing couplings or ells. Run the flow pipe along the rear wall of the lean-to and run part of the returns back along the rear wall. The others could be carried along the end of the house and the outside wall to the heater. About 300 linear feet of 1-inch pipe will be required for the returns. This can be used in a coil of six pipes on the back wall, with the same number of pipes in the coil running along the end and the outer wall of the house. In case the coils do not run across the end, there should be fifteen lines of 1-inch pipe in the coils. By connecting a mercury generator to the system it will be possible to reduce the number of the returns about one-third.

GROWERS, ATTENTION!

THE new Kost pulverizer is giving satisfaction everywhere. A florist can grow plants much better with thoroughly ground up sods and fertilizers. It releases plant food elements you can't utilize by old methods. This pulverizer will grind up sods, barnyard manure, leaf mold, ashes, oyster and clam shells, burnt lime-rock and other materials used for good soil. This pulverizer will save you a lot of work, grow better crops, and its cost is very reasonable for a first-class pulverizer.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

The Market.

Large numbers of Christmas orders are coming in and the largest Christmas business in history is looked for. Heavy snow and wind storms combined with weather as cold as 12 degrees below zero make the outlook for a good cut anything but promising, but good weather soon enough will make a great difference.

Prices this year are considerably higher than last, the best roses being quoted at $5 per dozen wholesale. Hoosier Beauty and Columbia are the leaders, the quotations on these being $12 per hundred for short, $25 for medium, $35 for long and $5 per dozen for select. Other varieties will sell at from $10 to $40 per hundred.

Carnations are scarce and, though some growers are asking $12 per hundred for the best, the supply will not nearly meet the demand. Sweet peas will be scarce at $3 and $4 per hundred. Extra good poinsettias may be had at $2 to $8 per dozen wholesale. Paper Whites may be secured in small amounts at 8 to 10 cents each.

The pot plant business will be especially heavy and the stock is larger and of a better quality than that of last year.

Various Notes.

J. Ginsburg, of the American Floral Shop, has opened a branch store in Idaho Falls, Ida.

The Miller Floral Co. has at its greenhouses 6,000 of the best cyclamens ever seen in the state. The plants are especially fine and the entire crop is already sold and will be moved this week.

The Market.

There was a noticeable decrease in funeral work last week, but everybody is kept busy in preparing for Christmas and many advance orders are coming in. Indications point to a large holiday trade. A number of new Christmas novelties are on display and the florists' windows have taken on their holiday dress. Mums are about gone, except a few Chadwick and also Christmas Gold pompons.

Various Notes.

Hirzel Bros. are cutting some fine Paper White narcissi and stevia. This firm has a nice lot of cyclamen and poinsettia plants for Christmas.

William Krueger is cutting fine poinsettias, Chadwick and Christmas Gold.

Lincoln, Ill.—Gullett & Sons are among the florists who were glad to see the end of the coal strike. Although there is a coal mine almost in the back yard of the greenhouse establishment, that fact serves no useful purpose when the miners refuse to operate the mine. It was necessary to scour the vicinity for any kind of available fuel.

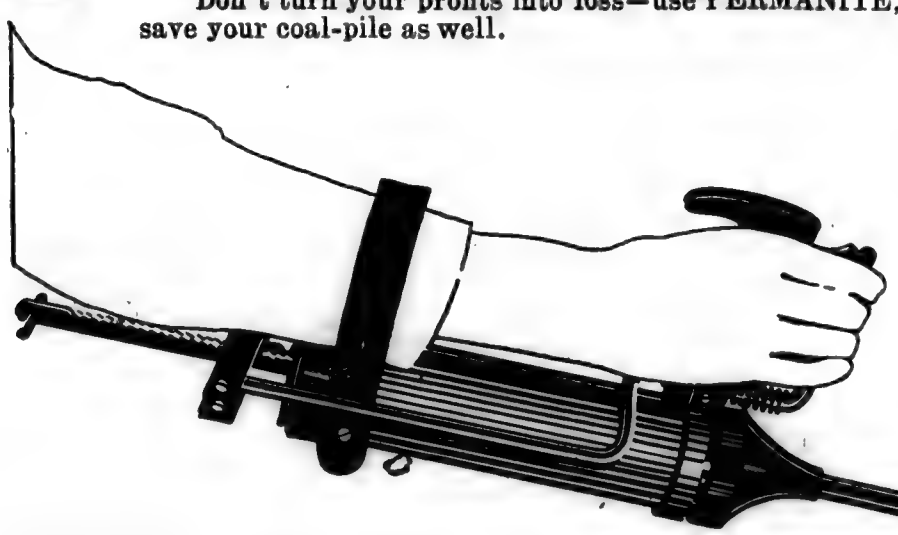
Permanite

[Trade-mark registered, U. S. Patent Office.]

DON'T TURN YOUR PROFITS INTO LOSS.



A lot of florists will either have to pay top-notch prices for coal this winter—or do without it.

If your houses are air-leak-proofed with PERMANITE — don't worry; the chances are your coal-pile will carry you through the Winter because there isn't a chance in the world for the cold to come in and the heat to get out.

But if your houses are not air-leak-proofed with PERMANITE—then it is high time to do it right NOW; PERMANITE will not enable you to heat your houses without coal, but it will certainly help you to do so with a whole lot less coal than you could otherwise.

PERMANITE will make and keep your houses absolutely air-tight; it will keep up the temperature without continuous cooling off from the outside and in this way keep down your expenses to a minimum.

Don't turn your profits into loss—use PERMANITE, get maximum efficiency at minimum expense and save your coal-pile as well.

Yours for a Tight House

Asbestfalt

An Elastic Cement That Expands and Contracts With the Weather

Make your greenhouse weather-tight with Asbestfalt, the elastic cement that never gets hard, cracks or peels in cold weather or runs in hot weather. $1.25 a gallon.

You can't get anything better no matter how much more you pay. The ingredients are of the purest; weighs but 10 pounds to the gallon.

With the scarcity of coal and its high prices, the careful application of Asbestfalt will more than pay for itself by keeping your greenhouse air-tight.

To insure best results, apply Asbestfalt with our Liquid Putty Machine, price $2.00. With every barrel purchase of Asbestfalt, one machine free.

The Market.

Supply and demand were just about equal last week. It has usually been necessary to call on the outside markets to supply a good part of the stock, but this was not the case last week. Trade, while it has been fair, has not shown the briskness of recent weeks. It is surprising to note that we have gone through the fall and part of the winter without experiencing a glutted market. Once or twice it seemed as if we were going to be swamped with stock, but it usually wound up with a shortage before prices had a chance to drop. It is reported that this market has never experienced such steady times and, from present indications, even plants are going to be scarce for Christmas. This shortage may not prove so acute, because the retail trade is expecting high prices and stock will readily be turned to any make-up the retailer's art may present. Already there are considerable displays, ranging from tiny baskets of strawflowers to bouquets of prepared stock in colonial style. At least it is true that the one who expects to sell plants as they are is not going to find Christmas trade especially profitable, because plants that are readily salable are not to be had in large quantities.

Various Notes.

The Quality Flower Shop, incorporated some time ago, has opened a shop on Chippawa street, near Main street.

It is worthy of note that the Buffalo Courier's flower department is taking up much more space than the beauty department.

The outside decorations at S. A. Anderson's store are attracting a lot of attention. Drapes of lycopodium roping lead from a window box of Christmas greens at the third story to attractive wreaths at each side of the store.

Karl Butz, of Lockport, N. Y., paid his friends a visit during the week. He reports a new baby girl at his home.

G. E. McCoy, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, made his rounds last week. Mr. McCoy reports especially heavy selling of ruscus.

Calendula Orange King, 2¼-in., at $4.00 per 100. Henry Smith, Grand Rapids, Mich.

CALLAS

WHITE CALLA BULBS. Clean, sound bulbs of Calla Aethiopica, the popular white Calla, all with crown shoots. Plant now and they will begin blooming in December. Figure a little; suppose you plant 1000 bulbs, 6 inches each way and get 6 flowers to a plant, (a fair average) you are making $750.00 gross on 250 square feet of bench space even if you sell the flowers as low as $1.50 per dozen, and you have your bulbs to use year after year.

Diameter of Bulbs.	100	1000
1 to 1¼-in.	$ 6.00	$ 57.50
1¼ to 1½-in.	10.00	95.00
1½ to 2 -in.	15.00	145.00

YELLOW CALLA BULBS. The true Elliottiana, brilliant yellow, with green foliage. Makes an attractive, easily grown, pot plant novelty that sells itself.

Diameter of Bulbs.	100	1000
1⅛ to 2-in.	$17.00	$160.00
2-in. and up	25.00	240.00

Cheap, poor quality bulbs take as much space and more care than good ones. Why not buy the best?

GERANIUMS

FOR GREENHOUSE FORCING
We offer a selected quality. All produced from young bulbs that were never allowed to flower. We guarantee our stock to be up to size, free from disease, and will refund any money advanced if dissatisfied upon return of bulbs. It is important to know from whom you buy. We own our own stock which was especially grown for us. Our growers and ourselves stand back of you.

WOOD LABELS

LABELS FOR NURSERYMEN AND FLORISTS.
Benjamin Chase Co., Derry Village, N. H.

There are a number of times when you need a for some particular purpose, but right at that time you do not remember where you can get a Fitting that will meet just this requirement. Tomorrow you see another place where a Fitting of some kind should be used and prevent further depreciation. And so it goes, from day to day, knowing that you really need these things but not ordering because you do not know where you can find Fittings that will answer the purpose.

For occasions like this our catalogue will be useful, as we manufacture

Greenhouse Fittings of all Descriptions

This catalogue is sent free on request and it only requires a nail to hang on after it is received. You cannot afford to be without it, for

Ventilating Equipment and Greenhouse Fittings are continually coming under your plant necessities.

We will gladly mail your copy if you will furnish us with name and address.

ADVANCE CO., :: Richmond, Indiana

If you just want to know what is the best material for framing greenhouses we'll just tell you—it is ALL-HEART "Tide-water"

CYPRESS "THE WOOD ETERNAL"

But if you want (as a wise man should) to know why and all about it you will send for Vol. 3, the Greenhouse Book, and Vol. 1, the U. S. Government Report.

Shoot a card to the Southern Cypress Mfrs.' Assn. 1230 HIBERNIAN BANK BLDG., NEW ORLEANS, LA., or 1230 HEARD NAT'L BANK BLDG., JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

Let Your Eyes Tell You

You're an experienced greenhouse man. You've seen good ones and bad ones. You've learned by experience what to look for in a greenhouse.

You know that when a greenhouse falls, it almost invariably falls endwise.

Now, get this—it's money to you—AGMCO houses never fall, because they can't. Look at this illustration and let your eyes tell you why.

Here you have scientific gable bracing, and a scientifically constructed gable that has been designed to stand every bit of stress and strain that will ever be put upon it, plus a wide margin of safety.

Why not have gables like this, with this kind of bracing, in your next houses?

Greenhouse Builders

PAUL E. WEISS WILLIAM SPANDIKOW

Weiss-Spandikow Co. Orders Two Big L. & B. Houses

IT goes without saying that we always like to sell greenhouses.
There are, however, some to whom we particularly like to sell.
Like to, because of their being acknowledged leaders in their particular section of the country.

When the Weiss-Spandikow Co. began sending their roses to the Chicago market, they were at once recognized as top-notchers.

The word promptly went out, to "Keep your eye on that man Weiss, he is a comer."
He is no longer a comer.
He is an arriver.

Those of you who have seen that range of four ridge-and-furrow houses at Maywood, Ill., with its splendid packing shed and power plant, knew that more houses must follow.

Seeing the wonderful stock, Mr. Spandikow, the grower, was producing, you also well knew that he would not be content with a four-house limit.

Knowing some of the big men who are directors of the company, you likewise knew they were money-makers and would eventually put their money in houses which would make the most money for them.
Make it, not alone for a few short years, but for years to come.

They soon began to see that it's not what a house costs to start with, that counts; it's what it keeps on costing that's the big thing.

They began to realize that it's possible to build greenhouses that are a permanent investment.

Of course they knew they would have to pay more for such houses.
But they also convinced themselves such houses would, in the end, pay them a lot more for what they paid.

Pay a lot more, because less would be paid in repairs.
Just naturally, neither Mr. Weiss nor Mr. Spandikow came to these conclusions in a hurry.

Furthermore, when they did, it was nott any easy thing to at first convince the directors.

That they are convinced beyond all argument is evidenced in the order placed with us for two of our big iron framers.
Two separate houses each 70 x 400, covering practically the same ground as their first four connected houses.

Our standard construction is to be used throughout.
Not a thing is of an experimental nature.
Every feature of the construction has been tried and proven.

These two houses will be completed by May first.
Every once in a while as the work progresses we will show photographs and tell you interesting facts.
So be on the lookout.

FLOWERS of SUPERIOR QUALITY

The Largest Growers of Flowers in the World

Why Pay for a Truck Three Times?

1. The Purchase Price.

The initial cost of an ordinary truck is but one item in the price you pay. Inferior quality must be paid for time and again after the truck is put into operation. WHITE quality costs money to produce, but saves money in the long run. Its cost comes but once in the life of a truck.

2. The Operating and Maintenance Expense.

A constant charge against the truck's earning power. The poorer the truck the more it costs for fuel, oil, renewals and repairs. WHITE Trucks operate with the utmost economy. They are known money savers.

3. The Cost of Idleness.

The largest item of all. Loss of earning power for a day makes a serious inroad on profits; a three-day lay-up may easily equal a month's operating cost. That is the direct loss. The indirect loss, due to halted and delayed operations, may be far more serious.

IN White Trucks the purchase price is your total investment. The operating item is absorbed in high earning power. The loss item is little or nothing. White Trucks have the staying power to keep going. They do the most work for the least money.

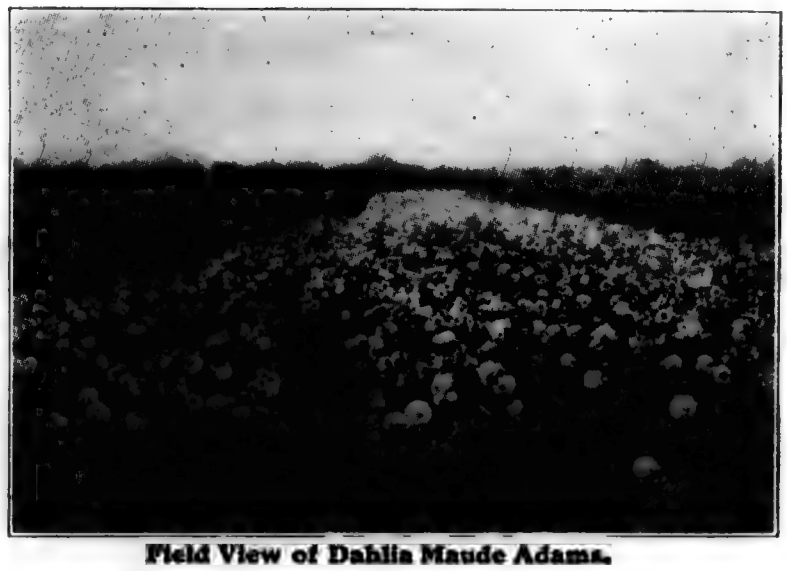
ALEXANDER'S DAHLIAS



For Florists and Seedsmen

Alexander's New Florists' Dahlias Lead the World

If you are looking for something good for your florists' business, try my new cut flower varieties offered below. I highly recommend them.

MAUDE ADAMS. (New Show Dahlia.) A pure snowy white, very daintily overlaid and suffused the sweetest shade of rose-pink imaginable. It is the best of my introductions for florists' use, and a variety I can highly recommend. "Maude Adams" is the most free-flowering Dahlia of its color, being more than twice as prolific as either "Nymphaea" or "Sylvia." It has good stems and is an early Dahlia to blossom, continuing throughout the entire season. It has the necessary features that make it stand shipping well, and makes up good in all kinds of work. It has already been tested out in all parts of the country, Raymond Champe, of Minnesota, finding it his best commercial variety. I can furnish strong divisions at $3.50 per dozen, $20.00 per 100; and clumps at $5.00 per dozen, $35.00 per 100.

FRANK A. WALKER. (New Decorative Dahlia.) A charming shade of lavender-pink, with long, stiff stems, making it first-class as a cut flower Dahlia. This new variety won the first-class Certificate of Merit at the North Shore Horticultural Society, at Manchester, for the best seedling in the show. It produces its flowers in great abundance, and is an exceptionally early bloomer. Good divisions, $3.50 per dozen, $25.00 per 100; clumps, $5.00 per dozen.

Field View of Dahlia Maude Adams.

The Florists' Best Dahlias, including the very finest and best of recent introduction; varieties that are still new and high in price, but so far superior to the average florists' dahlia, that they deserve a place in every florist's garden.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

CHOICE AMERICAN CREATIONS IN CANNAS

When inclined to be despondent about the results of Quarantine No. 37, we may find encouragement in contemplating the wonders that have recently been performed by some American hybridizers in providing improved varieties of stock. Note, for instance, the success of our canna specialists.

By EUGENE H. MICHEL.

THERE is no need to go back over a quarter of a century to call attention to what was embraced in this class of bedding plants before M. Crozy developed the wonderful dwarf, free-flowering type of which Mme. Crozy was one of the first to be introduced. The old varieties, useful in tropical bedding only because of their luxuriant foliage, have passed out of commerce. Many of the varieties that have sprung from the crossing of the French type with the various older forms give us the same values in foliage with the addition of plenty of flowers.

Cannas enjoy heat and moisture; consequently there are few places in the country where they do not adapt themselves and prove to be superior bedding plants. Their popularity has increased with the realization of this fact and the immense progress in the improvement of varieties.

Our Debt to the French.

In this field we are, of course, particularly indebted to the French, who in the early nineties first produced the type from which the modern canna was developed. Many excellent varieties have followed the first one of that class from France. The later French introductions, however, have not possessed some of the particular qualifications that would entitle them to a permanent place in our commercial collections.

Probably the most remarkable French introduction of recent years is the variety Firebird, which is fully entitled, because of the immense size of its florets, to all the publicity accorded it. Unfortunately, it has failed, however, to find favor in many localities, because of important characteristics which it lacks.

The canna of today must be a vigorous, healthy grower, a free bloomer and a good keeper. Size of flower is important, but really secondary, because, in bedding, an abundance of smaller blossoms will prove far more effective than a few of unusual size or even of great beauty.

The break toward varieties that more nearly fill the requirements for mass bedding was strongly noticeable in a number of German and Hungarian introductions within the last generation. In red, these included J. D. Eisele, Feuermeer and Fanal, the last mentioned still being one of the most dependable varieties; in yellow, Goethe and Gustav Gumpper, both with certain shortcomings, but unusually effective; in pink, Hungaria and Lahneck.

Older Sorts That Still Lead.

Hungaria is probably the most popular pink canna at present. While it lacks substance, there is a refinement in its wonderful coloring that will make it difficult to supersede. To Italy is credited the creation of King Humbert, unqualifiedly the most popular canna of today. It is not the sole survivor of its type, but many of the earlier so-called orchid-flowered varieties are losing ground, while King Humbert remains firmly entrenched in its position of leadership.

In thus discussing the foreign introductions, my object is to give credit where it is deserved. What I am about to say about American cannas would not be possible if our friends across the pond had not "started something."

Nor are there any other lines with which I am familiar, except cannas and dahlias, where the challenge of the European hybridizer has been so successfully accepted by American enthusiasts. The best cannas and dahlias for our purposes, introduced in recent years, have been of American origin. In dahlias the work can be credited to a number of capable hybridizers. In cannas, however, the credit falls largely to one individual, whose vision and perseverance have placed in our hands material which makes us independent of further European importations.

A Few of Wintzer's Winners.

Why Antoine Wintzer, of West Grove, Pa., has accomplished all this, may not have been a matter of great concern to thousands who find pleasure in viewing his creations. Judging others by myself, I believe that Mr. Wintzer's enthusiasm was first aroused by the accidental discovery of the possibilities in securing variations in cannas.

Initial success was like the implanting of a germ, which, once established, continues in its development until it overruns its entire field. With the first success the imagination was aroused, and the ambition and determination to master the problems have enabled him to create a large proportion of the most useful cannas in American commerce.

As proof of what Mr. Wintzer has accomplished, the following alphabetical list of a few of his most notable introductions is submitted:

Flowers of Wintzer's Colossal, in Foreground, are what the Name Implies.

City of Portland—Although not so thoroughly disseminated, this wonderful rosy pink is probably of greater value than Mrs. Alfred Conard.

Flag of Truce—In the effort to create the ideal white canna, Mr. Wintzer evolved this excellent bedding variety. Although he has produced purer whites, none of these have seemed to possess the freedom of growth and flowering required to insure their permanence in popular favor. Flag of Truce is a happy grower, an early, free bloomer, and its large florets are white in effect.

Gladiator—For many years a standard yellow.

Golden Gate—A unique orange yellow, whose flowers shade to a delicate rose in the sun.

Jane Addams—An early, free yellow.

Lafayette—A grand red, possessing in a marked degree all the essentials of a good bedder.

Meteor—One of the best deep red varieties.

Mrs. Alfred Conard—A masterpiece, being of vigorous growth, with a new, unique shade of salmon pink and a flower of unusual substance.

Mrs. Karl Kelsey—One of the few really good varieties of the Italian type.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson—A magnificent flower of excellent, deep rose coloring.

Olympic—Strong and vigorous in growth and free-flowering. The immense blooms are a strong carmine.

Panama—Unique deep orange, mottled yellow.

Pocahontas — Bronze foliage, surmounted by great trusses of carmine rose flowers.

Rosea Gigantea—A free, large-flowering rose pink.

Snow Queen—Practically a pure white, with immense florets.

The President.—Mr. Wintzer's latest masterpiece; a real achievement. When Firebird failed to prove satisfactory, he succeeded in crossing with a strain that injected more vigor and perfect health and thus he produced a variety with flowers as large and bright as those of Firebird, with ideal growth and foliage.

Wintzer's Colossal—The flowers are all that the name implies. True, they are flabby, but their freedom permits the plant to make a magnificent showing.

Wyoming — Bronze foliage, with bright orange flowers on tall, vigorous stalks.

The foregoing are only a few of Mr. Wintzer's excellent productions, which have become popular through real merit. Some that are omitted have not impressed me as being superior. Others have been superseded in the natural course of progress, frequently by varieties of Mr. Wintzer's own production.

Foreign Varieties Still in Use.

Among the varieties of foreign origin that still merit our attention may be mentioned the following:

Dr. E. Ackerknecht—Has distinct bronze foliage; is of vigorous growth and free-flowering; color of flowers a clear carmine rose, of much the same shade as Proserpine tulip.

Fanal—Bushy, free grower, with green foliage and erect heads of deep red flowers.

Goethe—Bright orange flowers, high above green foliage.

Hungaria—a charming clear, bright rose, free and compact.

J. D. Eisele—Free-flowering, bright red.

King Humbert—Too well known to require description.

Lahneck—Much the color of Hungaria, but a taller grower and with a broader margin of cream upon the petals.

Louis Reverchon—Foliage a bronzy green; flowers good size, orange red and freely produced well above the foliage.

Uhlberg—A free bloomer, rosy red with yellow border.

Varouna—A wonderfully deep orange, on bronze foliage.

By observing the foregoing lists it will quickly become apparent that Mr. Wintzer's creations alone easily surpass all European introductions, with the one outstanding exception of King Humbert.

But the subjoined list of American creations from other sources, embracing some of the most valuable acquisitions as bedding plants, completely confirms the contention that we in America have developed the canna to a far greater degree of usefulness than our respected foreign competitors.

Other American Cannas.

A few of the really excellent sorts are selected for emphasis:

Carmine Beauty—A deep carmine, producing great branching trusses over vigorous, dark green foliage.

Cheerfulness — A mass of bright orange gold flowers.

Dazzler—An orange scarlet of most vigorous habit and wonderfully dazzling color.

Eureka—A white variety that possesses the vigor and strength of the best of any color. The best commercial white to date.

Fairy Queen—A dainty dwarf pink and gold variety, which is a mass of bloom throughout the season.

Favorite — The yellowest yellow. Though it is marked with small carmine dots, the effect is yellow and more penetrating than any other of this color.

Golden Eagle—A refined, clear yellow of great promise.

Harmony—A dwarf, free, round-

Rosea Gigantea is the Flower's Description in Latin.

Looking West across Part of the Twenty Acres of Canna Fields at Riverton, N. J. trussed carmine red, on clean bronze foliage.

Orange Bedder—Remarkably bright orange, of vigorous habit.

Poppy—Green bronze foliage, surmounted by great trusses of bright red flowers, showing an orange cast.

Remarkable—A tall grower, throwing stalks of deep red flowers six to eight feet high, over excellent bronze foliage.

The Gem—Wonderfully free cream-colored flowers, dotted carmine, are produced in great branching clusters over the bright green foliage.

Yellow King Humbert—A true sport of the popular bronze-leaved variety. Produces great trusses of yellow flowers dotted with orange over bright green foliage. Its only fault is its tendency to revert to the type.

In writing this article I have assumed that the information most desired was regarding the selection of varieties. Practically every reader should be familiar with the care and culture of cannas. I might add that we find many customers who still call for such old varieties as Florence Vaughan, Paul Marquant, Venus and Philadelphia, all of which and dozens more have been superseded, as before indicated, by superior varieties of American origin.

PLANTS FOR CARPET BED.

We wish to plant the word "Spartana" in a carpet bed 6x25 feet. We have been advised that the alternanthera is the best plant for this purpose. Kindly tell us how many plants will actually be required, how many should be prepared as a margin of safety and whether there is any better plant to use than the alternanthera.

M. P. & C. C.—O.

If the eight letters of "Spartana" are made six feet long and are properly spaced, they will require 1,250 plants, provided they are set out three inches apart each way, in order to give a good immediate effect. The intermediate spaces will call for 1,150 additional plants. If you prefer to make letters only four feet long and of proportionate width, it would call for 900 plants for the letters and 1,500 as fillers. If you want to get along with fewer plants and space four inches apart each way, the total number of plants can be reduced to 1,350. I should, however, prefer the closer planting, as it would give a good immediate effect. It would be better to plant on the level or raise the letters only a few inches. If you decide to raise them, allow a few more plants for the purpose.

Alternantheras would be decidedly the most satisfactory plants to use for the bed. Brilliantissima or paronychioides major, red, could be used for the letters, and aurea nana, yellow, for the intermediate spaces or the colors can be reversed if desired. C. W.

FRENCH HYDRANGEAS.

I have received a shipment of 5-inch French hydrangeas in bud and bloom. From some of them the old blooms were cut off. I supposed these were ripened plants ready for blooming next spring. Will these plants bloom again on the same stems or branches next spring? I wanted them for Easter and Mothers' day. I have always thought hydrangeas had to be cut back after blooming and the new growth grown and ripened all summer before blooming again.

A. D. S.—N. D.

It is too early to expect the wood to be ripened on the French hydrangeas. The shoots with buds and blooms will not break and flower next season, but the unflowered shoots, if there are enough of them, should make you salable plants. These hydrangeas have a knack of flowering heavily in late summer and all flowers should be cut out as fast as they show. It would be unfair for any firm to ship you plants at this season containing little but flowering shoots, as they would produce little next spring. Pot your plants, remove all flowers, protect them from frost, give them plenty of sun and run the plants more on the dry side as the weather becomes colder. Keep the plants in a cold greenhouse or light cellar, from which frost is excluded, until time to start for Easter. C. W.

MICHIGAN FLORISTS ORGANIZE.

The Michigan State Florists' Association was organized with twenty-two charter members at a meeting held in the Association of Commerce building, Grand Rapids, December 9. The following officers were elected: President, Herbert Goetz, Saginaw; vice-president, Henry Smith, Grand Rapids; secretary, L. Plum, Detroit, and treasurer, W. C. Wells, Ann Arbor. The next meeting will be held in March at the Michigan Agricultural College, Lansing.

INDIANA INSURANCE

MORE HOOSIER CYCLONE.

Insurance Tangle Clearing.

The latest installment in the tangled story of the affairs of the American Mutual Cyclone & Hail Insurance Co., of Muncie, Ind., is given in the largely self-explanatory letter just received from Dillon Myers, president of the company. The letter comes in response to the article entitled "Who's in the Hoosier?" in The Review November 27 and is as follows:

"When the present management took over the company, we understood that the policies of members outside the state had been canceled and did not know anything different until the article appeared in The Review about them. We then held a meeting of the board of directors, and the secretary and I went to Indianapolis and engaged an attorney to investigate the whole thing. His report covers several typewritten pages. He decided that these contracts with persons outside the state were 'ultra vires' contracts; that is, they were beyond the power of the company to make, because they were outside the state, and the law under which the charter was granted clearly states that the property to be insured must be within the state of Indiana. Therefore, these contracts could not be legally made without violating the charter conditions. But the attorney decided also that, as these contracts were entered into in good faith by both parties, they were legal contracts as long as the insured met any assessments that were levied.

"Now, we were willing to carry these policies until they expired, but the state auditor of Indiana said that we could not and should not levy any assessments on them and even instructed the state's attorney at Muncie to investigate preparatory to instituting proceedings against the company if we tried to collect assessments. So that you see our hands were tied fast.

"Then we were granted permission by the state auditor to send out the letter which was published in The Review November 27. Over half of the outside policy-holders signed the releases and returned them to us.

Contracts Bind Insured.

"Now, the attorney further states that these contracts are just as binding on the insured as on the company and that these assessments could be levied and collected by a receiver if one should be appointed to wind up the affairs of the company. In order to get around this and to straighten things out, we asked the members outside the state to sign the release, as it would be cheaper for them to do so than to be liable for an assessment if it should come to that. Some do not understand that those assessments are only levied to meet the losses that have already occurred, that they are a legal debt and that no member can drop out until he has paid all assessments levied against him. Consequently, that Michigan member who spoke about the $70 assessment only paid what was his share of the losses up to that time and nothing in advance. He would be liable to another assessment, should a receiver have to be appointed to straighten things out. I am certainly sorry that we cannot carry those members, but, as you see, our charter rights will not allow that. In order to get that right, we should have to reorganize, deposit $10,000 with the state and reincorporate. This we cannot do at present and therefore we ask these outside members to help us out of a tangle that we did not get into ourselves, by returning these releases and thereby giving the greenhouse owners of Indiana a chance to continue their insurance.

"In conclusion, I will say that the board of directors is now working out a plan to change the insurance from a dollar rate to a square foot insurance and that when these outside members are disposed of and the new policies are ready to be written the Indiana State Florists' Association will endorse the company and will give it the association's assistance, as the members of the association want the protection that can be given."

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

Edward Amerpohl, of the Janesville Floral Co., Janesville, Wis., reports a busy season. With the building of the factory of the General Motors Co. here and the increase of population which will naturally follow, a big growth in the florists' business is anticipated.

Chas. Rathjen, of Janesville, Wis., expects to market next year 100,000 cuttings of Chadwick chrysanthemum. Mr. Rathjen specializes in Chadwick and has no doubt of his success in disposing of such a number of one variety.

Moore Haven, Fla.—H. W. Luther, who has an establishment at Ensley, Ala., is starting to grow Asparagus plumosus here in addition to his other business.

GROWN IN AMERICA

GOVERNMENT-GROWN BULBS.

Supplied Congressional Needs.

Regarding the experiments in bulb culture, the report of the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture for the year ending June 30, 1919, said:

"During the year one-half of our bulb stocks have been removed to the new bulb farm at Bellingham, Wash. Owing to a shortage of labor, the other half was left undug on rented ground. The total excess production for the year was about 350,000 bulbs, or one minimum carload, which supplied the entire quota of the congressional distribution. These stocks proved to be fully up to the standard. The narcissi were especially commented upon as of superior quality. Of the minor lists of stocks not before handled, the Dutch irises, branching tulips, our native camassias and some of the newer narcissi have done especially well. The propagation of the lily is promising. Many species grow readily in this region by simply drilling the seed in open ground in autumn. Even such a species as Lilium washingtonianum is now promising under practically open-ground conditions, most of the plants not appearing above ground, however, until the second spring.

How Bulbs Increase.

"The preservation of bulbs taken out of beds after flowering has proved to be thoroughly practicable this season. Some 20,000 or more tulips and narcissi from the department grounds will give eighty per cent of flowering bulbs, besides an average increase of 160 per cent of small bulbs, which are just as good planting stock as can be secured anywhere. One year will bring the eighty per cent of flowering stock to first-class condition and half of the small stock to flowering size. This class of conservation is to be encouraged and no doubt will be practical now that bulbous stocks have doubled in price.

"It has been demonstrated that the beautiful Palestine irises can be grown satisfactorily in the Sacramento valley and probably in the other interior valleys of California. Our experiments show that a reproduction of three and one-half fold may be expected the first two years after importation; also, what is known as the Juno group succeeds well here. In general, these groups, although in some respects the most attractive of the great iris family, have not been considered successful in this country up to this time."

Easter Lilies.

The investigations of Easter lilies conducted at Arlington Farm, near Washington, have revealed a number of things of importance:

(1) Our seedling stocks after two years give a reproduction of bulblets which is ample for all purposes of propagation. This means that once a seedling strain has been developed a stock can be worked up rapidly by vegetative methods and these same methods will serve to continue the increase.

(2) Stem bulblets, which form in the axils of the leaves near the surface of the ground, are six to twelve in number under ordinary conditions, and several of them will give one, two or three flowers the first year and grow to good flowering size with one year's cultivation.

(3) An increased bulblet propagation can be secured by plunging the pots, by hilling up around the plants, or by layering the stems.

(4) Seed dried for two or three months germinates in a shorter time than that which is sown immediately upon its maturity.

(5) Home-grown bulbs three to six and one-half inches in circumference average three to five flowers to the stem when forced for Easter.

(6) A few flowers are secured in one year from seed.

(7) Seed sown in July, when carried on in pots, will produce bulbs which can be forced for the second Easter following.

(8) These facts enable growers to produce their own Easter lily bulbs from seed in one year's time, the seedlings being carried in pots. After flowering, the bulbs not disposed of can be carried outdoors south of Philadelphia and will be ready to force again after one year's recuperation.

(9) Stocks thus produced are free from disease.

SUBDUING SNAPDRAGON RUST

THESE suggestions on the combating of snapdragon rust will serve as a supplement or sequel to a report written by Charles C. Rees, of the agricultural experiment station at Urbana, Ill., and printed on page 35 of The Review of December 11, with illustrations showing the ravages of the disease. It is unnecessary here to describe the disease or to give an account of its origin and distribution, as that part of the subject was fully treated by Mr. Rees. The present article consists chiefly of excerpts from a bulletin prepared by George L. Peltier, who is also connected with the Urbana institution.

Some of Mr. Peltier's statements, based on the results of experiments, will be noted with special interest. He reaches the conclusion that the ordinary fungicides are of no avail in the treatment of snapdragon rust, and that two of the best methods of resisting the disease are to avoid syringing and to use stock grown from seed in preference to that grown from cuttings. His testimony in favor of seedlings is strong and explicit, with the one reservation that the plants may not come true from seed, since "few strains are fixed."

Failure of Fungicides.

Mr. Peltier relates how a north bench in each of two houses was planted with stock of several leading varieties of snapdragon, for purposes of experimentation. The principal difference in the treatment in the two houses was that in house No. 1 the plants "were inoculated, or artificially infected with rust spores for two or three days after each spraying," while in house No. 2 "natural infection was depended on, that house having been used the previous season in the rust work." Each of the two benches was divided into ten sections, separated by double cheesecloth curtains, and the sections were subjected to various forms of experiment. Some of the sections were sprayed periodically with Bordeaux mixture; some were sprayed with the Bordeaux and also with ammoniacal copper carbonate. In two sections of each bench, used as "checks," no fungicide was applied, but overhead watering was used in one of these sections, while in the other the soil alone was watered.

The results in house No. 1, says Mr. Peltier, show that all the spraying treatments were ineffective in the control of the rust. The largest amount of infection naturally occurred in those sections in which the plants were watered from overhead. Where only the soil in the sections was watered the percentage of leaf infection was lower than in any of the sprayed sections except one. In other words, this treatment was just as effective in the control of rust as were Bordeaux and ammoniacal copper carbonate when applied every week. In house No. 2 practically the same results were obtained, except that the infection was not so great or so uniform, because natural infection only was used.

Important Inferences.

From the results of these experiments, then, it may be concluded that the fungicides used will neither prevent, check nor control snapdragon rust in the greenhouse; it can be further concluded that by watering the soil only, in the bench, and avoiding all syringing, the disease can be held in check better than by the use of fungicides.

Cuttings are extremely susceptible to rust, both in the cutting bench and after they are potted. Mr. Peltier states that he has seen 3,000 cuttings infected with rust and killed in three weeks' time. He has also seen a large number of young plants lost just after being potted. Great care, therefore, must be exercised, he says, to prevent infection of cuttings. Such infection may be initiated in the cutting bench either by the introduction of spores or by the use of cuttings made from infected plants. A single diseased cutting may mean the loss of nearly all the cuttings later. It is extremely difficult to select cuttings free from the disease in a house or field where the rust has been prevalent. Certain plants may appear to be free from rust, but cuttings from these plants may lead to disappointment, for the pustules, which are the first indication of the disease, do not become evident until some time after infection has taken place. Cuttings from such plants, carrying the disease in the incipient stage, may thus become centers of infection for an entire bench of cuttings.

Two important conditions favorable to the development and dissemination of the rust in a bench of cuttings are shade and syringing. For a week or ten days after the cuttings are placed in the sand the usual procedure is to syringe the cuttings frequently and keep them under shade in bright weather. Such conditions are most favorable for the germination of the rust spores in that the necessary degree of moisture is maintained. The fungus will mature rapidly, new spores will be produced, and soon the entire lot of cuttings will show infection.

Syringing is practiced also for the control of small insects, such as the red spider. When syringing is practiced in an infected house, the development and spread of the rust are rapid.

Syringing, then, not only favors the development of the rust, but it actually carries and spreads the spores to other plants. Where no syringing is done, the rust spores are less likely to germinate, and consequently less infection results.

Habit of Plant.

The form of the plant is an important factor in the destructiveness of the rust. The ideal plant should fork low and not have more than five or six stems. Such a plant is less liable to destruction by the rust than a bushy plant with dense foliage. This, of course, is true where syringing is practiced. The reason is obvious; the plant with few stems growing out from the center will dry off quickly after syringing, while several days may be necessary for the center of a bushy plant to dry out. As the rust spores require from twenty-four to forty-eight hours for germination, the evaporation of the water during the day will kill the germinating spores and so prevent infection. Where the water does not evaporate for several days, rust will invariably develop. The habit of the plant, then, is of some importance in checking the spread of rust in the greenhouse.

An attempt to control the rust by pinching off and destroying the infected leaves was practically a total failure, although partial success was obtained during the winter months, when the development and spread of rust was slow.

Experiments were also conducted in an effort to determine whether rust can be carried on the seed. Seed represent-

POINTS IN PREVENTION.

The use of Bordeaux or ammoniacal copper carbonate can neither prevent, check nor control snapdragon rust in the field or in the greenhouse.

The use of snapdragon cuttings or seedlings where rust is present may mean a complete failure of the crop.

Syringing is an important factor in the prevalence of the rust in the greenhouse. It is a means of dissemination of the spores, and it produces conditions favorable for the germination of the spores and the rapid infection of the plants.

Watering the plants from below only, so as to avoid wetting the foliage, is a means of checking the rust.

Snapdragon rust is not carried on the seeds. The disease can therefore be avoided, or eliminated in time, by the propagation of plants from seed.

ing thirty-six commercial varieties was obtained from various sources. From this seed about 1,800 plants were grown to maturity without a single pustule of rust developing. Again, seed gathered from badly infected plants in the field and in the greenhouse, sown and grown in the usual manner, developed no rust whatsoever, even though seed was taken from pods on which rust pustules were present.

It can be safely stated that rust is not carried on seed nor propagated by seed. Although seeds of the snapdragon do not carry the rust from season to season, and seedlings are not easily susceptible to infection, propagation by seeds has a disadvantage in the fact that few strains are fixed, and selection must be practiced in order to have desirable strains. However, the use of seedlings makes it possible to eliminate the rust. If in a rust-infected house or field all infected plants are burned, and after a lapse of a year or two a new beginning with seedlings is made, clean, healthy plants will result. From such plants good strains can then be developed by means of careful selection.

Outdoor Snapdragons.

Experiments with snapdragons in the field led to the same conclusion, with reference to the ineffectiveness of fungicides, as in the indoor tests. In the majority of cases rust is propagated from season to season in the greenhouse and is carried from there to the field. During rainy, cloudy seasons in the field, rust will completely kill the plants just before blooming time and by fall the whole planting will be dead. It is important, then, to use only clean plants in the field; this means that the grower must eliminate entirely the rust from the greenhouse before he can be sure that he is using clean stock in the field.

A few florists grow snapdragons throughout the year, but the majority prefer to plant in August for an early winter crop or else reserve them to follow the early or midseason chrysanthemums. Plants are used from both seeds and cuttings. If plants are rusted when benched, they rarely reach maturity or produce salable spikes. When clean plants are benched, little or no rust develops until in the early spring, when it spreads rapidly. Temperature is of importance in the development of rust; it has been observed that the spread of rust is checked in the house by a uniformly low temperature. High temperatures are favorable to the rapid spread of the fungus.

DUMSER'S DATA.

J. M. Johnston, McKeesport, Pa., reports that this year's business is greater and better in dollars and cents than that of former years, but that not so many people are buying flowers. The ones that do buy take better quality.

Joseph Thomas, Greensburg, Pa., had a fine lot of good pot plants for Christmas trade and found that the better quality sold best.

George S. Ferguson, Greensburg, Pa., after serving in the army for fifteen months, is back again and is enlarging his greenhouse, having a fine trade in potted plants. He looks forward to a good spring trade.

Stenson & McGrail, Uniontown, Pa., had a fine lot of pot plants and found that the people preferred them to cut flowers, as the cut flowers were not satisfactory for Christmas gifts.

Mr. Thompson, manager at the greenhouses of W. R. Barton, Uniontown, Pa., says that the pot plants helped out well for Christmas, as the weather had been too cloudy to bring the roses and carnations into bloom.

Jas. E. Schell, Connellsville, Pa., has a fine lot of Boston ferns in 5-inch and 6-inch pots and finds a ready sale for them. He is still cutting mums and finds that the really late ones pay well, since the cloudy weather is holding back the carnations.

Warrick Bros., Washington, Pa., were well prepared for the Christmas trade with a good line of pot plants and a fair cut of carnations.

Mr. Griffith, of Crall's Greenhouse, Monongahela, Pa., says that since the government has reduced the express service he finds shipping cut flowers exceedingly difficult and that if there is no improvement soon they will change their line to pot plants and ferns, of which they have a fine lot now.

Joseph Haube, Charleroi, Pa., finds that the coal and steel strikes have caused the people to buy more cautiously.

Western Pennsylvania growers complain of having more than their share of cloudy weather this season and therefore many firms have had to buy their cut flowers this season instead of being able to ship their own stock. Those having late mums were enthusiastic, because of the strong demand they met.

VERBENA BEAUTY OF OXFORD.

Please tell me the name of the verbena which I am sending you. It has a strong growth and the flower gets much larger than this, with a cluster about four inches across. It turns lighter as it grows older. It is seedless.

D. F. C.—Ill.

There are now so many fine strains of verbenas which can be grown from seed to suit the purpose of bedding out that I am somewhat out of touch with the named varieties. I used to have several similar in color to the flower sent, so that it is almost impossible to give its proper name, but it closely resembles a variety known as Beauty of Oxford.

CARNATIONS

CARNATION PLANTS ARE DYING.

Under separate cover we are mailing you a sample of soil and one dead carnation, over which we shall thank you to hold an autopsy. We thought the trouble was stem-rot, but you will note that the stem is sound, while the roots are rotten. The plants were fine and were benched last month. There has been a great deal of rain and cloudy weather. The soil consists of bottom land, leaf-mold and manure and was used last season, but was dumped out and exposed to the weather all summer. The soil was limed a few days ago. Some of the buds are eaten out, but we have been unable to find any worms. We shall greatly appreciate your opinion and advice. Y. F. C.—Tex.

Your statement that the soil was used last year probably answers your query as to the cause of your troubles. When soil is used a second season, carnations do not take hold of it as readily as if it were new soil and there is more danger of root-rotting unless extreme care is exercised during the period of reëstablishment. Adding manure, lime, etc., has never been known to make new soil out of old and a few months' exposure to the weather is not sufficient. It is too late, now, to make a new start and you will just have to make the best of a bad beginning. Water carefully, but not stintingly. Give all the ventilation that weather conditions will permit and keep the temperature as near 50 degrees as possible. The buds are probably eaten by one of the common cutworms. These are sometimes difficult to detect, as they feed mostly at night. A poison mash made of bran, molasses and Paris green will get them. A. F. J. B.

ROOT-GALL ON CARNATIONS.

I am sending you under separate cover a carnation plant which has some kind of knots on it. I would be pleased if you will give me any information as to what is the matter with the plant.

In digging my carnations out of the field last year I found about 500 out of over 10,000 plants were thus infected. These were burned. I would like to know how to get rid of the trouble. The first time I saw it was two years ago, on some Begonia Erfordii; I destroyed them on seeing it. My soil is good black sandy material. Will the plants be affected if planted in the same field as last year? I have rye on the ground now. My plants are not much affected now and I do not want them to be.

W. E. P.—Okla.

The root galls on your carnations are probably similar to, if not identical with those which at one time caused great loss to rose growers. We have come across a limited number of cases of this trouble in the last few years, mostly in the southern states. I know of no remedy for it. Several theories were advanced by rose experts at the time it was causing them trouble, but it was not eliminated until about the time grafting on Manetti was adopted by the growers of forcing roses. Whether they have any connection, I am not sure. The United States Department of Agriculture has been using cyanide for destroying insect life in the soil with good results and if these root galls are caused by eelworms, as in the case of roses, cyanide may be the means of ridding your soil of them. Inquire of your state entomologist, who will be able to get the necessary data from Washington and who will inform you how to apply cyanide properly. Cyanide is dissolved in water in certain proportions and the soil is thoroughly saturated with it. It is supposed to destroy all insect or animal life in the soil without being injurious to the plants, if used at the proper strength. Usually plants that are attacked will become stunted and worthless. I do not know whether cuttings taken from these plants would be troubled the following year; probably not. Neither do I know whether the cyanide would destroy the galls on the roots, allowing the plants to resume a normal growth. Your entomologist will probably become interested enough to work out these various phases. Unless you treat your soil in the field or change to a field that is not infected, you will have a recurrence of this trouble each season. A. F. J. B.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

Work of the Committees.

The examining committees of the C. S. A. have submitted reports on new varieties as follows:

At Philadelphia, December 12, December Beauty, light pink, Japanese incurved, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows on the commercial scale: Color, 18; form, 14; fullness, 9; stem, 13; foliage, 13; substance, 14; size, 9; total, 90. This variety scored as follows on the exhibition scale: Color, 14; stem, 4; foliage, 4; fullness, 14; form, 14; depth, 13; size, 25; total, 88.

At New York, December 13, December Beauty, light pink, Japanese incurved, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows on the commercial scale: Color, 17; form, 13; fullness, 10; stem, 14; foliage, 12; substance, 14; size, 8; total, 88.

POINTERS ON PANSIES

PANSIES KEPT TOO WET.

October 23 we set 500 pansy plants in black muck soil, mixed with about one-third sand and treated with lime and acid phosphate. The plants when set were large, healthy and in bud and bloom. We have kept the ground on the wet rather than on the dry side. They are in a greenhouse, well ventilated and kept at an average of 55 degrees. They have stopped blooming. The larger leaves turn yellow and die. New ones grow, but also turn yellow and the plants do not gain any. They are free from aphis. What is the trouble, and how can we remedy it?

W. R. P. F.—Mich.

It seems to me that your pansy plants have had too much water. Of course, the soil might have too much lime or phosphate. I have not had any experience growing pansies in muck soil, so I cannot say anything about that. I saw some pansies last fall in a greenhouse; a man was going to show me how to grow pansies. As they were from some of my seed, I was interested in them and went to see them. They were fine plants, coming into flower, but I told him they were too wet. He said, "Pansies want plenty of water." Some time after he said they were all turning yellow. They were the sorriest looking lot of pansies I ever saw, not a green leaf on them. I advised him to pull them up; he did not do so, but stopped watering them and most of them recovered by spring and had a few flowers. Yet I considered them a dead loss. So I think if your plants are bad, you had better chuck them out and plant something else. The next time you plant pansies, keep them drier.

There is a wrong impression about pansies. Some people seem to think they can stand and want any amount of water, but that is erroneous, as I have seen them get sick from too much rain when growing in the field, in light soil at that. Although they do best in a cool, moist situation, the watering can be overdone, particularly in the greenhouse. Chas. Frost.

PANSIES FOR SPRING SALES.

Please tell me if pansy seed can be sown now in flats in the greenhouse, the seedlings to be transferred to flats or pots. At what stage should they be planted in the coldframes, to be ready for the spring sales? How much should the sashes be covered in hardening off?

J. K. H.—Pa.

Pansy seed can be started in the greenhouse and the plants put in flats or benches and planted in the coldframes as early as possible in the spring; it can be done in March if the frames have been covered up through the winter. It would hardly pay to pot them. Pansy plants are grown this way in some places where people will pay a good price for small plants, but they are not generally profitable when grown in pots. The sashes ought to be enough covering for them and should be taken off early or else the plants will be drawn. The best selling plants are from seed sown July 10 to 20. Large plants with five, six or more blooms are what people want. Those planted in frames bring about 5 cents each and those from the open ground as low as 1½ cents each in the latter part of the season. Almost every trucker or flower grower around Kenilworth, in northeastern New Jersey, grows from half an acre to several acres of them. Charles Frost.

TATE'S TIPS

MAKING NEW FLOWER BUYERS

In the Wage-Earning Class.

Since the beginning of the late war a new prospect has presented itself for the serious consideration of the florist. The prospect I refer to is the increased number among the wage-earning class who have become regular purchasers of flowers. These could be greatly increased by education and soliciting. If such a prospect were to present itself in any of the large mercantile lines, the sales agent would follow it up until the business was well in hand, but in that instance, however, it would be simply a case of individuals having use for a certain line of goods and the salesmen could work on them all the time. With regard to flowers it is an entirely different proposition; the need for flowers by those referred to comes only at stated times and in the majority of cases at times of bereavement. To solicit business at such a time requires much delicacy, discretion and tact, yet in every large city of the country much of this is done. This is looked upon by many as not ethical.

After giving this subject much study and thought, I am thoroughly convinced that the manner of approach of the solicitor is the reason that this form of soliciting business is looked upon as unprofessional by those engaged in the florists' business.

Is There a Legitimate Way?

Is there not some diplomatic way in which to approach a bereaved family, so as not to add sorrow to the family at such a time? In fifty per cent of such cases the business is there, and often, at such times, flowers are not thought of until some one reminds the family of them. In many cases it is the first time they have had occasion to use flowers, and, consequently, they have no particular place to purchase them, even though they think of them. Here is the opportunity to develop business and to make, by courteous treatment, a new customer.

I have known florists who looked down upon this mode of doing business, but who would not hesitate to pay an undertaker a good commission to do it for him. Surely a florist could offer better suggestions than an undertaker. I have known florists who would have their solicitors at the newspaper offices when the first copy of the paper came off the press, to go over the death list and be at the house of bereavement before daylight. This practice gained for them the sobriquet of "crape puller," yet in this crude way they have built up a large and lasting business. One of the things which did much to harm this mode of soliciting was the fact that it opened the door for unreliable florists; that is, persons who were after the money and nothing more.

We will assume there is much business to be had in this field; let us look into the matter and see if there is not some legitimate way to go after it.

Discretion and Dignity.

To do this the morning papers must be your help. You will have to get out early to obtain a copy of the first issue. You must have a good form letter prepared. In writing this letter, let it be strictly a business one and remember the one who will receive it is in deep sorrow. Have good stationery, giving your business address and telephone number; say you specialize in funeral offerings, and that a call on the telephone will bring your agent to their home with a line of samples to select from. Don't make your letter too long, but have it to the point and remember it is to give you the opportunity you desire. This is all going to take work, but no business ever succeeded without work.

When you have addressed your letter from the early issue of the paper, mail the letter at the postoffice, as it should go out in the first delivery. In most cases it will be received while the family is at breakfast. This will bring the subject of flowers to their attention. If you get a response, send a good, discreet salesperson, with an album of designs, to call. Above all, after an order is procured, let it be everything that was promised.

Now that you have an opening, I would suggest that a folder of some sort be mailed at regular intervals. Flowers will be wanted for the cemetery and often flowers will be required on happier occasions. Indeed, I know of no better way to reach this new class of possible flower-buyers than this. A death in a family is the only means of your getting this business, but once you have secured the business, it will be your own fault if you do not hold the patronage of this family. Tate.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Tacoma, Wash.—The assets of the Hayden-Watson Floral Co. will be sold at auction December 30 at 10 a. m. at 911 Pacific avenue by the receiver for the company, in pursuance of the court's order of sale of December 12. Creditors are notified to file their claims, properly verified and with itemized statement attached, by January 15 with the receiver, E. K. Murray, 306 Fidelity building, Tacoma, Wash.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Judging from present appearances, we shall have a record-breaking holiday trade," observed A. J. Binley, of Glens Falls, N. Y., "taxing our equipment and, we hope, filling the exchequer."

• • • •

Crandall's Flower Shop, of Glens Falls, N. Y., made a specialty of made-up baskets for the holidays. It is an excellent way of working up plants that will not catch the eye as single specimens.

• • • •

W. W. Hannell, of Watervliet, N. Y., had a good stock of cyclamens, which sold freely at $5 apiece, in striking contrast to a few years ago, when 50 cents was the limit; one of the strongest evidences of advancement both in culture and appreciation of values. Begonia Glory of Cincinnati, poinsettias and heather were also in large supply.

• • • •

Sambrook Bros., of Troy, N. Y., featured combination baskets. A few samples made up around Thanksgiving started the ball rolling, so to speak, for sales have been steady since that time.

• • • •

Jas. G. Barrett, of Troy, N. Y., has been, as usual, busy with funeral work, and anticipated a banner holiday trade, having a fine general stock to meet the demand.

Henry Bensel, of Ballston Spa, N. Y., prepared a fine stock of plants for his holiday trade and anticipated a record-breaking demand.

• • • •

Henry Schrade, of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., was strong on cyclamens, poinsettias and begonias and expected to sell all at higher prices than heretofore. Carnations were also in prime shape.

• • • •

Julius W. Eger, of Schenectady, N. Y., was strong on holiday stock, attractively displayed. Plants, both berried and blooming, seemed to be in larger demand than usual. The old favorite, Jerusalem cherry, sold well.

• • • •

Hatcher's Floral Shop, Schenectady, N. Y., showed holiday plants in good variety, grown at Hoffmans.

• • • •

The Mohawk Greenhouse Co., of Schenectady, N. Y., had the usual stock of well grown plants suitable for the holiday trade, which Manager Matthews believed would exceed all records.

• • • •

The Rosendale Flower Shop, of Schenectady, N. Y., is a striking example of the magnetism of publicity, having been one of the first to appear in the columns of the Pink Part of The Review, to become a member of the F. T. D. and to adopt the slogan, "Say It with Flowers." "To this strong trinity we concede the credit for the major part of our business, which is steadily increasing," observed Henry Eberhardt.

• • • •

Louis Menand, of Troy, N. Y., was sanguine regarding Christmas trade, having a larger number of advance orders on his books than at any preceding season.

• • • •

Manager Tracey, of the Albany Cut Flower Exchange, Albany, N. Y., mentioned that choice stock would be scarce around the holidays, although their contracts were well taken care of.

• • • •

Fred A. Danker, of Albany, N. Y., has had a fine trade in combination baskets, most of the stock having been grown under personal supervision.

• • • •

Wm. C. Gloeckner, of Albany, N. Y., has an eye on a big corner store that will be the finest in the city. He said the deal would be closed if the holiday trade was of the magnitude that he anticipated.

• • • •

Sam Hanson, of North Troy, N. Y., hit the market right with a fine crop of carnations, which helps relieve the strain upon the local growers.

• • • •

John A. Murnane, of Albany, N. Y., finds an increase in the call for cemetery decorations at this season, evidence of increasing desire for perpetual adornment of the last resting place.

• • • •

A. D. Carpenter, of Cohoes, N. Y., is optimistic, as usual, with an abundance of well grown stock to supply his high-class trade.

• • • •

Fred Goldring, of Slingerlands, N. Y., had all the fine crop of roses and carnations sold up for the holidays and looked for a general clean-up in plants of all kinds. W. M.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Shortage of stock was expected for the Christmas trade, which is not at all surprising when one considers the fact that there has been practically no sunlight for eight weeks.

Prices last week were higher naturally, almost as high as those quoted for this week. Carnations sold at wholesale for $12, while roses varied from $12 to $14 per hundred. American Beauties ranged from $9 to $12 per dozen and were quoted at $18 straight for the holiday trade.

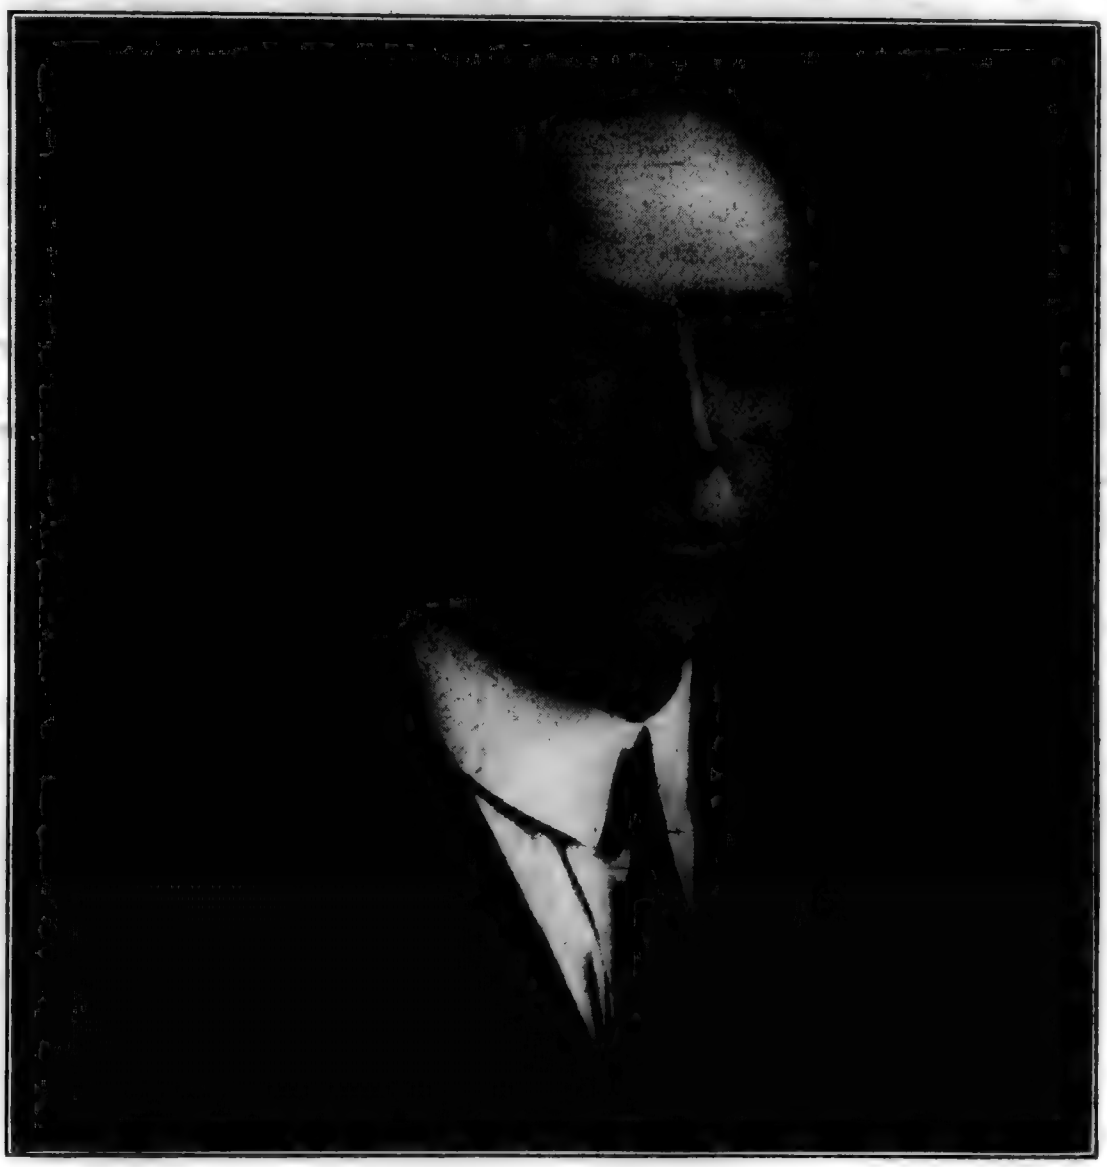
Boxwood is practically cleaned up, the southern shippers having failed to get in their late shipments. Those who failed to get part of the early shipments skirmished to get the crumbs of the trade.

Various Notes.

William A. Clarke recently said that a local woman of cosmopolitan social experience told him that the floral decorations for the numerous debutante entertainments in Pittsburgh were the most artistic she had seen anywhere in this country or Europe. While, perhaps, one or two other cities now and then did something on a larger scale, the latter somehow lacked the results gained by the master hand at the recent Pittsburgh entertainments.

William A. Clarke, Jr., returned December 20 to spend the holidays with his parents. This is his first year at the Pennsylvania State College, where he is a student in the agricultural department, specializing in floriculture.

William E. Colligan is in charge of a temporary holiday store at 708 Smithfield street for Abraham Krongold. After nine years with the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Mr. Colligan went to Chicago and entered the sales department of Poehlmann Bros. Co. in the autumn of 1915. In September, 1917, he entered service as a private and received his discharge June 9, 1919, having attained the rank of lieutenant in the 320th Infantry.



Max Goldhammer, of Samuel Gidas' The Rosery, at 3703 Fifth avenue, reported business good in the Oakland district. Mr. Goldhammer said that while the majority of customers generally began by decrying the high prices of cut blooms, they usually ended by purchasing them.

William A. Hansen, of the E. C. Amling Co., Chicago, was a visitor last week.

HERMAN P. KNOBLE.

EXACTLY thirty-three years ago, on Christmas day, Herman P. Knoble, with his mother, two brothers and one sister, arrived at Castle Garden, New York, from Ehrenstatten, Germany, where he was born October 9, 1880. The first thirteen years in this country the family spent mainly at Huron, O., where Herman worked at odd jobs, notably for a Dr. Woessner, and the medicinal properties of plants and Dr. Woessner's botany book were the first links in the chain that led to flowers. Later he gained a business training from six years' work in the McIntosh-Huntington Co., a Cleveland wholesale hardware firm; at the end of this period he was in charge of the mail order department. Just then, in March, 1906, a welcome offer came from Mr. Greiff, president of the Ohio Floral Co., Cleveland, to operate its retail store as the Ohio Cut Flower Co. He accepted and six weeks later took into the business his brother, Otto. In 1913 Herman Knoble bought out his brother's interest and conducted the business alone until July 1, 1919, when he took in his half-brother, Frank J. Ritzenthaler, operating under the firm name of Knoble Bros. Co. Last August he was elected a director of the S. A. F., having become nationally known in the trade from his energetic and progressive work in Cleveland.

GRAPES UNDER GLASS

GRAPE GROWING UNDER GLASS.

As Done in Southern England.

It is hoped that this article may contain suggestions that will be helpful to commercial grape growers in general, though the writer does not undertake to give instructions that would be universally applicable, but merely describes the cultural methods that are followed with great success in one locality—in the neighborhood of Worthing, a seaside resort in Sussex county, in southeastern England. That locality is admirably adapted to the culture of this delicious fruit. The climatic conditions and the soil are ideal for the purpose.

The varieties principally grown at Worthing are Black Hamburgh, Black Alicante and Muscat of Alexandria. The latter two are used for autumn and winter crops. Black Alicante is grown in preference to Muscat of Alexandria, as the Muscat, after a few years of cultivation, is susceptible to a diseased condition which causes what is termed "shanking," or shriveling of the berries.

Preparing the Vines.

Some of the vines are started into active growth the first week in November, and other sections of the houses are started in succession. Previous to starting the crops, each vine is subjected to a thorough process of cleaning. The vines usually are cut back to one eye, though some growers prefer two. Each vine is hand-cleaned, especially at the joints, where the red spider is likely to find a hiding place. A preparation consisting of sulphur, soft soap and clay, thoroughly mixed with water, is painted on the vines, well rubbed into the joints and allowed to dry, so as to leave a coating of the ingredients to smother the red spider.

Prior to the opening of the season, all the walls of the greenhouses are carefully coated with a lime wash, to insure cleanliness. The vine borders receive a good mulch of decayed manure, spaded or forked in lightly, so as to avoid injuring the fibrous roots.

Timing the Successive Crops.

The first part of November, as already mentioned, is the time usually chosen for starting the early crop, which will be ready for cutting by the latter part of March. Black Hamburgh is the most popular variety for this crop, as it is the best forcer and is a great favorite in the markets, having a most delicious flavor. In December and January other houses are started, with Black Hamburgh still as the main dependence. For the crops started in February and later, Black Alicante and Muscat of Alexandria are used. Black Alicante is a prime favorite on account of its remarkable keeping qualities, which are largely due to the thickness of its skin.

It is possible, also, to keep the vines of this variety in a dormant condition after the close of winter, thus prolonging the grape season. To maintain this dormant state, the greenhouses are heavily shaded, the interior is kept dry and the ground and borders are covered with dry straw. By the use of such means, Black Alicante vines have been kept dormant until well into spring, with the result that grapes are obtainable in the markets almost the year around.

In Connection with Catch Crops.

Each vine is carefully studied and regulated with respect to the quantity of fruit it should be allowed to bear. Some growers prefer two bunches, and some prefer one, on each of the laterals or side shoots. The younger vines, if unrestrained, produce an enormous crop. Thinning the grapes is another important operation, which usually takes place before the berries become tight or a few weeks after stoning; that is, when the pip of the grape is formed. Everything pertaining to catch crops is removed, so as to permit the thinners to have free access to the vines.

In connection with the grapes, catch crops are grown to a considerable extent in the Worthing district, before the foliage of the vines becomes too dense to permit such use of the space. One of the early catch crops consists of bulbous stock, such as daffodils, narcissi, etc. Callas in pots, adiantums, Asparagus Sprengeri, and batches of cypripediums which have been growing outside in pits, are brought in and placed under the vines when the grape crops are over. Early chrysanthemums also are used extensively for this purpose.

Extent of the Business.

It is apparent, therefore, that every available foot of space is used. One grower makes a big hit with pot-grown beans, another with pot-grown strawberries.

All this vast and varied quantity of produce finds its way to the great markets, principally to London, Manchester, Liverpool and Glasgow. In July the output approaches the nature of a glut. Two trains, called the fruit trains, are made up every other day. Tons of grapes, shipped mostly in 12-pound baskets, thus find their way all over the British Isles.

About 150 business men operate this particular branch of greenhouse culture, and the Worthing Gazette states that their greenhouses, if put end to end, would reach about fifty miles in length.

The writer, who was a grower in the Worthing district for a considerable time, was credibly informed that, when grape growing under glass was in its infancy, as much as $5 per pound was received for the fruit in the London market. William Day.

Abe Martin Says:

O' course it costs money t' "Say It with Flowers," but it's well worth th' difference if you don't use good English.

MILDEW ON DAHLIAS.

Many of my dahlia plants are badly affected with mold or mildew. Two years ago my plants were touched with this, but they were grown sixty-five miles from my present location. I used the roots of the affected plants, but last year did not see any of this trouble. It has appeared more on some of the plants I bought in the spring than on the plants from the old roots. The foliage of the plants is covered with something like a white mold. The upper branches and leaves seem free from it. More than half my plants are affected. The soil is just good garden soil and the cultivation the same as I have used successfully for many years. This summer has been unusually hot and dry and after the buds appeared I watered the plants freely with the hose. Can you tell me what is the matter and what remedy to use so that I shall not have to discard and destroy my roots?

J. B. A.—N. C.

Dahlias are attacked by both white mold, which attacks the stems and later causes plants to wilt and eventually die, and mildew, which seems to be what your plants have suffered from. Causes of mildew are cold nights following hot days and watering with the hose or sprinklers on the evenings of hot days. Of course there are other causes, but the two named are responsible in great measure for outdoor attacks of mildew. In your particular case I would blame the hose, especially if the water was sprayed over the foliage. Dusting with sulphur and using a spray of Sulphocide or Fungine, used as soon as the mildew appears, are the best possible remedies. Do not be discouraged at your failure this season. Try again. Do not use any fresh manure in your soil, as plants growing in this will fall an easier prey to mildew than any others. Persistent cultivation of the soil, or mulching, is preferable to watering even in extremely dry weather. C. W.

MILDEW ON SWEET PEAS.

Please state what is the best remedy for mildew on sweet peas and tell us, also, what cultural methods should be used in order to prevent future recurrence of the trouble. S. F. C.—O.

Sweet peas are especially liable to be attacked by mildew in late fall, if they are subjected to cold drafts, or if the temperature and general atmospheric conditions are not closely watched. Direct drafts or a sudden drop in temperature, with a damp atmosphere and no artificial heat, will spread the trouble fast. A suitable temperature is 45 degrees at night until the flower buds show. After that the heat may be increased to 50 degrees, with a rise of 8 or 10 degrees on cloudy days and 10 to 15 degrees on clear days. Besides regulating the temperature and ventilation carefully, it may be necessary to apply sulphur to the heating pipes as a means of checking the disease, but an excessively strong dose of sulphur will injure the flowers.

TO PREVENT BUD-DROPPING.

I have a house of sweet peas that are dropping all their buds. Is there anything that I can do to stop this? Last fall I had no compost and so used good top soil, mixing in a liberal amount of sheep manure and bone meal. When they began to grow, I gave them an occasional dose of sheep liquid. They have grown well and are six or eight feet tall, perfectly clean and with long flower stems, but the buds turn light yellow and drop off. A. H.—Conn.

Your sweet peas are dropping their buds for either one of two reasons, possibly both. You may have given them an excess of nitrogenous manure, which produces a heavy, soft growth that does not hold buds in the winter. Or the dropping may have been due to a protracted period of cloudy weather. Three to five days of such weather, unless the growth is well hardened, will drop a crop of buds. Experiments have shown that by running the plants quite dry at the roots, beginning early in the fall, it is possible to harden the growth to the point where it produces short-stemmed flowers continuously until the end of February. Long-stemmed flowers and vigorous growth are to be had only at the expense of some bud-dropping, even in normal winters. When the sun fails to show itself for three or four days, some growers begin to drop the temperature until it gets to 45 degrees at night. Keeping the air cool overcomes to some extent the weakening effect of the dark weather, allowing the plants to conserve their energy. During favorable weather the day temperature is kept at 60 degrees on cloudy days and 65 to 70 degrees in sunshine. The further you get into winter, the less water should be applied.

TREATMENT OF SWEET PEAS.

My sweet peas are dying at the roots. They shrivel up and turn brown where the stalk comes through the ground. Do you think that some worm might be at the roots? W. C. H.—Pa.

This trouble with your sweet peas may be due to some worm, but more probably to an unsuitable condition of the soil. If the soil is at all sour, I would suggest scattering some air-slaked lime along the rows; scratch it over the surface and water it in. This will also act as a deterrent to soil pests. Do not keep your plants too warm; 45 degrees at night is about right until the flowers are ready to open; then advance to 50 degrees. Ventilate freely, but avoid cold drafts. On dark days let the temperature run up to 56 or 58 degrees before ventilating. To fill the blanks, sow more seeds in sand or small pots and transplant them. C. W.

SWEET PEAS TOO DRY.

We are sending under separate cover some sweet pea plants, together with the soil in which they were planted. They have been dying off; some die when small and some after they have grown four or five feet high and have bloomed. Please tell us what is the matter with these plants. S. F. C.—O.

The plants as received show no trace of disease. The growth appears to have been checked through lack of moisture at the root. If a large proportion of the plants are in this condition, they should be thrown out, for no amount of treatment will bring them into profitable growth. Early sowings must be carefully watched to prevent their getting into this condition. The large plants should grow along vigorously at this date; if grown on a solid bed, be sure the soil is moist to a depth of eighteen or twenty inches. If they continue to die off during the winter, the soil should not be used next season for early sowing. G. J. B.

SHASTA DAISIES.

When should field clumps of Shasta daisies be planted in a carnation temperature to have them in bloom for Easter, also for Memorial day. E. A. R.—Ill.

I have not found Shasta daisies a success for Easter, but if you try them, the clumps, left outdoors until they have had several good freezings, should be lifted and stored in a coldframe or pit. Place the clumps in your carnation temperature about January 10 and water carefully to prevent damping off. They will do better in a raised bench if you have it. For Memorial day start the plants about March 15. You are fairly certain to get a nice crop from Shastas started at this date, but I do not consider that Shasta daisies are at all comparable with yellow and white marguerites, planted in benches or beds, for a Memorial day crop. You can secure, should you wish, cuttings of the latter, planting them out in January or February if you have any vacant bench space. C. W.

F. O. B. CLAUSE IMPORTANT.

The law is well settled that, as between the seller and buyer of goods to be shipped by rail, the risk of freezing or other deterioration in transit is to be borne by one or the other according to any express or implied agreement as to where delivery was to be made. A sale f. o. b. place of shipment imposes the risk on the buyer unless there is special agreement to the contrary. A sale without mutual understanding as to where delivery is to be made is presumed to have been made under intention that shipment to the buyer as consignee should pass title, the carrier being regarded as his agent and not the shipping seller's. A sale f. o. b. destination places the risk on the seller, nothing appearing to the contrary in the agreement.

But, elementary as these legal principles are, the courts are still daily called upon to adjudicate cases involving them. For example, just the other day the Appellate Division of the New York Supreme court passed upon a case where perishable goods were sold f. o. b. Chicago for shipment to New York. The buyer received and retained the bill of lading, but when the goods arrived and were found to have been frozen in transit, he returned the bill of lading to the seller and refused to receive or pay for the goods. The court holds that title had passed to the buyer and "such deterioration in transit follows the title in the consignee."

But the rule, that a delivery to a railway company at the place of shipment passes title to the buyer where the agreement does not manifest intention of the parties that the seller is to deliver at the destination, carries with it, by implication, an understanding that the seller is to properly bill and pack the goods. He will be liable, ordinarily, for losses due to improper or insufficient packing, etc. S.

MERRY CHRISTMAS.

THE time is not in sight when the production of plants will catch up with the demand.

GIVE the other fellow credit for motives as good as your own; sometimes they might even be better.

MANY a bench now will be filled with gladiolus bulbs instead of being permitted to stand idle this winter.

PRODUCE plenty of spring bedding stock —yes. But produce it of good quality. Prices will repay the extra care.

WHAT the trade needs is quality—there are too many growers who seek maximum production without regard to the quality of their stock.

THERE seems to be no surplus of anything this season, except work; there is plenty of that to go around among all who are capable of doing it.

A WELL-KNOWN publicity man calls the growers "a tongue-tied trade." Yea, verily, but they are getting over it, and how the florists' business will boom!

So strong has been the response to Secretary Young's appeal for life members in the S. A. F. while the low rate lasted that the stock of engraved certificates has been exhausted. The new ones ordered will not be delivered until after the holidays.

IT is an extremely bad habit, when oversold on a batch of plants, to hold orders until the next lot is ready. And the worst part of it is that this usually is done with the orders that were accompanied by remittances. To cash a man's check and not ship his order for anywhere from two to twelve weeks is not in accordance with the golden rule.

THE editor's desk is decorated with chrysanthemums this Christmas. The variety is Hamburg Late Pink, a sport of Maud Dean, which appeared a number of years ago at the establishment of C. T. Guenther, Hamburg, N. Y. It is liked so well in the vicinity of Buffalo that it has been decided to disseminate it next spring, through the Wm. F. Kasting Co. The flowers sent to The Review were excellent and evidently might have been left on the plant still later if desired.

WHEN you help the other fellow's business you help your own.

EMPTY benches are the most costly things in any greenhouse establishment.

THE dealer who complains about the business methods of another might check up his own methods first.

WITHOUT question, growers would receive more for their flowers if those in charge of the selling could get out of their heads the old idea of offering reductions in prices the moment stock begins to accumulate.

AN advertisement which asks, "Write us on your letterhead," follows the assumption that business stationery gives an indication of the firm's character. Even when printing costs are mounting, money paid for properly printed letterheads, billheads, etc., is well spent by the man who is building a permanent business.

THE TRADE'S CHRISTMAS.

The days before Christmas gave ample evidence how extensive would be the sales for this holiday. No one had doubt that every flower and plant would be sold when florists sat down to their Christmas dinners. And though prices this autumn were high, the usual holiday increase occurred, carrying figures up to marks that few thought possible. Just how high they would go could only be seen at the eleventh hour, but buyers were bidding strong in their desire to get wanted stock when the week opened and their determination gave evidence of still stronger offers later.

So closes an autumn which has been the most successful and most profitable in the trade's history. Without an influenza epidemic to create demands on stock, prices have held high and sales have continued strong since cool weather began. How much of such sales is due to the general prosperity, how much to greater trade publicity and how much to other causes, is difficult, if possible at all, to determine. Until trade analysts say which cause is most important and which is less, florists will be satisfied with the knowledge that the results are what they have been and, winding up with a record holiday sale, celebrate their most prosperous Christmas.

CONSIDER THE OTHER FELLOW.

In a trade that deals in perishable commodities consideration of the man at the other end of a sale is more desirable and, indeed, necessary than in other lines of business. When differences of opinion develop in transactions concerning goods which are not affected by delays and weather conditions, the leisurely progression of the courts of law will settle the matter and one or the other of the parties concerned will take ultimate possession of the merchandise without its having suffered materially in the meantime. It is quite otherwise in the florists' trade. When a person receives a shipment of plants or bulbs or other stock which is not up to the standard, according to the buyer's mind, or perhaps had been damaged by weather conditions or improper packing, the consignee cannot reject them summarily. He may be the loser, and perhaps legal redress would not compensate him for the loss. Perhaps legal action is prevented by some technicality of which he has never heard. Yet if he accepts the shipment, there are still other questions that make doubtful his ability to recover damages. By the time a court hears the case, only testimony, not the goods themselves, remains as evidence, and the outcome is doubtful to any but a keen legal mind.

The buyer, when he places his order, can by definite shipping directions aid the shipper to give him the best service. And the seller, by thought of the buyer's interest in the transaction, can remove a large share of possible trouble. It is to his interest to do so, for nothing serves to build a business so fast as reliable service. Low prices are of value only as an introduction; no prices are so low that a buyer who has not been satisfied a first time will come again. No individual can make money by selling to each customer but once. Success comes in selling to the same buyer time and time again. The basis of such repeat orders is mutual satisfaction, which comes of consideration for the man at the other end of the deal.

WHO KNOWS ABOUT THIS?

We have heard that some of the growers in eastern Pennsylvania and New York are using cast-iron radiators for heating instead of pipe. We should like to be put right on the subject and to know the names of one or two firms that are using cast-iron radiation, if the rumor is true. We are interested.

STOCK FROZEN IN TRANSIT.

The present cold weather makes of timely interest a decision handed down the other day by the North Dakota Supreme court in the case of O. J. Barnes Co. vs. Northern Pacific Railway Co. (173 Northwestern Reporter, 943), concerning the liability of railway companies for freezing of freight in transit. The gist of the court's decision, which seems to state sound law, applicable throughout the country, is as follows:

Where a railway company receives perishable goods for shipment at a season when it is reasonable to expect freezing temperature, and where, following a delay in transportation, the goods are damaged by freezing, the perishable nature of the goods is to be taken into consideration in determining whether or not there was an unreasonable delay in delivery.

Where goods are shipped under an option in the shipper, as against the railway company, whereby the shipper assumes the risk of the goods being damaged by heat or cold, the company is not relieved from liability for such damage if the same is caused directly by a delay in transportation.

Nor can a railway company escape liability for freezing of goods on the ground that the damage was caused by an act of God, where the freezing might well have been foreseen as a direct result of the carrier's failure to make reasonably prompt delivery. S.

OBITUARY

Knud Gundestrup.

Knud Gundestrup, seedsman and onion set operator, died at his home in Chicago, December 18, after a brief illness. Mr. Gundestrup was 52 years of age. He was a native of Denmark, where he grew up to a knowledge of agricultural seeds and the export seed trade. His first business venture on his own account in America was undertaken in 1904, but after some years he returned to the Scandinavian countries, where he spent three and one-half years. Returning to Chicago in 1915, he at once re-established himself in the seed trade, with a store on Milwaukee avenue, in the Jefferson Park district of Chicago, making a specialty of supplying market gardeners' seeds and wholesale dealing in onion sets.

The funeral was held at the Jefferson Park Congregational church December 22, interment being at Mount Olivet. There was a large attendance and many flowers.

Mrs. Aurena Humfeld.

Mrs. Aurena Humfeld, wife of W. H. Humfeld, of the Humfeld-Orear Floral Co., Kansas City, Mo., died December 17 at her home, 3126 Chestnut avenue, after a short illness. She was 62 years of age and had lived in Kansas City thirty years. She is survived by her husband, a brother, Herman Braumecker, Cincinnati, O., and five daughters, Mrs. L. M. Orear, Kansas City; Mrs. P. J. Newman, Manhattan, Kan.; Miss Sammai Humfeld, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Miss Emma W. Humfeld and Miss Viola May Humfeld, of the home address. Funeral services were held at the home Friday afternoon, December 19, followed by interment in Forest Hill cemetery.

George T. Schuneman.

George T. Schuneman, of Rockville Center, N. Y., died at his home December 22, from pneumonia, following an illness of three days. Mr. Schuneman was at one time a large grower of violets and later became one of the pioneer growers of winter-flowering sweet peas.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The eve of the Christmas holiday found the market short in supply and the demand less than might have been expected. If the demand had been normal, some difficulty might have been experienced in meeting it. It was quite evident that growers in some lines were holding stock as long as possible for late sales. Prices in most lines aroused much criticism among retailers and hand-to-mouth buying was general.

Plantsmen generally report being sold out, with the biggest trade ever. Dealers in green goods also report a good business, although stock has all along been plentiful, with the exception, perhaps, of lycopodium, which is hardly procurable. Holly in case lots is moving freely, but many florists prefer to buy wreaths ready-made, asserting that it no longer pays to bother making them up.

Roses before Christmas were plentiful only in the longer grades, which required considerable effort to effect a movement. Sales of extras were made last week at prices little in advance of No. 2 grades; so much out of proportion was the supply. The zero weather experienced December 18 did not seem to curtail shipments and little stock arrived in frozen condition. American Beauty specials moved at up to $150 per hundred and promised to go higher, since the supply in sight was not believed to be large.

Carnations were on the short side in point of supply, and little stock was to be had at less than $10 per hundred; $12 was the price for best grades, with as much as $15 for selected flowers.

The supply of gardenias was better only because the price asked affected the demand for them and the severe weather had prevented outdoor use of corsage bouquets. Prices ranged from 75 cents to $1 each. Cattleyas were affected for the same reasons, and much stock was carried over each day. Cypripediums were plentiful and moved fairly well at $4 to 6 per dozen.

Easter lilies were short in supply, and the quality of arrivals was nothing to boast of at $25 per hundred. There was a fair supply of rubrums and albums, the former bringing $6 to $15 and the latter $6 to $10 per hundred. Lily of the valley was in much greater supply, but was not active in movement at the prices asked, 15 to 30 cents per spray for the best. Violets were not in heavy supply, the growers shipping much stock to the west. When good, these flowers brought $3 per hundred. Some good myosotis was available in small quantities and moved at $2 per bunch. Paper White narcissi were plentiful, the best moving at as high as 75 cents per bunch. Sweet peas were not plentiful, the crop having been cut down through bud-dropping on account of weather conditions. The Christmas supply of these flowers was short. The tail end of the chrysanthemum cut included mostly Chadwick, Bonnaffon and Nonin, with a good supply of singles in long sprays. Stevia was quite abundant at 15 to 35 cents per bunch. Daisies, pansies, calendulas, pink bouvardia, wallflowers and snapdragons were among the miscellaneous offerings and all moved freely.

Market arrivals were light December 23. Top prices for Beauties touched $2. Cattleyas were $3. Carnations brought 15 to 20 cents each and sales were made for the day before Christmas at 25 cents apiece for red varieties.

Various Notes.

It is definitely settled that Ladies' night of the Florists' Club will be held, as previously arranged, on the night of January 12, in the club's quarters at the Engineering Societies' building. The January meeting of the club must necessarily take place on the same evening, but, with the meeting called to order promptly, it is not expected that the proceedings need be of an extended nature. The house committee has arrangements well in hand, and the cuisine will be in the hands of a first-class caterer.

Among the state incorporations announced last week was the Burnham Boiler Corporation, of Irvington, N. Y., with a capital of $1,000,000. H. L. Vanderbilt, C. H. Seifert and O. F. P. Karb are incorporators.

The death occurred December 20, at the Postgraduate hospital, of Mrs. Helen K. S. Pitcher, wife of James R. Pitcher, of the old firm of Pitcher & Manda, Short Hills, N. J.

Fifth avenue and Broadway florists displayed for the holiday trade artificial plants decorated with ribbon, and quite handsome in appearance. Small made-up plants of retinispora sprays were also seen and were a novelty.

A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y., president-elect of the S. A. F., has been quite busy of late with the appointments he is to make at the beginning of his administration, and which are to be announced January 1.

Samuel Redstone, recently with the Beechwood Heights Nurseries, Boundbrook, N. J., is now with the Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J.

A. M. Henshaw, president-elect of the New York Florists' Club, has been confined to his home for some days with a severe cold.

The Kottmiller store, 426 Madison avenue, has had a rush of business lately, chiefly decorations for debutantes' parties. The crop of society debutantes this year seems to be unusually large.

The sudden cold snap of last week caught several florists badly and resulted in the loss of much stock.

The next meeting of the flower show committee will be held at Secretary Young's office, 1170 Broadway, Monday afternoon, January 12. At this meeting the designs submitted in the poster contest will have consideration.

At the last meeting of the New York Florists' Club, John Canning, of Ardsley, was depressed with a presentiment. He hastened home, and on arrival found a baby daughter awaiting him. Both mother and daughter are doing well.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Monday of this week, December 22, set a new record for the Chicago market. It was the biggest day in the history of the trade in Chicago.

With this issue of The Review going to press a day ahead of the usual schedule, it is impossible to give more than a summary of the Christmas trade; the details must wait until the report of the final day's business can be included. Business increased steadily during the week before Christmas, while the supply of stock as steadily went down. Old-timers in the market have become accustomed to what is called the lull before the storm, but this year the trade encountered nothing in the nature of a calm. December 19 the market was well cleaned up and December 20 scarcely a flower of shipable character remained in the wholesalers' iceboxes. December 20, if not considered as within the holiday period, will rank as the best Saturday this market ever has known.

Christmas shipping began on Sunday. There was a sufficient volume of long distance shipments to keep most of the wholesalers busy all day. Much effort also was put on drawing in from the greenhouses the greatest possible quantity of stock for Monday, because the accumulated Christmas orders largely concentrated on December 22 and it was apparent that unusual effort would be necessary to obtain the quantity of stock needed to fill the advance orders. days many of the wholesalers had been declining orders for the shorter grades of roses and brighter colors of carnations. Several other items, like violets, sweet peas and valley, also were short, but the orders were principally for roses and carnations.

The number of orders shipped December 22 probably was not greater than at some previous special flower days, like Easter and Memorial day, but the average value of the flowers was the highest ever known. This was not the case with some of the miscellaneous items, but it was notably true of roses. Compared to the demand for them, there were extremely few short roses. Not many orders were accepted below 10 cents and several houses had nothing to offer below 12 or 15 cents. While the heavy shipping was in progress it was impossible for one wholesaler to buy roses of another for less than 25 or 30 cents. At from 35 cents to $1 per flower roses could be had. The Christmas market never has been so strong on long roses. To begin with, the modern varieties give longer stems than did the sorts displaced. In the second place, the early autumn market was so low that nearly all growers gave at least a part of their plants an extra pinch, with the idea of substituting a long-stemmed Christmas crop for the shorter crop which might have been cut at the earlier date. Beauties were in such small supply that $18 easily was realized for first-class long stems.

It was found that many houses had overbooked on carnations and could not fill the orders they had taken. Under such circumstances local retailers had only one chance to buy stock for unexpected funeral work and they proceeded to bid the carnation market to heights comparable to the pinch of last year.

Shipping continued heavily December 23 and there were many additional orders by telegraph to strengthen the market. At the time this report was prepared it seemed impossible that the market could break on Christmas eve. So large a part of the available stock must have been drawn in from the growers that there cannot be much stock in their hands to be dumped on the market after the opportunity to use it is gone.

The confidence of the retail dealers has been remarkable. Never before have they taken hold of high-priced stock with so little hesitation. Also, the quality of stock is worth a special mention. There have been quite a few chrysanthemums which evidently should not have been held for Christmas and there have been a good many overripe carnations, but the roses, the big item of the Christmas market, have been unusually fine. There will be complaints, of course, but on the whole the market never has had better stock or a better demand.

Mr. Campanini and the Flowers.

"It never rains but it pours," and so it frequently happens that when the trade is busiest with a holiday rush there comes an unusual demand for funeral flowers. It was so in Chicago at the beginning of this week. The funeral of Mr. Campanini, director of the opera, created a call for flowers greater than anything known here in years.

The president of the opera association paid an unusual compliment to a florist's skill by sending for Victor Bergman to take charge of decorating the Auditorium for the memorial service held Sunday afternoon. Mr. Bergman is no longer in the retail florists' business, but in the years he was connected with leading retail establishments he had done much satisfactory decorating for the McCormick family. So when an unusual order was to be given Mr. McCormick sent for Mr. Bergman.

For the service the stage was set with the temple scene in Parsifal. The shaft of light in the center of the stage customarily illuminates the Holy Grail, but this time it fell upon the casket on its carpet of asparagus and white carnations. The casket cover was one of the most gorgeous ever made in Chicago. The entire top of the casket was covered with cattleyas. Anyone who tried to buy such flowers during the last month knows what effort was required to get together so many. The retailers were taking all that were offered at $3 each. Mr. Bergman bid $4. The pendent sides of the blanket were of single violets, with an edging of lily of the valley. At each front drop there was a tall vase of roses, 100 American Beauties in one, 100 longest Russells in the other. The other flowers used on the stage were seven enormous wreaths, none less than six feet high on its easel, sent by friends and associates of Mr. Campanini. They made a semicircle as far back of the casket as they could be placed and be within the scene. Larger and finer designs are not at present within the abilities of the florists' trade, but unfortunately the lighting was too concentrated to show the flowers to best advantage.

The orchestra pit seats more than sixty players. Mr. Bergman was asked to decorate it with the idea of bringing out the dead conductor's desk. He filled in a background of wild smilax, holly and big woodwardia fronds, sloping both from the front and from the sides toward the upstanding desk on which lay a sheet of music and a baton. A few of the designs from friends were used in the decoration, but most of the flowers were chrysanthemums in radiating lines to carry the eye to the faintly illuminated desk. Several boxes in the theater, including the one Mr. Campanini habitually occupied when not conducting, were filled with floral pieces. There was no person on the stage during the service, which was entirely of music from behind the scenes, but there were many thousands in the theater who were appreciative of a most impressive event in which flowers bore a conspicuous part.

The funeral service was held December 22 and there were hundreds of wreaths and other designs in addition to those which had arrived in time for the Sunday memorial. The demand for this great quantity of high-grade work was felt by practically all the first-class stores and it brought many large telegraph orders to those represented in the Pink Part of The Review during the last two weeks.

Coal Prices Go Up.

Don't always believe what you read in the daily papers. About a week ago we learned from that source how the government had settled the coal strike —for which we all were glad—on the basis of fourteen per cent advance in wages, to come out of the operators' profits, prices to the public to remain the same. Well, perhaps! Leastwise, we are not of the public; we're the goats. It now transpires that in the contracts for the season's coal supply signed last summer by most of the larger growers there was a neat little clause snuggled down in the middle which now stands out like a gardenia in the center of a corsage of violets. It provided that should there be a readjustment of miners' wages during the life of the contract the contract price paid for the coal was to be readjusted on the same basis. Promptly last week when coal began coming through again the price was advanced 28 cents per ton. The only ray of light lies in the fact that the coal is still being obtained at about 50 cents per ton below the market price.

While the pinch was on a number of growers obtained coal from the fuel administration. To get any kind of low grade central-fields stuff they had to put up cash at the value of the best Pocahontas. Some day they, or their estates, will receive a rebate in accordance with the value of the coal actually released to them.

interest is held by Theodore W. Marquardt. Rudolph Bleski is his associate and the active manager. There are three and one-half houses mostly in roses, but with a few sweet peas. The stock now is handled by the E. C. Amling Co.

W. W. Barnard Co. reports still another embargo. This time it is on shipments of sphagnum moss from the Wisconsin swamps. The supply of moss in this market is extremely small. Most of the dealers here bought early in the season and so low that it has been difficult for them to get delivery in the face of steadily rising prices. The result is that the embargo threatens to starve the market.

There are twice each season when everyone gets special pleasure out of chrysanthemums, according to A. J. Zech. He says the first time the mums give delight is when they come; the second time, when they go. Christmas saw the end except for a few small lots.

John Poehlmann believes the time has come when the smaller growers must insist that flowers be sold at prices in accordance with present costs of production.

Frank M. Johnson says the last three months of 1919 have made a wonderful record for the A. L. Randall Co. December 20 an odd lot sale was held for the benefit of the local trade and many Inc., 245 Washington street, New York city, a concern which is supplying many eastern retailers who find the combination effective.

Emil Buettner frequently forces as many as 30,000 giganteums, mostly for Easter. This year he cut his order to 12,000 bulbs. He has not yet decided how many will be forced for Easter. He flowers them in time if planted by New Year's.

Sam Pearce will cut his first jonquils during the last week of the year.

MacRorie-McLaren's ericas were everywhere early this week. Evidently they had sold like hot cakes, to the retailers, because Christmas plants were shorter than ever before.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., at the city store, worked all night December 21 and, on entering the orders in the morning, found there were more than when they started packing the evening before.

George Wienhoeber's Christmas window was of foliage plants in baskets. Crotons were largely used.

A. E. Shaw, of Springfield, Mass., has taken space with George Reinberg and hung out a shingle, "Shaw, the Fern Man." He says he has come to stay.

A. Miller spent a portion of last week at Cleveland and Toledo. He reported the trade in a high state of activity.

Mrs. C. L. Washburn, a most capable person in many matters besides homemaking, is lending a hand at Bassett & Washburn's this week.

Christmas trees were a glut, in sharp contrast to nearly everything else anybody wanted.

P. C. Schupp says the last quarter of 1919 has confirmed his belief that the out-of-town trade is worth the extra care it necessitates; the Budlong business, he states, has improved continuously, notably in the matter of steadiness, as the shipping trade has been developed.

Peter Reinberg has at length dropped Richmond; only half a house now is occupied by the variety which once was his leader.

Eric Johnson reports the first of the home supply of pussy willows for Christmas, unusually fine stock, which sold well.

Visitors.

C. C. Stulb, Jr., of Stulb's Nursery, Augusta, Ga., was here last week to do his Christmas shopping. He brought a big and specially constructed trunk which he packed full of fine flowers and took home with him as excess baggage.

The Market.

A severe cold wave last week, with a minimum temperature of 6 degrees below zero in the city and much lower readings outside, restricted trade considerably, especially in pot plants, but the present week opened with clear skies and a more balmy atmosphere.

Roses were in fairly good supply, but made a further advance during the latter part of last week. Special American Beauties were offered at $18 to $24 per dozen and $12 was asked for special Hadleys. Columbia, Russell, Premier, Ophelia, Crusader, Pilgrim and other favorites sold at $15 to $50. Whites dragged somewhat, as usual, but all colored roses were in good demand and short-stemmed stock of the more common varieties sold at from $10 to $12 per hundred upward. Colored carnations sold at $12, with a tendency to rise. White carnations were a little slower. Fancy varieties like Laddie made double the prices of those quoted.

Violets sold mostly at $3. A few were asking $4, but it was paid grudgingly. Sweet peas were in good supply and of fine quality at $3 to $6 per hundred. Some nice Bonnaffon, Seidewitz and other late chrysanthemums sold at $3 to $6 per dozen. There were no longiflorum lilies, but a few colored speciosums were seen. Callas were quickly sold at $4 to $5 per dozen. Marguerites were in active demand at $3 to $6 per hundred. Paper Whites sold at $6 to $8. Stevia was rather overdone and moved slowly at lower prices.

There was a good call for such miscellaneous flowers as wallflower, Coreopsis Drummondii, snapdragons, mignonette, sweet sultan and bachelor's buttons. Some valley was offered at $20 to $25 per hundred. Cattleyas were scarce at $18 to $24 per dozen. Cypripediums sold at $40 to $60 per hundred. Small lots of gardenias went quickly at $12 per dozen.

Pot plant trade was heavy and a grand assortment was available, with cyclamens, begonias and poinsettias as the three leaders. Other good sellers were ardisias, oranges, ericas, Soleil d'Or narcissi, freesias, primulas and camellias. An immense trade was done in evergreens in spite of the prevailing high prices.

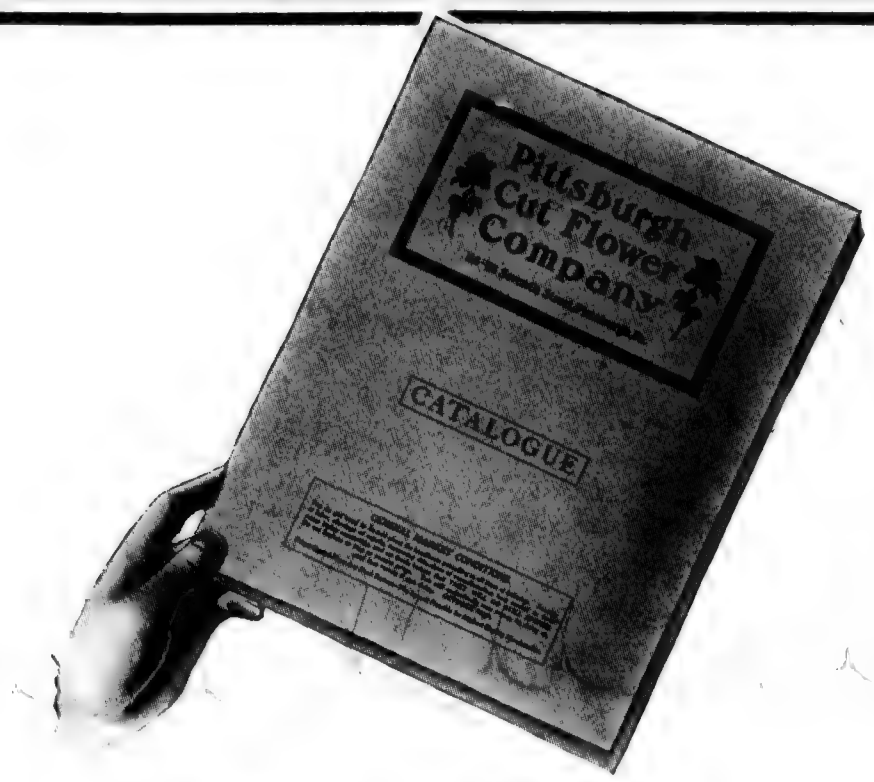
Club Meeting.



In spite of severely cold weather, there was a good attendance at the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club December 16. Seven new members were elected. It was voted to offer prizes of $15 and $10 for twelve bunches of sweet peas, twenty-five sprays of each, at the exhibition of the American Sweet Pea Society in Boston in July. It was announced that A. Herrington, Madison, N. J., would represent the club as a lecturer at the big union meeting of agricultural and horticultural societies to be held in Horticultural hall February 20 to 23. A recommendation from the executive committee to hold a prize exhibition of carnations and other seasonable flowers preceding the annual carnation meeting February 10 was adopted and $50 voted toward the prize fund. It was voted not to hold a regular banquet as in previous years, but to try a buffet lunch, entertainment and dance in its stead February 18.

The committee on the flower show appointed was: S. J. Goddard, chairman; Harold A. Ryan, H. H. Bartsch, Duncan Finlayson and W. H. Golby. It was unanimously voted that the club place itself squarely in favor of daylight saving for Massachusetts in 1920. It was also voted to send resolutions to the Federal Horticultural Board demanding a hearing for orchid men to see if arrangements cannot be made to remove the embargo from their importation. The name of James F. M. Farquhar was proposed for honorary membership in the club.

The annual election of officers resulted as follows: President, H. H. Bartsch; vice-president, William H. Judd; secretary, W. N. Craig; treasurer, S. J. Goddard; executive committee, Andrew K. Rogers, Patrick W. Burke, Walter H. Golby, John L. Russell and John R. Ness.

There was, as usual, a fine lot of exhibits. William Sim showed twenty vases of splendid carnations, embracing the following varieties: Rosette, Pink Delight, White Delight, Benora, White Benora, Laddie, Aviator, Matchless, Harold, Rosalia, Nancy, Belle Washburn, Ethel Fisher, Enchantress Supreme and a number of seedlings, including Kiltie (variegated), Gay Gordon, No. 5, Fairy and Romeo. Gay Gordon and Romeo received honorable mention, and a cultural report of merit was awarded to the collection, one of the best ever staged here. Mr. Sim stated that all his carnations are grown under glass from start to finish, the bulk being planted out in May. He grows 100,000 of them and has proved that they give far superior results to field-grown, lifted stock. They have been grown in the same soil for three seasons. He tried one house with new, specially prepared compost, but results were not so good as in the old soil. His soil is about two feet deep and has been growing such crops as violets, tomatoes and sweet peas before carnations for some eighteen years. Many plants now stand four feet high.

W. H. Golby showed Golden Mistletoe and Hamburg Late White mums, also a large specimen of Begonia Cincinnati, awarded honorable mention. W. N. Craig showed the tall form of Stevia serrata. E. B. Dane had pure culture mushrooms. James Wheeler had a nice pink sport of Matchless carnation. The William F. Kasting Co.,

BERT J. PUTNAM, Scientific Aquarist, 490 Washington St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Buffalo, exhibited Chrysanthemum Hamburg Late Pink, which made a good impression and received honorable mention.

Mr. Arnold, of the Fess Rotary Oil Burner Co., gave a most interesting and practical lecture on "Fuel Oil Heating for Greenhouses," which was listened to with the closest attention. The speaker answered many questions and the subject evidently had been well thought out by a good number of the members, some of whom expect to try this heating at an early date. It was announced that there would be a ladies' night for the annual installation of officers, the date being January 13. Mrs. W. H. Judd received a hearty vote of thanks for furnishing the refreshments. It was an unusually late hour when the meeting ended.

Various Notes.

The severe cold wave which struck New England last week, with local readings of 10 and 20 degrees below zero on two nights, put a severe check on sales of pot plants and cut flowers and in several stores plants were frozen. It was fortunate that the cold did not come nearer Christmas, or the effect on business would have been much more serious.

I regret to report the serious illness of Mrs. William Nicholson, Sr., of Framingham.

The Mann Co. has nice cuts of wall-flowers, Coreopsis Drummondii and Narcissus Soleil d'Or, in addition to a fine assortment of the more commonly seen flowers.

The announcement made last week of the sale of John Barr's range at South Natick, Mass., to W. E. Lenk, for some years manager for the Halifax Gardens Co., Halifax, Mass., was of great interest to local growers. Mr. Barr has for years been one of our best carnation growers and his South Natick range comes as near being a perfect one as any in this state. He grows some 45,000 plants and has always marketed his flowers at the Boston Coöperative Market. Mr. Lenk is a first-class carnation grower and has made exhibits at several of the carnation conventions. The sale price is said to be in the neighborhood of $50,000.

The Boston Floral Supply Co. did a heavy Christmas business and reports demands far ahead of a year ago. High prices have not acted as any deterrent to business.

John J. O'Brien, of Beacon street, displayed a superb lot of pot plants for Christmas. I noted several hundred beautifully fruited Otaheite oranges and a large batch of ardisias. Some poinsettias in large pans, six feet high and carrying 24-inch bracts, were splendidly grown. Among other plants noted were acacias, camellias, azaleas (some of large size), ericas, magnificent cyclamens and many other finely grown plants. The trade here calls for high-grade stock, the store being right in the exclusive Back Bay section.

A. C. Johnson, of Woburn, is cutting as handsome a lot of Spencer sweet peas as I have ever seen at this season, with 14-inch to 18-inch stems and flowers of remarkable size.

Recent visitors included John S. Doig, Barrington, R. I., and Paul Winter, of Winter, Son & Co., New York, agents for Sutton & Sons, Reading, England.

E. H. Wilson, of the Arnold Arboretum, gave a stereopticon lecture on Korea before the Horticultural Society of New York, in New York city, December 17.

The William W. Edgar Co. had a splendid Christmas trade and was cleaned out of almost everything salable. Among other varieties this firm had fine batches of Euphorbia jacqiniæflora and Freesia Purity.

James Wheeler, of Natick, has gone in for Godfrey callas heavily this season and, judging from the way he flowered them last season, they should prove a paying crop.

fallen off in proportion. There is one point, however, to be noted; what stock is coming to the market these days is mostly of good quality. Roses are exceptionally fine; the stems are long and stiff and the foliage good and clean. Carnations, which have by no means struck their gait, are of splendid quality. It looks at this time as if the reds, which are so much in demand for Christmas, will not be much used, owing to the scarcity and the prohibitive price asked for them. Sweet peas are still scarce and are cleaned up each day. Local violets were scarce.

There was a fair supply of all miscellaneous stock promised for the rush, but it looked as if the retailers were going to have trouble in procuring sufficient stock to meet the demand that would be made on them. Blooming plants were scarce; there were some fine cyclamens to be had, but not nearly enough to meet the demand. Primroses were in good shape, but not enough to go around. Everyone who had any good blooming plants is pretty well cleaned up. Poinsettias were all sold two weeks before Christmas. There was also a large advance sale on all plants suitable for comes as near being a perfect one as any in this state. He grows some 45,000 plants and has always marketed his flowers at the Boston Coöperative Market. Mr. Lenk is a first-class carnation grower and has made exhibits at several of the carnation conventions. The sale price is said to be in the neighborhood of $50,000.

The Boston Floral Supply Co. did a heavy Christmas business and reports demands far ahead of a year ago. High prices have not acted as any deterrent to business.

John J. O'Brien, of Beacon street, displayed a superb lot of pot plants for Christmas. I noted several hundred beautifully fruited Otaheite oranges and a large batch of ardisias. Some poinsettias in large pans, six feet high and carrying 24-inch bracts, were splendidly grown. Among other plants noted were acacias, camellias, azaleas (some of large size), ericas, magnificent cyclamens and many other finely grown plants. The trade here calls for high-grade stock, the store being right in the exclusive Back Bay section.

A. C. Johnson, of Woburn, is cutting as handsome a lot of Spencer sweet peas as I have ever seen at this season, with 14-inch to 18-inch stems and flowers of remarkable size.

Recent visitors included John S. Doig, Barrington, R. I., and Paul Winter, of Winter, Son & Co., New York, agents for Sutton & Sons, Reading, England.

E. H. Wilson, of the Arnold Arboretum, gave a stereopticon lecture on Korea before the Horticultural Society of New York, in New York city, December 17.

The William W. Edgar Co. had a splendid Christmas trade and was cleaned out of almost everything salable. Among other varieties this firm had fine batches of Euphorbia jacqiniæflora and Freesia Purity.

James Wheeler, of Natick, has gone in for Godfrey callas heavily this season and, judging from the way he flowered them last season, they should prove a paying crop.

making up baskets. Many crotons and 4-inch ferns were sold. There were more made-up baskets and boxes this year than ever before. These were made up to sell at all prices and there were more to sell at popular prices than had ever been known before.

Don't you think it is about time for us to stop talking high prices and pay more attention to production? It seems strange to me to hear people complaining of high prices in one breath and in the next fretting because they cannot get stock at any price.

Various Notes.

Erdman & Ulrich had a fine lot of cyclamens again this year, also primroses and flowering begonias, and had no trouble in cleaning up on everything they had. Anything in bloom sold this year; if it could not be sold as a single plant it could be used in baskets.

James Glass had a fine batch of peppers and poinsettias, the latter both in pans and for cut stock.

Fred Bauer had a nice assortment of blooming plants this year. His peppers, cherries and begonias were exceptionally fine.

Lohr & Fritze had just their regular cut. They do not believe in forcing much for Christmas. Their idea is to have a good regular cut. There may be wisdom in this, for when everyone is timing a crop for a given date, stock naturally is scarce for a period before that time and scarcity, we all know, makes good prices, and so they have the advantage of a good average price together with an average supply. Their Double White Killarney is especially fine just now.

OUR MOTTO IS

"SATISFACTION"

With this aim, backed by ten years' experience in the manufacture of Paper Boxes, particularly for Florists, we maintain that we can give our customers the best, a box of Quality at a price that is right.

We can make prompt shipments from our stock of all practical sizes, in five grades, Oxford Gray, Mist Green, Mist Tan, White Patent coated, and "Favorite" Manila grade.

Printing, at a reasonable extra charge, in plain inks and bronzes, also striping and embossing, is our specialty.

For your present needs, give Climax Quality, Prices and Service a trial; we can prove our motto to you.

from this point on a certain train in three hours, we can realize the delay. However, there is not much cut stock being shipped these days. Every city is in about the same condition that Baltimore is; they have not a great deal to ship after the home consumption is taken care of.

If the readers have any news of interest for The Review and will drop a card to 934 East Preston street or tell J. J. Perry, of the S. S. Pennock Co., I shall be glad to call on them and see that it has proper notice. It is impossible for me to get around to everyone each week, but this column belongs to the florists of Baltimore. It is a good form of cooperation, which we hear preached so much today. Let those in the trade know what you are doing through these columns, and in this way make the Baltimore letter a big family affair. Tate.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Last week was remarkable. The question at the close of business Saturday, December 20, was, "Can we get the flowers to fill the orders?" Whereas the question on the previous Saturday had been, "Can we get the orders for all the flowers?"

The weather had a great deal to do with this change in the situation. It was 58 degrees Fahrenheit December 13; it was zero December 18, followed by a snow storm with high winds. This early winter weather cut down the supply and increased the size of the advance orders, buyers being afraid their later orders might be cut or canceled.

The market was in good shape all week. Prices steadily advanced. The principal trading was in roses. The short and medium grades were active; the fancy grades were dull. Carnations advanced farther, or perhaps it would be more accurate to say that the advance of a week earlier became an established fact. Carnations continued to bring a higher price than short roses.

The receipts were not heavy. Paper Whites jumped from $4 to $6. There was no demand for them during the chrysanthemum season, but last week they were in active demand. The supply was light. There was much activity in poinsettias, mostly in advance orders for Christmas. Indications last week were that Monday, December 22, would be the big shipping day. It looked as though the market would be so completely stripped of everything worth having on that day that flowers would not become plentiful again before next year.

The Plant Market.

It was most unfortunate that December 18 should have witnessed such excessively severe weather, because December 18 is the height of the holiday plant shipping business, on which this market depends. The growers met the conditions manfully. They stopped shipping, kept right on packing and on the night of December 19, when the weather moderated, they rushed off many shipments

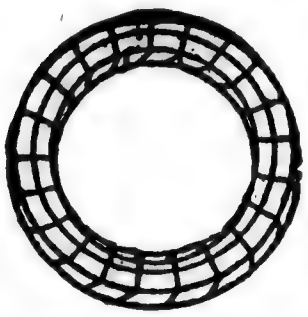
The Dinner at Kugler's.

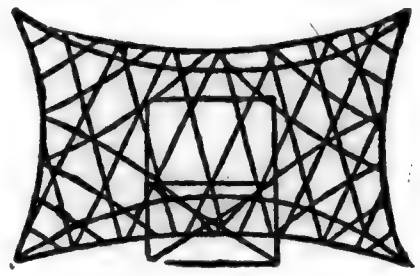
The banquet room at Kugler's presented a festive appearance Tuesday evening, December 23. It was the occasion of the annual dinner given by H. Bayersdorfer & Co. to their entire force. Everybody was asked and there were mighty few regrets. This Christmas party is extremely popular. The affair was arranged by Sydney H. Bayersdorfer, who gave every detail his personal attention, aiming that everyone should have a good time. Promptly at seven the guests sat down to dinner. The long table seated the firm, Harry Bayersdorfer, Paul Berkowitz and Sydney H. Bayersdorfer; the heads of the departments, nine in number, including the chiefs from Telford and New York, and who all made speeches, and the salesmen. Yes, of course, you want to know what salesmen were there. Well, there were Martin Reukauf and I. M. Bayersdorfer and Stephen D. Green and John Walsh and Robert Cullom and Eddie Thorston.



The other room was filled with small tables whereat were seated clerks and stenographers, counters and packers, basket makers and painters, drivers and errand boys—everybody, girls and boys, women and men, who is for the House of Bayersdorfer, to the number of 125.

It was a jolly party, full of fun. The hit of the evening was a song. It was about everybody who was there. It was sung by everybody who was there. It was composed by Stephen D. Green, aided by Sydney H. Bayersdorfer. Stephen D. played the accompaniment to his own song. There was a vaudeville show and everybody was sorry when it was time to go.

The Lily Situation.



Alfred M. Campbell is speaking. It is about Japanese lily bulbs. Here is something worth hearing. Come and listen: "Statistics show that somewhere in the neighborhood of 10,000,000 lily bulbs were imported annually into this country from Japan for several years before the war. The war interrupted importations, so that there were no bulbs last year. This year the crop is short. It is thought that somewhere in the neighborhood of 4,500,000 were shipped to this country. Of this number 1,000,000 were lost at sea, leaving 3,500,000 Japanese lily bulbs that reached Seattle in safety. Keen competition among the importers, the short crop and the fact that the Japs learned from our papers the prices that lily flowers brought in this country last Easter, ran the prices up to an undreamed-of extent. Bulbs that a few years ago brought an average price of $45 per thousand are now being sold at $183 per thousand. They would probably have all been sold at these extraordinary prices but for one weak link in the chain. The importers were unable to make delivery. True, the bulbs reached Seattle on time, but here the trouble began. They are shipped east in refrigerator cars, to avoid freezing in transit. There were no refrigerator cars to be had. The hurry-up orders were received to ship by express. Never mind the cost—get them there. The express was held up. There were railroad strikes. Finally the bulbs arrived in the east, but not until this month. That is too late according to the old rule for forcing green bulbs for an early Easter. That rule called for twelve to fourteen weeks. While the bulbs were still coming east many of the growers, alarmed by the coal strike and by the lateness of the bulbs, canceled their orders. The result is that, despite the small crop, there are a great many bulbs in cold storage. Now that the time for starting for Easter has passed, the price is declining. I think that lilies will be plentiful in Philadelphia next Easter, because there are several large growers here who got their bulbs, but that they will be scarce, extremely scarce, nearly everywhere else in this country.''

Various Notes.

William Berger underwent an operation in the Samaritan hospital December 19. He is doing well. Mr. Berger is one of this city's leading florists and is deservedly popular. His many friends will wish a speedy recovery.

Marcus Stephenson is ill at his home on Oak Lane. He has been missed by the workers in the big house where a fine Christmas crop of roses has been maturing.

Myers & Samtman have a fine house of the new rose, Premier.

Coal shipments are being resumed.

Emile H. Geschiek is, unfortunately, laid up at home over Christmas.

The modern plan is for the wholesalers to furnish the growers with cards to be filled out with their prospective Christmas crops. Sales are made from these cards.

Franklin Ely, of the Henry F. Michell Co., says advance flower seed orders are coming in freely.

Edward Reid was agreeably surprised by one of his growers adding 1,500 roses to his pre-holiday figures.

A. M. Larson had a crop of sweet peas for Christmas.

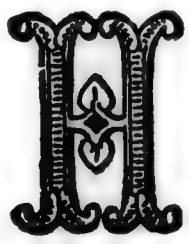
week. Prices were high, as follows: American Beauty roses from $9 to $18 per dozen; roses such as Mock, Richmond, Columbia, Premier, Russell, the Killarneys, Hoosier Beauty, Hadley and Ophelia, were $25 to $75 per hundred; carnations were $8, $10 and $12 per hundred; calendulas, $4 and $5 per hundred; poinsettias, $35 to $75 per hundred; calla lilies, $3 and $4 per dozen; sweet peas, $5 and $6 per hundred, and stevia, extra fine, $4 per hundred. Roses and carnations have been in fair crop, but failed to meet the demand this week.

There were quantities of blooming plants, but not enough to go around. Cyclamens were selling at from $2 to $4 at wholesale; poinsettia pans, at from $2 to $6 per pan wholesale; begonias, $1.50 to $6 each; primroses, 50 cents to $1, and araucarias, extra fine, at $4 and $5 per hundred.

Various Notes.

The Gude Bros. Co. was exceptionally busy last week with some fine dinners, weddings and debutante parties, as were many of the other florists around the city. This firm is installing at the northeast range under one of its large boilers a water grate culm-burning apparatus at a cost of nearly $3,000 for one boiler. If this apparatus does what it is said to do, it will save many thousand dollars per annum. W. F. Gude is still serving on the grand jury and was agreeably surprised, at the adjournment on the Friday before Christmas, when the jurors presented him with a token of esteem in the shape of a gold penknife.



The feature of the week was "Say It with Flowers," sung by Vernon Stiles at Keith's theater. This was sung at both matinee and evening performances. Mr. Stiles threw flowers to the audience while singing "Say It with Flowers" and the ushers distributed flowers to the patrons of the theater. Every day about 1,000 flowers were used in this way, which was a heavy drain on the florists, but it was surely worth the price. Not only does Mr. Stiles sing the song, but he asks the people to buy flowers when language fails them. Friday evening at an entertainment of about 500 people at the local Rotary Club, Mr. Stiles sang "Say It with Flowers." For this occasion there were prepared red roses with a "Say It with Flowers" card attached to each for every lady. These were distributed as he sang. This is surely effective advertising and should be encouraged in every city where Mr. Stiles appears. It is the biggest advertisement yet and costs little, comparatively speaking. It is to be hoped that the trade in every city where Mr. Stiles sings will lend him every assistance possible by the donation of flowers. He will do the rest.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

All early signs foretold a record-breaking Christmas. The opinion of retail merchants in general seemed to be a unit as to the volume of business expected.

Laurel roping is to be seen decorating fifty per cent of the stores. Interiors, especially, were unusually lavish this year. Little things like this give the people the flower-buying spirit and few things are better advertising for the florist.

Christmas prices in the retail stores were the highest on record in this respect. The best American Beauties brought $30 per dozen and in some instances even higher figures were recorded. Fancy rose stock sold well and brought from $10 to $15 per dozen. Extra special sold out at $18 to $20 per dozen. Short roses were in great demand for corsage work, also the miniature varieties, such as Baby Doll, Nesbit and Cecile Brunner. These in combinations with sweet peas, violets and baby primrose were prime favorites with flower buyers. Carnations that retailed at $3 per dozen one week before Christmas were easily sold at $3 to $6 per dozen.

The scarcity of this stock was a source of great worry to the commission men, who could not begin to fill their orders with satisfaction to their customers. Calendulas were unequal to the demand, especially Orange King. Sweet peas, a scarce article, brought unheard-of prices and were of good quality. Violets have been out of this market this winter so far, but a fair supply reached here from the coast in good condition.

Orchids and valley were perhaps the rarest things of all; $60 for a dozen cattleyas seems a lot of money, but it is paid. Valley at $5 to $6 per dozen is a new high mark for this flower, but this price has been standard for some months past.

Holly was bringing $11 per case in the market, but sold somewhat cheaper the last few days. Two carloads were badly frozen, being twenty-four hours on a siding during a cold spell.

Taking everything into consideration, the growers and commission men were well pleased as to prices and volume of business. The retailers all report a heavy increase in advance business; a great factor this year has been the telegraph delivery. The volume of business due to telegraph orders has been enormous.

TORONTO, ONT.

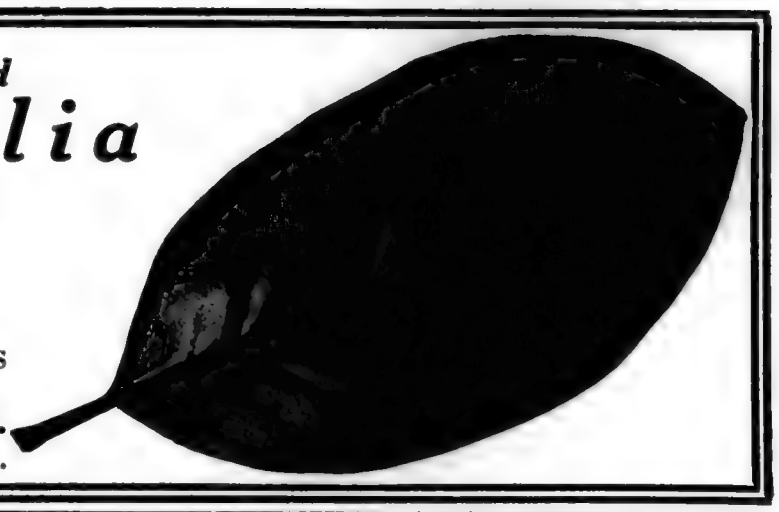
The Market.

The Christmas orders piled up last week until the florists began to worry about getting the large orders filled and delivered. Last week the weather was considerably below zero, something unusual for Toronto at this time, and the florists were preparing for extra wrapping of the plants, but fortunately the weather moderated considerably and relieved the fears of the retailers, who saw extra delivery troubles ahead of them.

The florists who handled Christmas trees did a big business. Prices ranged from 35 cents to $6. There was an ample supply of trees, with a big demand. A charge of 25 cents was usually made for the delivery of the tree.

The prices this Christmas were unusually high and some dealers had the experience of having customers walk out without buying, but usually they were persuaded to buy plants, in which a great trade was done. In some cases plants were handled to the exclusion of cut flowers.

Various Notes.



One of the chief features of this Christmas was the decoration of the large stores, even to a greater extent than before the war. One large store that celebrated its golden anniversary last week removed all displays from all windows along the different fronts and filled the windows with flowers. The effect of the display on the four streets was especially striking. The window displays of the trade were fine. The downtown stores were not alone in having Christmas window effects. The smaller dealers realized that the windows are the eyes of the store and began to make greater use of them in attracting people into the store and money into the cash register.

Several retailers have had, in addition to window displays, tiers of shelving arranged to carry quantities of plants and ferns.

The retailers will hold an oyster supper in January. The growers have been invited to it to talk over matters for the betterment of the trade.

In February the Florists' Club will hold the annual dance. This is one of the big events of the year and last year it was attended by nearly 500 persons. A committee is now looking for a larger hall to accommodate the anticipated crowd at this season's event.

The Canadians wish to extend best wishes for a happy and prosperous new year to the friends in the trade south of the border. J. J. H.

EARLY SALVIAS.

Please tell me which is the best variety of salvia to grow from seed, one that is early and a free bloomer.

L. P. F.—Pa.

Salvia splendens Zurich comes into bloom earlier than any other variety that I have grown; it is dwarf in habit and a free and continuous bloomer. Bonfire is another splendid variety, a most profuse bloomer, growing about twenty-four inches in height. C. W.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

The pre-holiday slow spell predominated last week. This does not mean, however, that stock accumulated, for it was far below normal supply. There had been exceedingly cold days and some shipments had arrived frozen. Such losses made supply short enough to be really felt, especially in those days when many orders were waiting to be filled. In general, the retailers report that more orders were booked than ever before and that the plant trade was a record-breaker. F. P. A.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Capitola, Cal.—The Brown Bulb Ranch has built its business in bulbs and seeds on the basis of personal contact with its customers. Manager James A. Brown makes two trips a year to the Atlantic coast and says that of the concern's 1,400 customers he personally has called on 1,110, covering all the states in the Union except three.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

The increased number of wholesalers apparently enlarged the Christmas business, for all were busy. There was a general worry as to where the stock would come from to fill the orders. Greens of all kinds and the different hollies were scarce and private growing establishments were drawn on to help out. Poinsettia plants were especially good this year. Heather helped somewhat to fill in the cut flower shortage.

Various Notes.

George Allan, of Prescott, Ariz., has sold out his business to A. W. Smith and is at present staying at Long Beach.

The sympathy of his many friends is with C. W. Bates, of Eagle Rock, in the death of his daughter last week.

The mother of George Eischen died suddenly last week at South Bend, Ind. After the death of her husband, Mrs. Eischen went east to Duluth, Chicago and other cities, visiting friends; the last word that her sons and daughters had from her indicated that she was in her usual good health. Her body was brought to Los Angeles by her son and the funeral services were held December 16.

The death of Mrs. Morton, which occurred at the Clara Barton hospital in this city December 17, was a sad blow to her family, although expected for some time. Mrs. Morton was the mother of C. E. Morton, of Phoenix, Ariz., formerly of Los Angeles and Chicago; Hubert Morton, formerly of Long Beach; Will and two sisters. Her death was from cancer of the stomach. Mrs. Morton was 70 years of age and was born in County Meath, Ireland. She had been a widow for many years. The sympathy of their many friends in the trade will be with the bereaved family, all of whom were most devoted to their mother.

A fine specimen of the sago palm, Cycas revoluta, has fruited in the Home of Peace cemetery, on Stephenson avenue, where Oscar Wuhlenberg has charge. While the flowering of the male plants is not unusual, the seed-bearing ones seldom fruit and it is interesting to watch the protective bracts fall back from the showy, red seeds as they develop. Mr. Wuhlenberg has several choice plants, the flowering of which is an event of importance.

J. Austin Shaw asks me to send his Christmas greetings to his old friends of The Review and to wish them all a happy and prosperous New Year. He says, "California is God's wonderland, but there's only one New York." His home is still in Hollywood, a place he much likes. H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Wholesalers and shippers have been facing a real problem this month in regard to meeting the demand for cut flowers, particularly violets and carnations, with a stock which is far too small. Recent weather conditions have resulted in considerable damage to the local violet crop. There were several days of extremely cold wind, followed by a rain none too warm for growing purposes and finally by an unusually severe frost, which laid its damaging finger on practically all outdoor stock. For this reason, shippers in San Francisco have been forced to cut nearly all present violet orders and it is probable that this condition will exist until after the holidays. Carnations, too, are badly wanted in the east and for the present it is impossible to ship full orders.

In fact, there is a noticeable scarcity of all kinds of cut flowers with the exception of roses. This season's rose crop is said to be particularly fine, of a quantity and quality that have not been seen for a good many years. Because of this it has not been difficult to get the prices which have been made necessary by various conditions arising in the trade. The principal cuts have been of Russell, Ophelia and Columbia, with a fair amount of Shawyer and reds; the last mentioned were in fine condition for Christmas week. American Beauties, while scarce and high last week, are more plentiful, although no lower in price. Orchids have been hard to get hold of. The gardenia crop is a little off in quality just now. A few large blooms were seen in one or two shops last week, but the majority of the stock is undersized.

The scarcity also extends to potted stock of all kinds, particularly cyclamens, begonias, azaleas, etc. The prices on these are a great deal higher this year than last. Good azalea plants are bringing a retail price of from $10 to $15 each, while the smaller plants and those of different varieties are correspondingly high.

Local florists have been disappointed in regard to English holly from the northwest. A crop which, a few weeks ago, gave every evidence of abundance was almost ruined by frosts, so that the shortage of holly was severely felt in San Francisco.

Various Notes.

The Nelligan Sisters, 1203 Sutter street, have received the commission for the decorating of the Polk street business district. The entire length of the business section of Polk street, comprising eight or ten blocks, as well as the block on Sutter street between Polk street and Van Ness avenue, were garlanded with redwood, while wreaths and red berries were used at intervals along the street to give the note of color. dinner party which was given at the Hotel St. Francis in honor of the tenth wedding anniversary of Thomas Pierce, head auditor for the hotel. The table was laid for twenty-four covers, with the pink and blue tones predominating in the centerpiece.

C. A. Stappenbeck, of the American Florist's store, on Polk street, put in an enlarged stock of favors, novelties, etc., for the Christmas trade. The roses which were grown particularly for this firm arrived in fine condition. Mr. Stappenbeck expected to have plenty of potted plants, in addition to his large cut flower stock.

All of the florists reported a large amount of funeral work last week, which kept the business up to the mark during the period of Christmas shopping.

A. O. Stein had much funeral work during the early part of last week. Omar Khayyam, the highly and rightfully treasured Persian tabby belonging to Mr. Stein, is the proud possessor of a blue ribbon won at the cat show which was held December 12 and 13 at the Palace hotel.

A fine display of azalea plants was seen at the store of Pelicano, Rossi & Co. last week. Mr. Keegan stated that, in spite of the high price, they were going fast.

B. M. Joseph states that he notices a larger F. T. D. business than usual this year and he attributes a good part of it, as far as he is concerned, to local daily paper advertisements, which he is placing twice weekly, informing patrons of the merits of the telegraph service in remembering eastern friends during the holidays. Mr. Joseph mentioned also a brisk sale of the various novelties for which his shop is famous.

week to the windows of Podesta & Baldocchi, which had more funeral work than usual.

Julius Eppstein, the St. Francis hotel florist, has opened a temporary shop in the St. Francis hotel building, in addition to his regular stand in the main corridor of the hotel. The new store can be entered either from Powell street or from the corridor of the hotel and is stocked with a complete selection of both cut and potted flowers and ferns. Mr. Eppstein decorated the hotel for Christmas week, using garlands, wreaths, holly, etc., throughout the lobby, dining rooms and corridors. Miss Crosswaithe states that she had no trouble whatever in selling all the orchids procurable at $2 each. Recently she made a number of sales of a half-dozen or dozen blooms to a single customer.

The Art Floral Co. has a new basket feature which is meeting with great success. A number of styles, sizes and varieties have been designed for certain kinds of flowers and potted plants. The materials used are the natural redwood bark, pine cones and rustic twigs, which are used for the handles. The box proper is made of the redwood bark, strengthened on the inside with a stout box of pine, and the outside is decorated with the cones. Many of the baskets are then gilded and used for flowers of particularly delicate colorings. Mr. Matraia has kept a good-sized force working on this feature for several months, in order to have a sufficient supply on hand for the holidays, and is now rewarded for his work by the popularity of the idea and the many expressions of appreciation of the originality displayed in the designs.

The nursery stock of the MacRorie-McLaren Co. was about depleted in the way of potted plants for the Christmas trade. Due to the lateness of the heather, there was more of this on hand, but eastern shipments were fast clearing out the potted heather. Fred Bertram, manager of the Powell street store, states that there will be a cut of heather a little later, both for local consumption and for eastern shipping. The nursery at San Mateo was entered by burglars on December 16 and was robbed of plants and flowers valued at about $150. As yet no trace of the thieves has been found.

Mr. Enomoto, of Enomoto & Co., states that the shortage of flowers brought on by the recent cold weather made it difficult to supply the constantly growing eastern orders M. M.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

The sale of cut flowers dropped off considerably last week, although the demand for funeral flowers, the many Christmas decorations and the preparations for the holiday trade kept all hands busy, including the extra help. Stock was so plentiful last week that it was not likely that there would be a scarcity this week; a shortage of roses would be made up from the heavy California shipments. All potted stock was high; cyclamens of good quality seldom brought less than $2.50 wholesale.

Retailers Meet.

At the special meeting of the Seattle Retail Florists' Association November 18 W. H. Paulhamus, president of the fair association, spoke to the members on advertising through displays at the Puyallup fair, which takes place during the month of October. At this meeting a committee was appointed to investigate and decide on what type of building should be erected on the fair grounds for the use of the florists. The fair association is willing to meet the whole cost of erecting such a building as may be chosen by this committee, which is composed as follows: Mr. Clark, P. F. Rosaia, H. A. Crouch, Mr. Hulmes and George Antoney. At the last meeting of the association, the chief topic of discussion was pool advertising. A good suggestion offered by P. F. Rosaia was that of advertising collectively every week in the leading paper in the form of a story about a particular flower, taking a different flower each week. In that way people could be taught the meaning of the names of different flowers and thus could be more easily persuaded to "Say It with Flowers."

Various Notes.

Stuber & Richardson have had a heavy cut of Maud Dean, Chadwick, Golden Chadwick and Marigold mums. They have also been cutting carnations, at first only about 1,000 a day. Their cut of Klondyke and other pompons found ready sales.

Rosaia Bros. have received some fine roses from their greenhouses, notably Premier, which thrives well in this vicinity and is widely admired for its richness of color and clean foliage. A fine display of orchids and gardenias was to be seen at their store last week; many of these flowers were ordered for Christmas delivery. They were also wholesaling poinsettias, cyclamens, primulas and other potted plants; their poinsettias and cyclamens were in especially fine condition. This firm had an attractive Christmas decoration for the T. S. Graham Co. The tops of the store's pillars were encircled by wreaths of red frieze, from which hung streamers of cedar roping caught up under the lights and fastened with large red cones and poinsettias. Baskets of holly and trees of red ruscus, wreaths of red frieze, clusters of red, white and blue pine with ruscus and Diana grass, all added to the seasonable effect.

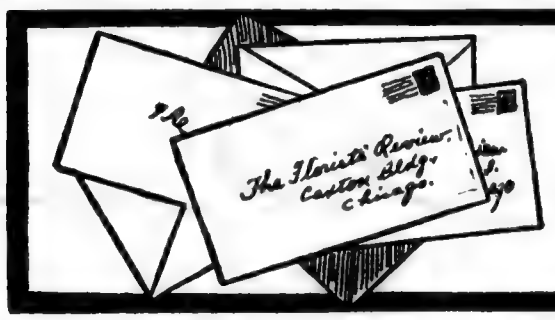
The Market.

There are still a few mums to be had, chiefly such varieties as Bonnaffon and Seidewitz, in small blooms, and also baby pompons.

Potted plants moved so well that it seemed scarcely likely there would be sufficient to meet the damand expected, for they were not plentiful. Ordinary grades of carnations are being quoted by the wholesalers at $10 per hundred, while for red varieties $20 to $25 is being asked.



No azaleas have been seen or heard of and it appears to be generally considered that the cyclamen will be the Christmas favorite from now on. Judging by the beautiful and shapely specimens grown in Massachusetts, they will easily hold a first-rank position.

Various Notes.

Kenny, Florist, 185 Central street, last week had a dainty arrangement in his show window, consisting of coleus, red begonias, cyclamens and baskets of foliage, red berries, etc.

James J. McManmon visited Boston December 10, looking for implements for his farm and buying holly. This firm was in good shape for Christmas trade, being well supplied with all kinds of potted plants, including a splendid batch of cyclamens and a good crop of carnations.

C. Robinson, of the H. M. Robinson Co., was optimistic regarding the prices stock would bring for Christmas and regarding the amount of business, saying that people would readily pay the higher prices. E. E. R.

Gentlemen:-

[boilerplate]

We are enclosing you our check herewith covering your invoice in full. The fixtures are installed and the new mirror is here for the refrigerator. Everything is fine and the fixtures are very satisfactory and have caused much favorable comment. We appreciate your promptness and thoroughness in getting out this order and should we need any more fixtures, you can feel assured that we will call on you.

We propose having a photograph taken of our new store and sending it to the different floral papers, with a write up of the store and we shall be pleased to mention your name in this write up.

Please quote us on a counter similar to the two you furnished us except same to be 12 feet long instead of 10 ft. otherwise to be exactly the same as the two counters we now have.

Yours very truly,

THE M.G. MADSON SEED CO.,

The Market.

Stock was decidedly scarce last week and prices were extortionate. Roses were in short supply and ranged from $6 to $35 per hundred. The former were unusually short-stemmed. Red roses were almost out of the question. Carnations were scarce in all colors and sold readily at from $8 to $15 per hundred. Red ones were held almost at a premium.

Cut poinsettias were in excellent demand, selling at $2 and up per dozen. These were of good quality and, although in fair quantity, were inadequate for the demand. On account of the closeness of the market, all stock showing color was eagerly sought. Poinsettias are always the leader of the market and attractive pots and pans of it were offered at 35 to 50 cents per bud and bloom.

Cut narcissi, in limited supply, could be obtained. Calendulas were attractive in various displays, but were not seen in abundance. Violets were in demand, but, like almost everything else, were hard to procure. Sweet peas sold at $2 per hundred. Calla lilies at $2 per dozen were in good demand for funeral work in order to save other cut stock. Stevia was snapped up upon appearance.

Potted plants were fine property. Cyclamens were good at from $1.50 to $3. Jerusalem cherries were in fair supply and moved readily. Other potted plants included primroses, begonias and ferns. Christmas greens, although higher in price than ever before, sold well.

Considering the number of orders and general volume of business, this would have been a record Christmas if stock had been obtainable; the shortage was greatly regretted.

Seedsmen claim that this Christmas was exceptionally good.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Advertising for Christmas.

The florists throughout the land have probably without exception in the last few days been, to use a common expression, doing a "land-office business." The magazine advertising of our publicity campaign was timely for this season and was calculated to arouse interest in flowers and plants as Christmas gifts.

A page carrying a beautiful group of flowers, painted from nature and reproduced in actual colors, appeared in World's Work, Munsey's, Review of Reviews, Scribner's, Atlantic Monthly, Century and Harper's. A well arranged panel of text conveyed the message:

"For the Christmas and New Year greetings let the heart speak through flowers. Radiantly lovely and alive with the holiday spirit, they convey every thought and sentiment with a sweetness surpassing mere words."

In the Metropolitan for December was a whole page advertisement in colors and located facing a solid page of edito-

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

FISH FILL FLORIST'S TILL.

Helping the Hobbies at Home.

More and more florists are realizing that goldfish kept in the home, particularly the home where there are children, are a never failing source of pleasure and an inspiration to nature study, and that consequently the demand for them is sure to increase as their value is more generally appreciated. It is but natural that the seller of plants and flowers for the home should also be able to provide fish and aquaria. Goldfish have, too, a commercial value as side exhibits in stores and as parts of elaborate decorative designs. An example of the latter use was described in The Review for August 14, in connection with an illustration of a dinner decoration designed by Albert Pochelon. It showed a table encircling a tank sixteen feet in diameter, containing 500 fish, together with a lighting display and other decorative features. But such demands are usually met by the fish raiser or perhaps, as in this case, by a loan from the city aquarium. The fish-keeping florist caters above all to the home demand.

No Gold in Small Goldfish.

While there is no great profit in the common, small goldfish, there is enough to pay for handling them. The smallness of the profit is due to the fact that 5 and 10-cent stores sell this kind for 10 cents each, making it impossible in some localities for florists to sell such fish for more than 15 or 20 cents, or perhaps 25 cents in the case of especially large and fine fish. At 15 or 20 cents there is a profit of from 5 to 8 cents per fish, where one has to buy the fish in the first place. If one can raise his own fish, there is a little more profit, but also much more work.

The real profit in goldfish is in the fancy kinds, such as the fan tails, nymphs, telescopes, ribbon tails, comet tails, lion heads, etc. These bring excellent prices, sometimes with a profit of $1 per fish, though of course such sales are comparatively few.

Fish That Are Fish Hooks.

One florist, Charles Trauth, Newark, N. J., installed a tank with goldfish in his store a few years ago, principally for his own pleasure in watching and caring for them, but he has since developed a considerable business in them. During the fall he sells about 500 fish a week; during the rest of the year the number sold weekly falls somewhat short of this, even as low as 200 a month in the summer dull season, but still the returns are enough to pay well for the comparatively small time it takes to care for the fish. He finds that where fancy varieties of goldfish are kept, some people will come in regularly for them, sometimes as often as once a week. Their drawing power is so great that he calls them "fish hooks." A good profit is also to be found in the sale of fish globes, fish food, water plants, snails, polliwogs, etc.

Give Him Air—or Oxygen.

One important problem to be considered in the care of fish in a small aquarium is the supply of air or of oxygen for the fish. This may be solved either by putting in the aquarium plants which will generate oxygen or by some mechanical means for aërating the water. The Review printed July 31 a list of thirty plants suitable for aquaria and referred to the way in which the oxygen given off by the plants was utilized by the fish, which in turn exhaled carbon dioxide, a plant necessity. When the proper plants are provided, fish will live even in tightly covered aquaria. But some people may think the attractiveness of water in motion a sufficient reason for using the mechanical method. One example of this is provided in Mr. Trauth's aquarium, which is a glass tank about three and a half feet long by two and a half feet wide and twenty inches deep; the bottom of the tank is covered with pebbles and the water, which is about a foot deep, contains water-weeds. Water is supplied to the tank by a pipe that runs underneath and up through the center to a point about ten inches above the surface of the water. Two arms about eight inches long run off from the main pipe. When the water is turned on, it spurts down from these two arms with considerable force into each end of the tank. The force of the falling water creates many bubbles, which are forced beneath the surface of the water, thus aërating it. The water can be drained off, when desired, by a small pipe from the bottom of the tank. When this method of mechanical aëration is not used, it is well occasionally to take out a cupful or dipperful of water and pour it back from a height of about ten inches, repeating this several times.

Snails, Bass and Polliwogs.

The tank need be cleaned thoroughly only once a year. If snails are kept in it, they will eat off the green growth that forms on the pebbles and the sides of the tank. Since those who keep fish in their homes occasionally ask for snails for this purpose, it is well to keep some on hand for sale. They can be bought for a nominal sum from those who catch them and sold for about 10 cents apiece. Small rock bass may also be sold for 10 cents apiece and make a pleasing variety with goldfish in a large glass globe.

In their season polliwogs are in great demand. They cost wholesale $1 per hundred and sell readily for 10 cents each. Those which Mr. Trauth purchases are raised on a New Jersey farm which makes a specialty of raising large green frogs for frogs' legs, which are sold to hotels. The ordinary polliwog develops his legs in a few weeks' time, but this special kind remains a polliwog for nearly a year. When this is explained to prospective customers, a sale quickly follows.

Fish for Pleasure and Profit.

The fish which Mr. Trauth raises himself are bred in tanks in his back yard. For ten days after they are hatched they eat no food. Then they must live on live food, which is provided in the form of small insects which are caught by the thousand in the marsh meadows near the city by means of small nets made of cheesecloth. When the fish are older, the prepared fish food is sufficient for them.

Some florists think that the keeping of goldfish lowers the tone of the store, but that certainly need not be true if the fish are kept in first-class condition in a clean, artistically arranged aquarium. And they act as a drawing-card for many customers, besides providing pleasure and real profit to the florist who keeps them. R. B. M.

DRUGGISTS EYE FLOWER TRADE.

Perhaps the popularity of the slogan has aroused their minds, or perhaps they think the florists' trade is enviably prosperous; at any rate, druggists see something in the flower business that arouses their business thoughts. An article on "The Druggist as the Florist's Agent" in The Druggist occupies three columns. The following paragraphs from it will interest florists:

Flowers are dainty things. A drugman ought to carry only dainties, you know. At any rate, that is what most of us have been educated to.

I know one druggist who took on a florist's agency three years ago. He has developed a business which pays him good money. It is in a town outside of Detroit where fresh flowers used to be hard to get hold of.

Folks for several miles around his store visit him for their flowers. He sells lots of flowers in winter time. He sells lots of flowers of foreign growth at all times. One of his front windows he keeps continually trimmed with cut flowers.

There's good profit in selling cut flowers and no investment. You simply act as agent for a reliable florist—take orders and mail, wire or phone them in—the commission is all velvet.

Cut flowers fit in well with the drug store, just the same. They are dainty enough to do it. If they weighed several tons and were coarse, they might not harmonize so nicely with the drug business. Another thing is, if a druggist naturally deals out perfumes, they are made from flowers.

Another way to view it is, you can tramp for miles and miles in 'most any city without coming upon a florist; but you won't tramp very far and not run against the green and red signs of a drug store. One reason, I believe, why more people do not buy more cut flowers is because they are so unhandy to get.

People usually have to glim a sight real often to get enamored of it. They don't see cut flowers very often. They would run against the good sight did our drug stores carry cut flowers.

Folks call on the florist for cut flowers alone, mostly. They have to make a special trip to the florist. They don't often do so, either. Not enough of them do it, at any rate. Let the drugman put in cut flowers, then. People have to come, anyhow, to his store. The druggist will sell many, many flowers to folks who didn't think before they wanted flowers. Flowers will soon become a more usual vision to them. As it is now, flowers are something out of the ordinary to most folks.

Young chaps in love generally make the best flower customers. Hit them, then, at a time they are after a smoke in the store. Speak to them with flowers. Make flowers more common. You can readily get your hooks into these young people if you show them flowers in the store. They feel a mite backward about entering a florist's shop, for the florist sells only things flowerlike.

Lots of folks buy cut flowers and lots more would do it were they easier to get—without tramping the town half over for a florist's shop.

The very same kind of people who visit the florist's also visit the drug store. You have a better chance to get your hooks into their gills than has the florist.

ANOTHER PENN PRODUCT.

The design shown in the accompanying illustration is a good exemplification of the individual treatment in funeral work, that new notion of using some circumstance in the career of the decedent as the motif of the piece. In this case the deceased was a member of the civil service commission of Massachusetts and the floral tribute was from the employees of his department. The designer at Penn's, Boston, chose the state seal of Massachusetts for floral representation. The plaque was made of Killarney Brilliant roses and sago palms. The "seal" was formed of blue and yellow immortelles, with the "Indian" in red and yellow, white carnations serving as the background.

FLOOR AIDS WINDOW DISPLAY.

Special Coverings Easy and Cheap.

Retailers who devote much care to their window displays—and most retailers do nowadays—have come to realize that the floor of the show window is worth consideration. Some have tried various experiments and others have shelved the whole problem because they were too busy making sales to devote the time necessary to reach a satisfactory solution.

A good floor adds to the beauty and effectiveness of the setting. It shows off the merchandise to greater advantage. There is reason, therefore, in the efforts to increase the share of this detail in the attractive quality of a window display.

There are a number of ways in which the floor of the window may be made to add to the effect of the display. One that has been used by some florists is a layer of colored hearth tile to cover the wood flooring of the window. If one can get the tile at a low enough price, this is a means of acquiring a floor that is permanent and artistic. One can buy various colors and effects, which will blend well with a number of settings. The tile, however, is rather expensive, particularly at present.

Composition Board.

Composition board, now used in construction work quite widely and employed in building window settings for department stores and specialty shops in large cities, has many possibilities for floors. It may be cut in squares of various sizes and each size painted a different color. By painting some of the blocks one color and some another, designs, such as found in tile or marble floors, may be carried out.

Odd shapes will form pleasing designs. One may use goemetrical designs, hexagons, triangles and motifs composed of a circle with adjusted shapes about it to fit in uniformly with the surrounding floor. Various-sized square blocks used together will also make a pleasing design.

Almost any block floor is somewhat of a Chinese puzzle to set together, but much of this can be overcome by drawing to scale the exact size of the window to be covered, using a scale of one inch to the foot. After getting the outline of your window, find the center, by drawing a perpendicular and a horizontal line which bisect where the diagonal lines from corner to corner intersect. By starting at this center and drawing your design about it you can make the required sizes of blocks to reach the front of your window. The blocks at the sides of the window may be less than a full block, but this does not matter as long as the design is symmetrical and so long as the front comes even.

After drawing the design in, it can be colored, and you will then have a definite idea of the arrangement when finished, or during the process of laying. It will save waste, too, as you will know exactly how many blocks of the various shapes you will require.

The most satisfactory way to cut square blocks is to send your composition board to a job printing shop, where they will cut it with their cutting machines to any size you require. In the larger shops they have machines large enough to accommodate the 4-foot width of board. It is not difficult, however, for one to do the cutting himself.

Covering the Blocks.

If blocks are to be covered with fabric make your scale drawing, and before marking your board to be cut, count the divisions or seams, including one wall as one division, across the glass side of your drawing. This is to ascertain the amount of space the thickness of your material will take up on the edges of blocks. Next take the material you are to use as a covering, fold back and forth the number of times you have seams, and then, placing the selvage on the edge of a table, lay a board on top and clamp tight. Measure this width with a rule, multiplying the number of inches by two. This number you with 12-inch blocks. There will be twenty-four seams. Fold the fabric back and forth twenty-four times, clamp and measure. We will say it measures two inches. Multiply this by two, because there are two thicknesses at each seam (the one wall seam not counted, making the thickness of the first wall seam double also), and we have four inches. One seam would take up one-twenty-fourth of four inches—one-sixth of an inch. All blocks, then, must be cut one-sixth inch shy of the foot. This looks like a small amount, but on twenty-four feet it would throw your measurement off the four inches and your blocks would not fit.

Good Materials.

To cover blocks some good materials for fall floors are monk's, friar, or normandie cloth, which comes in light and dark brown, green and natural. A floor of two colors, brown and natural, would be excellent. Felts are also good, there being a variety of colors in felts. Rep is another good material to be had in several shades. Satins and velours could be used if one were making an exceedingly elaborate and pretentious display. Any of these materials can be stenciled with oil if desired. The plain shades are preferable to patterned materials. Chased leathers can be had in a variety of grains if one wishes such a finish on his window floor.

Another effective floor can be had by using veneer wood blocks for a parquet border and placing a large mat of composition board covered with fabric as a center. Indeed, there is no end to the possibilities which this form of floor design presents to the ingenious window decorator. And the expense may be as little or as much as the individual florist wishes.

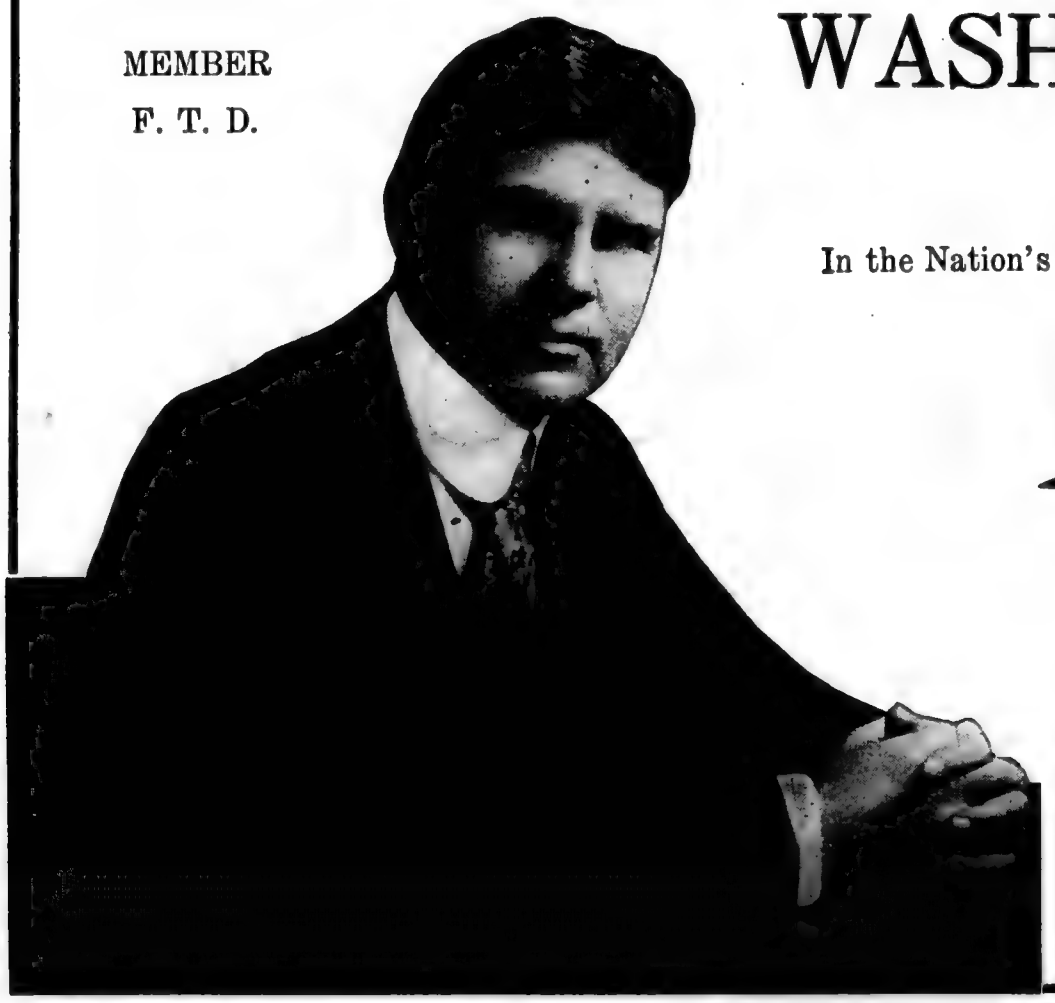
A TRAVELING GREENHOUSE.

There is now such a thing as a greenhouse whose location can be changed at will. To quote a writer in the Popular Science Monthly, it is "like a setting hen that will move from nest to nest when each batch of eggs is hatched." The greenhouse, similarly, will move from bed to bed when each batch of plants no longer needs protection. We read:

"Of course it doesn't move of its own accord; but, although it weighs twenty tons, it can be moved by a small boy. In fact, the same small boy can move it even when it is weighted down with an additional fifteen tons of men. The greenhouse is raised on wheels that run on tracks placed about six feet apart. To move it, the boy turns a wheel. Inside the greenhouse are pipes and a boiler for heating it, a cold water supply, ventilating apparatus and every other greenhouse necessity. When it has sheltered one batch of plants until they are sufficiently strong to battle with the elements, the hinged eaves of the greenhouse are lifted up and fastened in place until the moving to a younger bed is finished. Thus it passes easily over the taller plants. This greenhouse measures 100 feet in length, and it was invented by A. Pullen-Burry, of Worthing, England."

This English invention is not entirely new, for in 1911 four houses were built on wheels for Albert Stahelin, at Redford, Mich., to move on and off the carnation beds at will. Perhaps in its details, including complete heating equipment and the hinged sides of the houses, the Englishman's idea may be novel, but American greenhouse builders antedated the portable structure by eight years.

FOR THE TRADE'S GOOD.



Some Suggestions.

We have no suggestions for the betterment of The Review. It is good as it is, and we consider The Review the mainspring in the whole florists' works and hope it stays there.

But there is room for improvement among some of the florists themselves, some growers, wholesalers and retailers. It is up to the grower to cultivate only the best varieties of cut flowers and plants there are in the market. They do not require more labor, nor do they take up more room in the greenhouses, but they are more profitable to growers and retailers, besides giving better satisfaction to the trade and steady customers.

There are, especially among chrysanthemums, a number of poor varieties grown, which add to the burden of the retailer. He is not willing to sell them to his trade, knowing there will be a loss of his customers' patronage if he does. At the same time he knows the grower has used his time and valuable space to produce this poor variety, and cannot afford to go uncompensated. So there should be propaganda and encouragement among the growers to produce only the best varieties, not alone to give good satisfaction to the trade, but to back up the great advertising campaign going on at this time.

50 years' experience in the florist business guarantees efficiency to take care of all orders. 20 per cent allowed

As for the wholesaler, after the best cut flowers and plants are grown, it is his duty to handle them in the best possible way, by experienced sorters, packers and shippers. Only too often are beautiful flowers handled in such a shameful manner—broken, bruised and stripped of their fine foliage—that it is impossible to offer them to the trade. This should be the wholesalers' main object, to get the flowers into the hands of the retailer in perfect condition.

Now as to the retailer. He is the man of many trials and tribulations, a man of artistic sentiments and pleasing disposition. Yet, one might say, he is in the first-line trenches, exposed to all attacks and complaints the public has to offer. Often they are not his fault, but in many cases he is obliged to make good if he expects to remain in the game and especially if his trade is of the particular class.

Retailer Earns Rewards.

The retailer surely is entitled to all rewards the florists' trade has to offer. There is much that is expected of a retail florist. He must give advice regarding the care of plants, how to sow seeds and how to have success with them, how to arrange a decoration in a house which he has never seen and how to plan a table decoration. Yes, the retailer is a sort of floral diplomat.

I would suggest that some of our most experienced and older florists get up some sort of folder, under the title of "Floral Hints," in it to be suggestions as to the uses and purposes of cut flowers and as to the proper care of plants. This could be made cheap enough so that each florist could afford to distribute hundreds among his different customers. In this way people would be encouraged and educated in the use of flowers—for their own enjoyment as well as for special occasions. Only too often the effect of a beautiful bunch of roses is ruined because the proper vase or basket was not used, or a plant is spoiled because of insufficient moisture or nourishment.

There are many suggestions which would help better our trade, one of the oldest, best and most interesting, a trade working in harmony with nature, we might say. The beauty of flowers is nature's art; our art is in the arrangement of flowers.

rial matter, the design suggested by a famous illustration, including a beautiful girl of the Mary Pickford order, whose countenance gave unmistakable evidence of pleasure in the possession of gifts of flowers and plants. The text panel in this case suggested "Say It with Flowers. The gift of all gifts. 'Merry Christmas' has a new and richer meaning when you say it with flowers. More gracious than words, more personal than material tokens, flowers convey your Christmas greeting with a sincerity that speaks to the heart. Courtesy, custom, correctness and a nice sense of thoughtfulness are characteristic of the holiday wish expressed with flowers."

In all the advertisements was the paragraph:

Funds for Spring Campaign.

There is little room for doubt that this publicity has caused a greater demand for flowers and plants at this festive season than ever before. Before the war we always counted upon extra business at Christmas, but never such a volume as this year. Many days before this issue of The Review went to press plantsmen generally were entirely sold out of salable stock, evidence that the public intended to "Say It with Flowers."

Our publicity committee is in urgent need of more funds to carry along the campaign during the spring months. St. Valentine's day and Mothers' day are to be featured strongly in the magazine advertising and contracts for space in the periodicals of large circulation must be quickly completed. It is hoped that the large body of florists who have not yet subscribed to the fund will see the desirability of helping themselves by helping the campaign. The response made by the public to our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," is surprisingly large. Help us make it larger; help us to perpetuate it. We can, with the help we believe to be owing to us, make the slogan more popular than any yet established. It means more and has greater applicability than any phrase ever adapted to trade purposes.

Begin the new year well, and see that your name goes on the honor roll of the campaign.

ers would be heavily bought. Orders come in so strongly that there was a possibility that there would not be stock enough to take care of them all. Prices were unusually high. Russell, Columbia and red roses were from $30 to $75, Ophelia, Sunburst and Ward from $15 to $20, Killarney and White Killarney from $15 to $20. Carnations were $15 per hundred, poinsettias $4 per dozen, narcissi $6 and $8 and stevia $3 per hundred, California violets $3 per dozen bunches. Sweet peas were $4 and $5 per hundred.

The dark weather was hard on the carnation crop and they were scarce. Some growers had to burn wood while coal was low and this kept roses from coming on as they would have done under normal conditions. If it had not been for the coal strike there would have been big supplies of roses. Beauties were especially scarce. Retail prices were $25 to $35 per dozen.

Various Notes.

T. J. Noll & Co. sold a large amount of supplies for the holidays.

J. G. Eggleston had a fair supply of carnations and a good crop of sweet peas for Christmas. He had not the supply of plants that he would have liked to have with the promising business in view, for some of the greenhouse men were afraid to stock up heavily on plants early in the season, owing to the coal situation, and Mr. Eggleston was one of these.

business in strawflowers and fancy baskets. Mr. Newell originated for this city a clever little coat bouquet with colonial paper holder. He has sold every one in stock and could sell 500 more if he had them. They have taken immensely.

Fred Fromhold recently filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy. He listed his liabilities at $7,731.70 and his assets at $1,240.55. Mr. Fromhold formerly conducted a flower store on Baltimore avenue and later moved to the Argyle building, Twelfth and McGee streets, where he closed out his business several weeks ago.

W. F. Tredup, representative of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, in this territory, will spend the holidays in Chicago. He will return to business early in January.

Leonard Coen, of Lexington, Mo., was a visitor last week.

P. A. Manson, manager of the Pinehurst Floral Co., at Pleasant Hill, was in this city Thursday, December 18.

The death of Mrs. Aurena Humfeld, wife of W. H. Humfeld, of the Humfeld-Orear Floral Co., December 17 is recorded in this week's obituary column. J. E. K.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The local wholesale market was in a splendid condition last week. While the supply was quite large, the demand was heavy and clean-up sales were reported on everything that came in.

The weather was fine all week. Plenty of sunshine produced a good supply of everything seasonable for Christmas. Prices were quoted high in advance price lists of the local wholesalers. Usually in previous years the advance prices have been high and the market has broken the day before Christmas, when the big supply came in at the last moment from growers who held back, but this would not happen this year, the leading growers asserted; they said stock would be scarce, even with plenty of clear weather.

Roses last week were of the best quality, especially in Premier and Ophelia. Russell and Columbia sold well. Prices on the choice stock advanced greatly, especially on Premier and Russell, which are up to $75 per hundred. There was a big call for White Killarney. Red roses were scarce and the price on Milady was high and the demand large.

Carnations had the biggest demand in years, especially from outside, showing plainly that carnations are scarce all over the country. Advance orders at all the wholesale markets were more than the supply would be.

Mums were in better supply than was expected. Many of the late varieties were held back for Christmas. Among them were Chadwick, Nonin and Golden Wedding. There was a fine supply of pompons for Christmas, as many fine late yellows were in, many of these having been saved for Christmas cutting.

In the miscellaneous class the market had a good supply for Christmas, including Paper Whites, yellow narcissi, sweet peas, calendulas, stevia, extra long poinsettias and mignonette. Valley was scarce, but a good supply of orchids, both cypripediums and cattleyas, was looked for.

In greens, flat ferns, adiantum, smilax, leucothoe, galax, Mexican ivy and Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri had a big call.

Various Notes.

and Yellow Chadwick and Jeanne Nonin. This week will about cut out their mum crop.

W. M. Schray & Sons, as usual, had a fine lot of poinsettias for both cut flowers and pot plants, which the trade cleaned up early this year, as blooming plants were scarce here.

August Hummert, of the St. Louis Seed Co., says they never experienced such a rush for Christmas goods as this year. Their Verybest brand of holly was cleaned out early to the local trade. Red frieze and ruscus had one of the largest demands in many years.

short of the demand this year, especially the two latter. The little mistletoe that did come in was badly frozen in transit, while holly was exceedingly fine and well berried.

Windler's Flowers, the Eggeling Floral Co., the Schoenle Floral Co., Bergstermann and Beyer, South Grand avenue florists, had great attractions for the shoppers, with fine Christmas window displays. All looked for a record-breaking Christmas business this year.

Henry Berning said there was a heavy shipping demand for cut stock of all kinds. The demand for carnations was away beyond anything in previous years. The local demand, too, was heavy all the week.

Meetings for the first two weeks in the new year are as follows: St. Louis County Growers' Association, January 7; St. Louis Association of Gardeners, January 7; St. Louis Florists' Club, January 8; Retail Florists' Association, January 12; Florists' Publicity Committee, January 13; Lady Florists' Home Circle, January 14.

John Nyflot, Fred Meinhardt and the Koenig Floral Co., whose places are opposite the two big cemeteries, put in one of the busiest weeks in years, preparing advance orders for Christmas grave decorations.

E. W. Guy, now retired, of Belleville, Ill., spent a day in the city December 18, doing Christmas shopping. It was Mr. Guy's sixty-third birthday, though he doesn't look it.

The florists bowled their last games in the old year December 17 and some extra good bowling was done by all the teams. The Roses defeated the Carnations in three games, giving them a lead of four games, while the Daisies were taking the odd game from the Sweet Peas. The standing of the teams now is: Roses, first; Carnations, second; Sweet Peas, third, and the Daisies last. The next bowling session will be January 7.

NAMING FLORISTS' FLOWERS.

Confusion from duplicate names for new varieties of flowers calls forth the following from the reader of a British horticultural journal:

"The naming of florists' flowers leaves, in some cases at least, much to be desired. A prolific source of trouble is that the same name is sometimes used for different plants of one genus. To some it may appear a matter of small account, but it has many times been a source of great worry to me. For a number of years I was engaged in a nursery establishment where new and choice soft-wooded plants were a specialty. The trouble was that the same names were often given by different raisers to their own productions, the choice generally falling upon some notability of the time. Thus, speaking from memory, the name Prince of Wales crops up about half a dozen times among pelargoniums, while Princess of Wales is just as often used. A favorite name for pelargoniums is Achievement. This appellation has been applied to at least two distinct show pelargoniums, one ivy-leaved pelargonium, one tricolor pelargonium and one zonal-leaved pelargonium. I well remember some forty years or so ago being taken severely to task for supplying fuchsias not true to name. The trouble arose through two varieties bearing the name of Avalanche being sent out in, I think, the same year by E. G. Henderson & Son, St. John's Wood, and F. A. Smith & Sons, Dulwich. They were both double-flowered varieties. Henderson's was a good dark variety, while the flowers of the other had a white corolla. Now that newer kinds of all sorts of flowers are being raised from seeds, it seems to me that it would be a good plan to register names of novelties with some central authority in order to avoid duplications such as are referred to above. Coming to more recent times, I believe I am correct in saying that the gold medal of the National Rose Society has been awar'ed to two distinct varieties each bearing the name of Queen Alexandra. Lastly, a most reprehensible practice is the renaming of recognized varieties, such as happened in the case of chrysanthemums during the early 'eighties of the last century, and is not altogether unknown among roses, a case in point being furnished by Frau Karl Druschki, which some would rename Snow Queen."

LUPINES UNDER GLASS.

Will you inform me when and how to start lupines under glass? H. J.—Ill.

Lupines are among the most useful of our annuals for forcing. Their long, graceful spikes of pea-shaped flowers in combinations of red, white, yellow and blue are gorgeous and the flowers last extremely well in water. I have had good success with the annual pink lupines started in August and blooming from Thanksgiving to Christmas. Sow the seeds thickly in benches (they are better in winter than solid beds), in rows fifteen inches apart. The pink variety is a slender flower compared with the others and can be placed more closely. Care must be taken not to spray the plants during dark weather and to avoid drafts, or mildew may set in and soon ruin a batch of lupines. Careful watering also is necessary to prevent damping off.

The best success is to be had with lupines for late winter or early spring blooming. The spikes sell better and are more appreciated than in early winter. Seed can be started in October to flower in February and March; in January for April and May flowering. The seed may be started in small pots; the later plantings do well in solid beds. The various forms of L. Hartwegii, blue, rose and white, are the best for late winter or spring. Cruckshanksii, blue and yellow, is also good. These lupines are much more vigorous than the early pink variety and should be planted in rows two feet apart, with single plants

The Woodlawn Flower Shop recently had a fine display of Maud Dean mums; some of the blooms were fully fourteen inches in diameter. H. A. Crouch said that they sold easily at a high price.

The Hollywood Gardens received some fine stock in roses and mums from their greenhouses. Last week they were cutting between 2,000 and 3,000 carnations a day. Mr. Meyers, in charge of the range, has wholesaled some fine poinsettias and cyclamens to the local trade at good prices. This firm had an extensive decoration in the new store of the Frederick & Nelson Co.; Christmas trees massed around the pillars, pine festooning and a generous use of electric lights of various sizes were the chief elements in the decoration.

The Fremont Floral Co. had a fine lot of cyclamens, which they sold outright to Felix Rosaia. P. T. C.

Emporia, Kan.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Keeler have bought the Congress street greenhouse from George Spear for $9,000 and with Joe Keeler, Charles Keeler and Ora Rindom have formed the Riverside Garden Co. Joe Keeler will have charge of the Congress street house, while Mrs. Keeler will continue to manage the store on Commercial street.

Reading, Pa.—At a recent meeting of the Reading Florists' Association, held at the home of Ferdinand Heck, Wyomissing, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, H. C. Huesman; vice-president, Jacob C. Bauder, and secretary-treasurer, Wilbert N. Abel. A discussion of the supply and demand of Easter lilies showed it to be the general opinion that there will be a great scarcity of these blooms for next Easter.

President, E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE Holland bulb salesmen in considerable number are spending the holidays in the United States.

THE early bird of the 1920 Holland bulb catalogues is that of Gt. Van Waveren & Kruyff, of Sassenheim, Holland.

IF the Japanese do not get more money for their lilies in 1920 it will be because American and English buyers stand pat on whatever offer they make.

THE official roster of the Louisville Seed Co., Louisville, Ky., is: President, George E. Hays; vice-president, Harvey D. Hays; secretary, Owen T. Watts; treasurer, Joe D. Marshall.

THE Holland bulb exporters are distributing their 1920 catalogues. They show little reduction in the number of varieties listed, but prices are quite a little above those at which 1919 shipments were invoiced.

THE seedsmen whose catalogues are not "on the fire" are burning the midnight oil. Late-comers are finding printing facilities well employed and estimates of cost run from twenty-five to fifty per cent above those of last year.

As regularly was the case while he was publicity manager for the Livingston Seed Co., Adolph Kruhm, now secretary for Beckert's Seed Store, Pittsburgh, is the early bird in the matter of the 1920 general seed catalogue. His book reached The Review December 19. It is a McFarland job.

OFFICERS of the recently formed Northwest Pacific Seedsmen's Association are as follows: President, Frank Leckenby, of the Chas. H. Lilly Co., Seattle, Wash.; secretary-treasurer, L. C. Barrett, of the Spokane Seed Co., Spokane, Wash.; directors, John Anderson, of the Inland Seed Co., Spokane; F. E. Barkemeyer, of the Barkemeyer Grain & Seed Co., Great Falls, Mont.; C. H. Leslie, of Darrow Bros. Seed & Supply Co., Twin Falls, Idaho, and Geo. S. Reed, of the Portland Seed Co., Portland, Ore.

CONSULAR advices report an increasing demand for seeds in the Sao Paulo district, Brazil. The United States is getting a larger share of the business, although Italy, Portugal and Uruguay are admittedly the chief suppliers. In 1918, 1,048,115 pounds of seeds, bulbs, and roots were imported through the port of Santos. The Brazilian customs tariff provides that vegetable, flower and field seeds for agriculture in general shall be admitted duty free. American seeds are considered of excellent quality, since plants grown from them do well in the Sao Paulo district, where the climate is similar to that of the southern United States.

GERMAN VALLEY ARRIVES.

Two weeks after the receipt of shipments from Rotterdam, the first German valley reached New York December 16, when the steamer Abraham Lincoln, from Hamburg, arrived. On board were 228 cases for Loechner & Co. and eighty-eight for the International Forwarding Co.

These German shipments are being held up some little time for inspection. Under present circumstances a certificate of inspection could not be obtained in the country of origin, as is done with shipments from other countries. Therefore the federal inspection authorities must examine the pips to see if they conform to regulations. If so, they will be passed almost immediately. If not, they will be held for fumigation, in order to free them from whatever contamination the authorities find on them.

WASHINGTON CROP LOSSES.

Cold Kills Cabbage.

One of the results of the unusually cold weather has been the practical destruction of the 1920 cabbage seed crop of the state of Washington. This crop is valued close to a million dollars, and from all appearances now the loss will be from seventy to ninety per cent.

It takes two years to grow a crop of cabbage seed, the first year being used to produce heads; these are kept over the winter and seeds are produced from these heads during the second season.

Owing to the unusually dry and backward summer, the 1920 crop is not as far advanced this year as usual. These heads all have to be selected before being covered for the winter and on account of the backward season this selection and consequent protection was being left as long as possible, so that the cold weather caught them altogether unprotected and for the most part destroyed them.

The Chas. H. Lilly Co., Seattle, which has grown cabbage seed in the Skagit valley for the last nineteen years, states that nothing like this has ever been experienced before. They report having seen as cold weather, but never having this cold weather before Christmas, and think that this is the most complete crop failure that they have ever seen in the nineteen years that they have been growing cabbage seed, although some of their best farmers, who have grown seed for many years, had carefully provided for all contingencies by having their crop far enough advanced to be rogued and covered.

Turnips Gone, Too.

The Woodruff-Boyce Seed Co., which started growing seed last year at Auburn, in the White river valley, and had a successful crop the first year in this new section, reports a complete failure for the coming crop both on cabbage and turnip.

The Aabling Seed Co., which has been growing seed for the last four or five years, reports that as far as can be judged at the present time all of the crops, none of which have been covered, have been so thoroughly frozen as to be a complete loss.

In the section around Chehalis, where the thermometer has dropped in the last few days to 10 degrees below zero and where none of the turnips have been covered, there will undoubtedly be nothing left worth caring for.

Altogether the seed industry of the state of Washington, which experienced such an increase during the last few years, especially during the war, has received a severe setback, especially with regard to those crops which take two years to produce seed, such as cabbage, turnip, rutabaga, kale, beet, mangel, etc. Only a few of the older and more experienced farmers have saved their crops.

Frank Leckenby, of the Chas. H. Lilly Co., Seattle, states that beets and mangels have been fairly well taken care of, probably half of them being pitted and covered sufficiently to have been protected, but on account of the unusually backward season a large proportion of the cabbage had not been covered, and what was not covered will be almost a total loss, so far as can be judged at present.

SUING A SEEDSMAN JOINTLY.

Must Have Common Interest.

The Alabama Supreme court has reversed judgment in favor of plaintiffs in the case of Boykin et al. vs. Winter-Loeb Grocery Co., 82 Southern Reporter, 437, in a suit in which plaintiffs seek recovery for damages for claimed breach of warranty by defendant in the sale of certain seeds warranted to be Texas Ribbon cane seed, but consisting of a mixture of cane and broom corn seed. The opinion permits a new trial in the lower court, reversing the original judgment on the ground that the trial judge improperly prevented the jury from passing upon the question whether all the plaintiffs were parties to the contract of sale in such sense as to make it proper for them to sue jointly. The salient parts of the decision on appeal are as follows:

Joint Vendees, Joint Plaintiffs.

"It is unquestionably the law that in order for two or more parties to join in an action upon a contract, there must be community interest; that is, they must be parties to the same and jointly interested therein, though their interest need not necessarily be equal. It is also settled in this as well as many other jurisdictions that, if Boykin made a contract with the defendant for himself and the other plaintiffs jointly, they may join in an action for the breach of same, notwithstanding the defendant was ignorant of any interest the others had in the contract. In order, however, for these plaintiffs to maintain this joint action, the contract that Boykin made must have been made by him for himself and as agent for the other plaintiffs, and not for himself only, with the expectation of advancing or reselling some of the seed to the other plaintiffs. In other words, the other plaintiffs must have been parties to the original purchase and joint vendees with Boykin. If these other plaintiffs were not original vendees of the defendant, but Boykin was the real and sole vendee of the Winter-Loeb Co., and the other plaintiffs were purchasers from or vendees of Boykin, this action cannot be maintained by all of these plaintiffs jointly, and there would be a failure of proof as to a joint cause of action as set out in the complaint. While there may have been a conflict in the evidence of Boykin and the defendant's salesman as to whether or not there was a straight sale of the seed or a mere undertaking on the part of the defendant to procure the same, this conflict was made immaterial by the subsequent correspondence and final consummation of the contract of sale. The defendant wrote Boykin an unequivocal offer of sale, which said offer was accepted by Boykin and which involved a different price from the one fixed by the original negotiation, and the sale thus made, of course, carried with it an implied warranty that the seeds to be delivered were the kind offered and were not to be mixed with other kinds of seeds.

Seed Purity up to Jury.

"The trial court, however, erred in giving the general affirmative charge for the plaintiffs, as it was a question for the jury as to whether or not all the plaintiffs were parties to the contract of sale so as to authorize this joint action. True, Boykin testified that he purchased the seed for himself and these various parties, but it was open for the jury to infer that, while he intended supplying them with seed for planting purposes, they were not parties to the purchase, and that Boykin purchased the same upon his own account, expecting to supply the others himself. While Boykin testified that he bought the seeds for himself and the other plaintiffs, he also testified that he used a part of the seeds and 'sold to these other plaintiffs.' Moreover, it was a question for the jury as to the species of seeds delivered, as no one examined the seeds and proved that they were not the kind bargained for, and the only proof that they were not was based upon the nature and character of the crop grown upon the land where they were planted and which showed a mixture of other products such as Johnson grass, broom corn, sorghum, etc., and while this was relevant and may have been quite convincing evidence that the seed as delivered was mixed, it was not entirely conclusive that the other growths resulted from the sowing of the seed obtained from the defendant. Indeed, it is a matter of common knowledge that Johnson grass and broom corn are quite common in this county, and prolific crops of same are often grown without the necessity of planting every season; and, from aught that appears from this record, these lands might have been given to the previous growth and production of the other things found mixed with the Texas Ribbon cane. It would have been proper, no doubt, for the plaintiffs to have shown the nature and character of the crops of others using the same kind of seed and procured from a similar source, and for the defendant to have done likewise. The trial court, however, did not err in declining to admit proof that the dealer in these seeds received no complaint from others to whom he had sold similar seeds." S.

DISGUSTED, YET HOPEFUL?

The attitude of former purchasers of plants and other stock from abroad is vividly expressed in this cancellation of an order received from the United States by the retail plant department of the firm of Kelway & Son, at Langport, England:

Acting upon your suggestion received some time ago, I made application through the congressman from our city, whom I know well, to secure a permit for me to import some stock from you which was due me on last year's order.

He sent me a lengthy form and application to fill out, which binds me now and forever by bond and otherwise and lots of other foolishness, with a lot of information that neither you nor I nor anybody else can furnish, and for that reason I have decided to forego importing any stock for the benefit of the general public as well as myself until such time as we can get an administration down at Washington that has somewhat the people's interests at heart rather than the politicians'. Signs of the times point to the fact that the people are sick of the way their interests are handled.

In order that you may know the red tape and other things that it is necessary for me to go through to import this few dollars' worth of stock, I am sending you the correspondence,

SUGAR-BEET SEED PRODUCTION.

Revised estimates of sugar-beet seed produced in the United States in 1919 show a total production of approximately 6,700,000 pounds on a total acreage of 11,100 acres, with an average yield of 600 pounds an acre. Earlier estimates, based on reports of growers, indicated a total production of 7,500,000 pounds. It developed, however, that the average yield per acre in Idaho and Michigan was much smaller than was anticipated by the growers. Considerable acreage in Idaho was reported to be a total failure.

The 1919 production still is 800,000 pounds greater than the total production in 1918, 1,620,000 pounds greater than in 1917, and 1,160,000 pounds greater than in 1916.

The officers of the United States Nursery Co., which operates 1,062 acres at Roseacres, Miss., are: President, John M. Good; vice-president, Frank E. Good; secretary and treasurer, Edwin S. Houck; general manager, S. W. Crowell.

Nathaniel F. Webb is the manager of the nursery department of the North Shore Landscape Architects, who have opened their office in the Hoyburn building, Evanston, Ill. Benjamin E. Gage is the landscape adviser and C. Dudley Wagstaff the landscape architect.

Last year about 4,000,000 fruit seedlings were produced in the Yuba river bottoms, California. This year about 2,000,000 are being shipped, the decreased production being due to difficulties in procuring material and help. Yuba county growers found field mice a problem in growing apple and pear seeds, but they obtained relief by the use of a poison remedy furnished by the state horticultural commission.

TENNESSEE NURSERYMEN.

Meet at Nashville.

The convention of the Tennessee State Nurserymen's Association, held at the same time as those of the Tennessee State Horticultural Society and the Tennessee Beekeepers' Association, at Nashville, December 9 to 11, was a success from start to finish. The attendance was large, the meetings were interesting, the discussions were lively and great good resulted.

The banquet held by the three associations Tuesday night, December 9, at the Hotel Hermitage, the headquarters of the associations, was a brilliant affair. John R. Watson, executive secretary of the American Association of Nurserymen, spoke for the nursery trade.

One striking thing about the convention just concluded is that practically everyone on the program was present and came with a message both timely and important. The only exception was S. W. Crowell, of Roseacres, Miss., who was kept at home by sickness. Excellent addresses were delivered by Robert Pyle, president of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., and John R. Watson, executive secretary of the American Association of Nurserymen, Princeton, N. J.

Delegates from commercial clubs of Chattanooga, Memphis and Johnson City gave invitations and strongly presented inducements for the convention to be held in their respective cities, but it was unanimously voted to hold the 1920 convention in Nashville.

COUNT YOUR COSTS.

What Makes Trees So High?

In the present day of high prices it is not at all unreasonable to expect the price of nursery stock to keep pace with other products; yet, at the same time, we hear our customers exclaim, "My, what makes trees so high?" They do not stop to consider that almost the entire cost of nursery stock is made up of labor, which has doubled and trebled in cost in the last few years, and, if we base our selling price on the cost of production, we must either raise the price or go out of business.

Fortunately, most of the buyers, having got used to the H. C. of L., take the rise good-naturedly and pay the price, but would it not be well to consider how far we shall be able to go in the matter of elevating prices?

Price Follows Products.

Unlike the staple food products, nursery stock is not a necessity. While it is true that the products of the trees are coming to be considered more of a necessity than formerly, yet trees are not in themselves a necessity and the buyer of nursery stock, particularly fruit trees, must be considered in the same light as the dealer in any other products. He does not buy because he has to have them, but rather as a speculation. He sees, or thinks he can see, a profit to be made on his investment. He figures (not always correctly, of course) that the price of the fruit will pay him a reasonable income on the cost of the trees, plus the cost of bringing them into bearing.

It is purely a business proposition with him and, if the prospects of getting large returns are good, he is willing to pay a high price for the trees, provided, of course, that stock is scarce and that the nurseryman feels more or less independent. In no case, however, is he going to pay a price so high that his investment will become too large for him to hope to make a reasonable income. I do not mean seven or eight per cent, for that is not enough margin for either the orchardist or the nurseryman, both of whom take long chances and are entitled to a margin of profit commensurate with the risk. I think that most of us nurserymen would prefer to invest our money in Liberty bonds, if we had any to invest, rather than try to grow nursery stock on a margin of seven or eight per cent, for, notwithstanding the fact that many times we do not realize that much, yet we have visions of a much greater margin.

The Future of the H. C. of L.

Fortunately, at the present time prices of nearly all fruits are such that the grower feels safe in paying a good, stiff price for his trees, but what of the future? How long is the h. c. of l. going to continue? If we knew, we should all be either planting all of the stock that we could get in or else getting out from under as fast as possible.

Figuring from a strictly cost basis, it looks as if prices would continue to soar, but there must be a limit. Sooner or later, as in climbing a lofty mountain peak, we must reach the top and begin to descend. There will be no stopping at the summit; we must either go up or go down. The descent will begin when some vital product, or commodity, exceeds the demand. Labor may be that commodity, if it continues to exact higher pay and shorter hours until there is no profit left for the employer.

Prosperity's Purchasing Power.

Anything that tends to affect the purchasing power of a large number of our people and forces them to live on smaller incomes will cut down the demand for many of the things that people now think they must have and lower the demand for the necessities of life, but just as long as times are good and people have plenty of money they will buy to the limit not only the necessities of life, but everything else that goes to increase their happiness and comfort, including the products of the trees.

And as long as the present condition prevails there is no reasonable increase in the price of nursery stock that is going to deter people from planting. However, I do not think that we should apply the old rule of charging all the traffic will bear, for by so doing we tend to stimulate the planting of nursery stock and at the same time decrease the demand for stock to a certain extent, thus again changing the balance, so that prices will drop to a point below the cost of production.

Labor Cost.

The matter of cost is getting to be a serious problem, for when we take into consideration the fact that labor constitutes the principal expense in the production of a tree and the fact that, not only has labor doubled or trebled in cost, but along with each increase its efficiency has decreased, we are confronted with a greater expense than simply the increase in the price of labor. I think it safe to say that the average day's work today is little more than half of what was considered just a good day's work a few years ago. On this basis the labor cost of growing a tree now is about four times what it was then.

The Brush Pile.

Then we must take into consideration the brush pile, which is ever present in the nursery business. No matter how strong the demand, there are always some varieties that will not sell. They may have been the best sellers last year, or the year before, but no one wants them now. Price cuts no figure. No one will have them at any price and they must go to the brush pile. Then there are the culls, bad roots and diseased trees; all go the same way and the cost of all of these is just the same as for those we sell, four times what they used to cost.

All of this must come out of the profits or, in other words, must be added to the cost of the trees sold. Some of us in the past have not taken this feature of the business into consideration,

Carnation Morning Glow

Has now been on trial in the Boston Market for 4 years and has made good.
It is there considered one of the "bread and butter" Carnations.
The grower likes it because it is an easy doer.
The seller likes it because it is a splendid shipper and keeper.
The ladies like it for its rosy morning glow shade.

MORNING GLOW is early, free, with a good, strong stem. It has no tricks about it.

While not one of the largest, it is probably the most profitable of all Carnations.

Sold by the originator. Rooted cuttings.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful also to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

FIVE NEW, CONNECTED HOUSES.

We have just built five connected greenhouses, each 25x150, with a height of seven feet to the gutters. We wish to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather, using a steam boiler. We have plenty of 2-inch and 3-inch pipe, and we wish to use 3-inch pipe for the main and 2-inch for the flows and returns. How many coils will be needed and how many pipes in each coil? G. W. R.—Can.

Although it is stated that a steam boiler is to be used for heating the houses, from the fact that the coils are to be of 2-inch pipe we are not sure that hot water will not be the heating medium. With hot water we would use three 3-inch flow pipes in each of the houses, with nine 2-inch returns in the inside houses and ten in those which have one outer wall exposed. If there is more than two feet of glass in these walls, an additional return should be put in. If the houses are to be heated with steam, we would use one 3-inch flow pipe and seven 2-inch returns, with one additional return in the houses with one exposed wall. The coils may be either under the benches, on the walls or on the supporting pipes over the benches.

STEAM FOR A 200-FOOT HOUSE.

What size of steam boiler, as indicated in horsepower, would be required to heat an even-span greenhouse, 33x200 and seven feet high to the eaves, maintaining a temperature of 50 degrees in zero weather? How many runs of pipe will be needed? Could 2-inch pipe be used for part of the system? We understand that in the state of Ohio a licensed fireman must be employed for a boiler of over thirty horsepower. Is this correct? F. & S.—O.

While a considerably smaller boiler would answer, we would advise the use of a boiler of about twenty-five horsepower. In case one or more houses are to be added, it would be well to provide boiler capacity for any likely to be erected during the next two or three years. For two houses use a 30-horsepower boiler and allow about the same amount of added horsepower for each additional house.

Two-inch pipes will answer well as flow pipes in the houses, but it will be better to use 1¼-inch pipes as returns. We would suggest the use of three 2-inch flows and ten 1¼-inch returns, provided each side wall contains four feet of glass. If there is more or less than four feet of glass, use one return more or less, accordingly, for each four feet of glass.

In case the present price of pipe seems prohibitive and there is on hand plenty of 2-inch pipe for the returns as well as for the flows, it will be entirely feasible to substitute seven 2-inch returns for the ten 1¼-inch return pipes. Use three of the 1¼-inch or two of the 2-inch returns on each side wall and distribute the others under the benches or along the sides of solid beds.

Help Save the "White Coal of Industry"

The boiling hot water resulting from condensation in your steam lines is worth money. You have paid for it in terms of coal. It contains valuable heat units. It is the "White Coal of Industry"—it should not be wasted.

And it need not be wasted. The Morehead Back-to-Boiler System will save it for you by returning it to the boiler at temperatures as high as 400 degrees Fahrenheit. It reduces coal consumption an average of 20%. At the same time your steam will be "drier" and more efficient; your production speeded up and profits increased.

Write today for facts and figures on what the Morehead System will do in your plant.

a license is only required where considerable steam pressure is carried, making it unnecessary to have a license for ordinary heating boilers where a low-pressure system is used. At any rate, the boiler need not be over thirty horsepower in this case, unless to be used for more than two houses. We would suggest a letter to the secretary of state, Columbus, asking what the requirement is.

PIPING FOR HOTBED.

We have three greenhouses, each 25x75, and on the south side have built a hotbed, 12x75 feet, using hotbed sashes for the roof and 12-inch sides made of 2-inch planks and banked with earth. We wish to heat it with pipe from the greenhouse, taking off a 1½-inch pipe from the main at the far end of the house and using this to feed the coils in the hotbed. The bed we want to keep suitable for lettuce and hardy plants, simply keeping out the frost in zero weather or less. It seldom gets colder than 15 degrees below zero and then only for a short time. The houses are well protected by hills on each side.

I have two small hot water boilers, a Boynton No. 70, ser. B, and a Giblin No. 70, ser. 100. Each house has two 2½-inch mains and they are used as lettuce houses. To keep them at 60 degrees in cloudy weather, it is necessary to keep the water in the boilers at 150 degrees when the outdoor temperature is 20 degrees above zero. We have planned to use one 2-inch pipe in each side of the bed and three 1¼-inch pipes in the center of the bed. Would this be enough? Shall we have enough boiler capacity? We have a No. 3 mercury generator with this system and probably enough coils in each house, but as we have never run these in severe weather we should like your advice before putting in extra piping for the bed.

S. & W.—Mo.

I have not the catalogues of the Giblin and Boynton boilers at hand and do not recall the ratings of the different sizes. To heat the three houses and a hotbed 12x75 feet, it would be best to use two boilers rated at about 1,200 square feet of hot water radiation each. One of these will heat the houses and hotbed in mild weather.

The piping suggested for the hotbed will be practically correct so far as the amount of radiation is concerned, but it would be preferable to use either five 1½-inch or four 2-inch returns.

COUNT YOUR COSTS.

but we must now. It should be considered as a fixed expense, for the brush pile will always be a part of the nursery business, at least until we become blessed with a foresight that will enable us to look into the future and forecast conditions and the state of the planter's mind a few years in advance of our planting.

Replacements Add to Expense.

The item of replacements is another cost that many of us do not take into consideration and, while it is something that should not enter into the business on account of its abuse, it has become a custom to make replacements under certain conditions and in many instances it is carried to extremes. However, whether great or small, it is a cost that must be charged against either the growing or the selling of the stock.

In years gone by these items did not appear to be worth bothering with, but with the increased cost of production they must be taken into consideration, as they may mean the difference between success and failure.

The point I wish to make in bringing out these matters is that many of us do not know what our stock costs us. If we did, we should either go out of business or grow less of those varieties that are the most hazardous. Not many of us would grow stock that we knew would not sell for more than 20 cents under the best conditions, if we knew that it was going to cost us that much to grow it; but when we fool ourselves into believing that it is only going to cost us 10 cents, we go blindly ahead, thinking that we are going to make 100 per cent on our investment.

KAHLER REAL RED POTS

KAHLER POTTERY CO., 928 Omaha Nat'l Bank Bldg., Omaha, Neb.

NEWARK, N. J.

The [illegible] trade was excellent. Prices were high, but not much higher than last year. Because of the high price of cut flowers, an unusually large business was done in plants, for which the customers received the greatest values. Poinsettias were excellent and retailed at from $1.75 per pan up; most of the sales were at the higher prices. Azaleas were especially scarce; many florists had none in stock and those who succeeded in getting one or two dozen plants considered themselves fortunate. These plants sold at $5 and $6 each. Begonias were of high quality and sold at from $2 up. Cyclamens were also excellent and ranged in price from $3 to $10. Boston ferns sold at from $2 to $12 each. Cincinnati red cherries and Jerusalem cherries sold in considerable quantities.

Roses were scarce and high-priced. No. 1 roses cost at wholesale $15 per hundred and extras were $20 per hundred. Carnations were also high in price, retailing at from $2.50 to $5 per dozen. Sweet peas sold at 10 cents per bloom or $2.50 for a bunch of twenty-five. Because of the high prices of cut flowers, dealers reserved the right to substitute plants on telegraph orders, if the flowers could not easily be obtained or if the price proved prohibitive.

Various Notes.

Growers in this part of New Jersey are breathing more easily since the settlement of the coal strike. While there was no actual curtailment of the coal supply, there was danger for those who only had a small supply on hand, had the strike continued.

Philips Bros., 938 Broad street, had an excellent Christmas trade, with a heavier sale of plants than of cut flowers.

Henry A. Strobell, 931 Broad street, found azaleas especially scarce, but poinsettias and many other potted plants more plentiful than a year ago.

Fred Wolfinger, 883 Broad street, had a notably attractive Christmas window display. R. B. M.

Permanite

[Trade-mark registered, U. S. Patent Office.]

A STITCH IN TIME SAVES NINE

If you haven't gotten your houses in shape for the Winter—now is the time to do it; a house permanently permanited with PERMANITE will stand the wear and tear—it will be on the job even though it may be below zero—and the temperature on the inside will always be the same.

There is a reason for this—and you know it; PERMANITE is elastic; no matter how strong the wind may be, PERMANITE will give—and in this way prevent breakage of glass. No matter how cold the weather may be—PERMANITE does not harden; cannot fall off and consequently stays wherever it has been applied.

All in all—PERMANITE is the ideal, the most dependable and, after all, the one and only original Asbestos Glazing Cement on the market—always has been and always will be the best of its kind; Winter or Summer, hot or cold, PERMANITE remains unchanged, never hardens and is guaranteed to outlast putty three to four times.

Our latest folder on PERMANITE, which has just come off the Press, will give you further information; write for your copy today.

The Market.

Last week stock brightened up considerably. The weather was cold but bright, which helped the growers. The general line of holiday wreaths, baskets and novelties moved well and many articles cleaned up early. Roses were good but scarce. Stevia and narcissi cleared well. Calendulas, daisies and other novelties were in demand. Plants, especially poinsettias, cleaned up well. Boxwood, pine and other wreathing was in good demand. Holly was good and what there was of it cleaned up readily. Mistletoe was especially scarce. The market was well supplied with greens.

Various Notes.

A truck-load of plants from Lorain, O., for A. M. Albrecht was frozen in transit.

C. B. Knuth, of Euclid, is still cutting mums and pompons in considerable quantities.

William Kramer, of Rocky River, is cutting large quantities of good stevia.

W. F. B.

The Penn Square Florists have acquired a new, entirely enclosed, panel delivery car.

DULUTH, MINN.

The Market.

The trade of last week was mostly shopping and advance orders for Christmas delivery. Chrysanthemums are almost over. Roses were not at all good last week; evidently the growers were keeping the best of the stock for the Christmas trade. There has been a good supply of stevia, violets and greens. In potted plants, the market has had a large number of cyclamens, poinsettias, ericas, primroses, solanums and peppers, which sold well. Holly and boxwood wreaths have been selling well. The holly is well berried this year.

Various Notes.

Charles Stahbrodt has been bringing in some fine cinerarias and primulas.

The Market.

Last week this city was in the grip of one of the severest spells of cold weather experienced in several years. The thermometer registered as low as 18 degrees below zero and many greenhouse men were up the greater part of the first two or three nights of the cold spell in order to keep up enough heat in their houses. No reports have come indicating that any suffered any particular loss from freezing. Business was not so active as in other years, presumably because of the severe weather. Snow flurries have been frequent. Many shipments of flowers arrived late and many were badly frozen, thus fairly crippling the market and causing much disappointment. Stock was otherwise in excellent shape and good prices were obtained.

Roses were excellent. There has not been much demand for American Beauties of late. Cecile Brunner had a small, but steady, demand. Cattleyas and cypripediums were in good supply and sold fairly well. Carnations were plentiful and of good quality. Violets arrived in fair quantities and sold more freely than in the previous week. Paper White narcissi were of good quality, but were limited in supply. Bouvardia was seen occasionally. Calla lilies were in fair supply and sold readily. Holly was disappointing, arriving late, with few berries and in bad condition. Other Christmas greens were good. Poinsettias, cherries, peppers and other Christmas plants were in good demand.

Various Notes.

E. R. Fry, of West Main street, made a specialty of Christmas novelty baskets and wreaths. He has had a heavy demand for funeral work also.

H. E. Wilson, of 88 East Main street, has recently opened a candy department in connection with his store, and has an elaborate case just inside the doorway. He says that he finds the side line quite profitable, for, when a nice box of flowers is sent to a customer, often a box of candy is included.

J. B. Keller Sons' window was most artistic in its Christmas novelties and

CALLAS

WHITE CALLA BULBS. Clean, sound bulbs of Calla Aethiopica, the popular white Calla, all with crown shoots. Figure a little; suppose you plant 1000 bulbs, 6 inches each way and get 6 flowers to a plant (a fair average), you are making $750.00 gross on 250 square feet of bench space even if you sell the flowers as low as $1.50 per dozen, and you have your bulbs to use year after year.

Diameter of Bulbs.	100	1000
1 to 1¼-in.	$ 6.00	$ 57.50
1¼ to 1½-in.	10.00	95.00
1½ to 2 -in.	15.00	145.00

YELLOW CALLA BULBS. The true Elliottiana, brilliant yellow, with green foliage. Makes an attractive, easily grown, pot plant novelty that sells itself.

Diameter of Bulbs.	100	1000
1½ to 2-in.	$17.00	$160.00
2-in. and up	25.00	240.00

Cheap, poor quality bulbs take as much space and more care than good ones. Why not buy the best?

SEVIN-VINCENT CO.,
417 Montgomery St., San Francisco, Cal.

Godfrey Calla bulblets, pure stock, ready for immediate shipment, mixed sizes from ⅜-in. in diameter down as they run, $1.00 per 100; $9.00 per 1000. Second size, $2.50 per 100; size for potting in 3-in. pots, $5.00 per 100.
N. O. Caswell, Delavan, Ill.

Godfrey Calla bulblets, pure stock, mixed sizes left after planting a house 20x186 ft., will run 600 to 700 to the qt., $4.00 a qt., $2.25 a pt.
James Wheeler, Florist, Natick, Mass.

Godfrey Callas, 3-in., blooming size, $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000; 4-in., $15.00 per 100. Winfield S. Kircher, Cyclamen Specialist, Defiance, Ohio.

GLADIOLI

FOR GREENHOUSE FORCING

We offer a selected quality. All produced from young bulbs that were never allowed to flower. We guarantee our stock to be up to size, free from disease, and will refund any money advanced if dissatisfied upon return of bulbs. It is important to know from whom you buy. We own our own stock which was especially grown for us. Our growers and ourselves stand back of you.

—and yours will look like this

With ridge line, header line, purlin, eave and gutter lines and glass lap lines mathematically straight—with interior supports and cross braces giving a perfect illustration of perspective.

And here, combined with a maximum of strength, you have a maximum of the lightness and brightness so essential to your growing success. All these things are inherent, inseparable and integral in AGMCO houses of whatever type.

Ponder these facts—they mean money to you, but don't ponder too long, for the building season is almost upon us.

You'll have your plans and figures sooner if you write today.

AGMCO

Is the Steelwork in Your Greenhouse Riveted Together?

Most likely it is only put together with bolts. These, as you know, can never be drawn up as tight as rivets, nor can they be drawn up evenly tight. Did you ever think what would happen if some of these bolts loosened up, especially in a wind storm?

The above cut shows men in our own factory hot-riveting steel trusses. Our steelwork is all made that way. No wind can ever make it come apart.

It is not a bit too early to get estimates on your building operations. Just drop us a line.
